Before fielding questions on Watergate

Nixon names Kissinger to replace resigning Rogers

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) —President Nixon said today he has never seriously considered resigning during the unfolding of the Watergate scandal and he does not think his capacity to lead the country has been affected.

At the outset of his first nationally televised meeting with reporters in almost 14 months, the President dropped a bombshell announcement — the appointment of Henry A. Kissinger as secretary of state, succeeding William P. Rogers whose resignation is effective Sept. 3.

He then answered a steady stream of tough questions on Watergate, saying among other things during the 53-minute outdoor session with reporters that:

—It was time for the nation to "move on from Watergate to the business of the people."

—He would have "blown my stack" if John N. Mitchell had told him before the 1972 election what he knew about involvement of campaign or White House figures in the scandal.

—He did not recall L. Patrick Gray saying soon after Watergate that some presidential aides were out to "mortally wound" him by refusing to cooperate in the FBI's investigation of Watergate. Gray was acting director of the FBI at the time of the conversation.

—His confidence in the integrity of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "has not been shaken," but refused to comment on allegations that Agnew accepted kickbacks from contractors while Maryland governor, and perhaps while vice president. Nixon also said it would be "totally inappropriate" for him to respond to a question whether he would ask Agnew to resign if he is indicted.

Nixon told a news conference at the Western White House he recognizes that as far as his capacity to govern is concerned, the "constant barrage" of news reports on the case "tends to raise some questions in people's minds with regard to the President."

But he said, "I was elected to do a job. Watergate is an episode that I deeply deplore. Had I been running the campaign ... it would not have happened."

He said the time had come to turn to other matters and chided reporters, well into the news conference, because they had not asked anything about "the business of the people."

"Years from now, people are going to perhaps be interested in what happened in terms of efforts of the United States to build a strong peace in the world ... efforts of this administration to have the kind of prosperity we have not had since 1955," Nixon said.

"Our goal is to move forward, then. You say, do I consider resigning? The answer is no."

Nixon said he has three and a half years left in his second term "and I intend to use every day of those three and a half years" toward carrying out his administration's goals.

Nixon defense: President has 'extra' powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A White House lawyer, defending President Nixon's refusal to disclose tape recordings bearing on Watergate, told a federal judge today that impeachment by Congress is the only remedy to abuse of presidential power.

Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, pressing for a court order to compel Nixon to surrender the tapes, claimed that a federal grand jury had to have access to the tapes to determine conclusively who should be indicted in the scandal.

"There is reason to believe that the executive offices have been corrupted, although the extent of the rot is not yet clear," Cox asserted.

Cox and White House attorney Charles Alan Wright presented their positions before U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica. A large crowd was present at a show-cause hearing preceding an expected historic battle on the issue in the Supreme Court.

Among the spectators were Samuel Dash and Fred Thompson, counsel for the Senate Watergate Committee which is suing Nixon separately for release of the White House tapes.

Wright, speaking first, maintained that the President was given extraordinary powers by the framers of the Constitution and that they wanted him to use those powers.

In the event a President abused them, Wright said, the framers provided "a remedy — the impeachment powers of Congress."

Cox rejected Wright's claim that the President has the sole power to determine what material should be made public, saying that position runs counter to "the ancient precept that no man should be the judge of his own cause."

Cox argued that Wright was asking the judge to grant Nixon "the right to withhold evidence on his own say-so that is not shared by any other citizen or other government officials."

The President, said Cox, cannot place himself above the law to protect the confidentiality of presidential conversations and papers.

Responding to that Cox contention, Wright said: "We do not contend for one moment that Richard M. Nixon is above the law, but that there is a limit to the extent of the law . . . against the office of the presidency."

Wright said at one point that sensitive national security information was involved in the tape recordings. "The President told me one tape has a national security matter so highly sensitive he didn't even feel free to hint to me what it was," he said.

Sirica, who has handled most of the Watergate-related court activities here since presiding over last January's trial of the original seven defendants indicted in the bugging affair, questioned both lawyers extensively but gave no clear hint to the way he will rule.

U.S., Cubans tangle in bloody brawl during Moscow cage tilt

MOSCOW (UPI)—American and Cuban athletes fought a bloody, 25-minute battle today before several hundred stunned Russian spectators at a World University Games basketball match.

The Cubans swung wooden folding chairs at the Americans, who fought back with their fists. One American was knocked unconscious, and blood and broken glass littered the floor when authorities finally got the situation under control.

The fight broke out just 90 seconds before the end of the game, which the Americans won 98 to 70.

An unidentified Cuban player kicked Mitchell Kupchuk of Brentwood, N.Y., and Kupchuk went down in front of the Cuban basket.

Kupchuk came up swinging, and the entire Cuban bench poured onto the floor. American players swarmed out to try to rescue Kupchuk.

Then the Cubans brought wooden folding chairs onto the floor, and started hitting the American players over the head.

U.S. trainer Wayne Woltzen of Sheboygan, Wis., was knocked unconscious.

"These . . . bastards hit me three times," Woltzen said afterward. "I put my arm up and then he hit me on the back." He had a large lump on the back of his head and had to be treated by a doctor.

At one point the Cuban coach, Ernesto Diaz, chased American coach Ed Badger of Wilbur Wright Junior College in Chicago across the court and back again, throwing punches all the way. Badger ran and did not attempt to fight back.

"We knew they were going to start trouble when they were 20 points behind, because they do it every time we play them," Badger said.

At one point a glass water bottle was thrown onto the floor and shattered.

The Russian crowd, which had cheered the Cubans all through the match, booed, jeered and whistled at the Cubans after the fight started.

When order was restored and the Cubans came out shooting baskets waiting for the game to resume, they were greeted by a deafening round of booing.

There were only about five police officers in the gymnasium when the fight broke out. They made no apparent move to restore order, but game officials finally got the players under control.

Ex-cop who threatened President to surrender

TAOS, N. M. (UPI)—A former New Orleans policeman wanted on a federal warrant for threatening the life of President Nixon agreed to surrender today to Secret Service agents.

Edwin Michael Gaudet Jr., 30, told a relative he would surrender, ending an intensive manhunt around a commune near this northern New Mexico community.

"We understand he had a meeting with his cousin last night and agreed to turn himself in today," announced Sheriff Arthur Trujillo of Taos County.

The bearded, burly Gaudet fled from agents Monday night when they tried to serve the warrant on him at the commune. A posse of agents and sheriff's officers converged on the area Tuesday but suspended the hunt after Gaudet's wife, Judy, and a cousin, Stanley Gaudet, offered to find him.

Mrs. Gaudet and his cousin then hiked into the jagged Sangre de Cristo Mountains. She told agents her husband could not have threatened the President in New Orleans because he was living with her at the commune at the time the alleged threat was made.

The federal complaint filed a week ago charged that Gaudet entered a drugstore in New Orleans and was overheard to say: "Somebody ought to kill President Nixon. If no one has the guts, I'll do it."

Gaudet, who threw a flaming flag at Nixon's limousine three years ago, could not be located before the President's visit to the city Monday to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention. The Secret Service also said it was investigating a "possible conspiracy," but emphasized that Gaudet might not be involved.

Nixon's motorcade was switched off the planned route along famed Canal Street and there were no incidents during his brief visit.

Overseas, as well as domestic

Military base cutback announced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The armed forces are preparing plans for a new round of base closings and reductions that may rival the controversial cutbacks of 259 bases ordered this spring, Pentagon sources said today.

The sources said details of the new cutback, the fourth since 1969, probably would be announced this winter. Delaying any later, they said, would put it too close to election year activities and add unnecessarily to the embarrassment cutbacks cause congressmen.

"This is just one more round in a process we will be seeing for some time to come," one source said, noting the force reductions resulting from the end of the Vietnam war and the pressures for reduced military spending.

Unlike the cutback announced April 16, however, the next round of reductions would include bases overseas as well as in the United States, the sources said.

The April cutback called for closing 40 bases and reducing activity at 219 others, eliminating a total of 21,172 civilian defense jobs and 16,640 military positions. It was expected to save the government $475 million a year. But it drew heavy criticism because it affected only domestic Army, Navy and Air Force installations.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., charged that President Nixon was "sacrificing" jobs in the United States in order to keep costly foreign bases open.

"We should be putting money to work here at home in areas that create jobs for Americans rather than jobs for Icelanders, Germans, Spaniards and countless other foreigners," Cranston said at that time.

In the wake of the massive criticism, the Pentagon ordered the armed forces May 25 to search out U.S. bases overseas, particularly in crowded urban areas, that might be closed without hurting U.S. national security.

Sources said the result of this foreign base search would be reflected in the next base closing announcement, along with new closures and reductions in the United States.

Kicks officer's hand

Police accidentally slay woman suspect

WEST COVINA — An unidentified woman burglary suspect was shot and killed accidentally early today when she kicked a policeman who had pursued the car she was in for several miles, authorities said.

The woman was hit in the chest by one round fired from the service revolver of Officer Don Eckerman as she and three male suspects were being removed from the car on the Pomona Freeway near the Long Beach Freeway interchange.

Police declined to identify her this morning because relatives had not been notified, but said she was between 18 and 21 and from Los Angeles. She was dead on arrival at County-USC Medical Center.

West Covina Police Lt. D.W. Henry gave this account:

Eckerman and other officers answered a silent burglar alarm shortly after 3 a.m. at the Chambers TV, a retail store in the commercial area of the city. When he arrived he saw a car speed away and pursued it southbound on Sunset Avenue. At about Nelson Avenue someone in the car tossed out a television set, apparently in an attempt to wreck Eckerman's radio car.

The pursued car sped westbound onto the Pomona Freeway and Eckerman was joined in the chase by cars from the sheriff's department. Near the Long Beach Freeway interchange the policemen managed to box in the suspects' car and forced the driver to stop.

The three male suspects had been taken out when Eckerman, gun in hand, tried to remove the woman from the rear seat. He said she kicked his hand holding the gun and it fired, hitting her in the chest.

Three television sets taken from Chambers TV were recovered from the car, Henry said. It was the second time the store had been burglarized in two weeks and each time the burglars entered the same way, he said.

The three male suspects were booked on suspicion of burglary and murder. They are Patrick Louis Thomas, 26, Brian Johnson, 18, and Kevin Roderick Neal, 18, all of Los Angeles.

Dead before fire

Man found burned in truck homicide victim

POMONA — Police today said they apparently have a case of homicide on their hands in Monday morning's incident of the burning pickup truck here.

An autopsy performed Tuesday afternoon at the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office failed to reveal the identity of the victim, but did show that he was killed by a blow on the head and was dead before the pickup he was in began burning.

Autopsy findings on the charred body revealed no inhalation of flames, indicating the man was dead before the fire. The body was burned so badly that no fingerprints remained and positive identification may be possible only through the comparison of dental charts.

The autopsy surgeon was able to determine only that the man was white and may have been about 30 years old. The estimate of his age was tenuous, however.

The body was in the pickup parked in a field within the city limits near Brackett Field. The blaze was reported to La Verne authorities by a passerby shortly before 5:30 a.m. The vehicle was a 1965-model blue Ford pickup. Police have declined to reveal the owner's name, but said he was not the victim and he has been unable to help them in determining who had been using the truck.

Police said they have no local missing person reports for men answering the victim's general description.

Two anti-freeze cans and a pair of shoes were found near the pickup. The cans contained gasoline which was believed to have been poured over the truck before it was set on fire.

Double-barrelled demonstration--equal rights, economy

Women plan nation-wide demonstrations

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Women across the nation plan to hold liberation fairs, conduct boycotts and collect signatures this weekend in a double-barrelled demonstration calling attention to the Equal Rights Amendment and the state of the economy.

The occasion is the 53rd anniversary of the 19th amendment to the constitution. It went into effect Aug. 26, 1920, and gave women the right to vote.

The weekend activities are being spearheaded by the National Organization for Women (NOW) and its 500 chapters but also includes other women's liberation groups.

Arlie Scott, the national coordinator for the weekend, said activities in the 21 states which have not yet ratified the Equal Rights Amendment will focus on calling attention to state legislatures to the measure.

Elsewhere, Mrs. Scott said, weekend activities will concentrate on economic issues and NOW's "action year against poverty."

"We are emphasizing economic equality this year," she said.

"There is a crisis of hunger in this country because of Nixon's economic policies," she said. "The economic disaster is as serious as any natural disaster. For women on welfare or with a limited income our economy is a real diaster."

She said NOW's 500 chapters nationwide will conduct a write-in campaign urging the President to sign the minimum wage bill recently approved by Congress.

"We have indications that he might veto the bill because it is inflationary," Mrs. Scott said, "and in case he does we're also collecting signatures to petition individual members of Congress."

Mrs. Scott said NOW expects the President to sign a bill declaring Aug. 25 "Women's Equality Day."

But, she added, "we demand he take positive action to assure equality and the first step is the minimum wage bill.

"NOW is emphasizing that Women's Eauality Day is not only a celebration but the symbol of a continuing struggle and we feel thousands of postcards to the President can make the distinction clear."

On Saturday, picket lines will be set up in Los Angeles, New York City, Austin, Tex., Detroit, Trenton, N. J., Washington, D.C., and in other cities at stores that sell pants manufactured by the Farah Co. of El Paso, Tex.

Farah, which employs mostly Mexican-Americans, more than half of them women, has been the target of a strike for more than two years in a dispute over wages and union representation.

NOW's national conference last February approved a resolution calling for a boycott of Farah products.

In St. Louis, NOW will conduct a massive parade with floats and period costumes re-enacting historical events from the suffrage marches of more than half a century ago.

In Philadelphia, a combination fair will feature ecumenism prayer and feminism while in New York, demonstrators will wear black and hold a funeral service "in memory of the unknown women who departed this life by the horrors of illegal abortion."

Mississippi Gov. Bill Waller has proclaimed Sunday as women's day and a day-long seminar is planned in Jackson Saturday with talks on such topics as the history of the women's movement, politics, and the Equal Rights Amendment.

Ayala, Brown clash over S.B. county's SCAG participation

SAN BERNARDINO — A disagreement over San Bernardino County's membership in the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) has developed betwen county Supervisor Ruben S. Ayala and Rep. George Brown, D-38th Dist.

Brown, of Colton, whose district includes portions of San Bernardino, Los Angeles and Riverside counties, said at present SCAG is a necessary regional body and expressed hope the Inland Empire, a victim of the lack of regional controls on air pollution, would not delay the move to regional solutions.

Ayala, whose fourth district includes the West End of San Bernardino County, said county supervisors do not oppose SCAG, but believe the county could better be served by readjusting the boundaries.

In a recent letter to Ayala, Brown noted that SCAG is currently considered the regional authority by the federal government.

"SCAG, as presently structured, is not in the best position to serve that function," he wrote.

"There are two basic problems. One is the non-mandatory nature of SCAG's makeup. The other is the inclusion of areas that do not have the same problems as does the Los Angeles Basin.

"The solution to the first problem is to make SCAG membershp mandatory, as outlined in AB1181 (Gonsalves). The solution to the second problem is more difficult.

"Because county lines do not follow geographical barriers, San Bernardino and Riverside counties have the bulk of their population in the Los Angeles Basin, but the bulk of their land area outside the basin.

"A truly regional agency should represent a region with a community of interests, which would have to be requested by the counties that would be divided. Until such an effort is made, however, SCAG will represent all of Southern California," said Brown.

If there is not a central organization such as SCAG, then there will be established single purpose agencies which will do some of the same things. These single purpose agencies may not have any elected officials, and therefore would be quite unresponsive, he added.

"They may also tend to aggravate one problem in the process of solving the problem for which they were established. I believe that it would be better to have a multi-purpose regional agency with a structure like SCAG's, rather than the alternative."

Brown said his purpose for the letter was not to condemn any efforts for sub-regional coordination, or to attack home rule. "Effective actions must have local governments, sub-regional councils, and regional councils working together. These super-structures do not take away local powers, but rather give a mechanism by which the larger problems might be solved.

"I believe there is a need for a sub-regional Inland Empire Mini-Council of Governments, just as there is a need for a basin-wide Council of Governments. Regional approaches are a fact of life. At present, SCAG is a necessary regional body."

Ayala reported SCAG was formed about seven years ago to serve as a clearing house for regional projects requiring state and federal funds.

In a return letter to Brown, Ayala said: "Your letter is somewhat confusing and inconsistent in that you support the Gonsalves bill, which makes SCAG a mandatory membership organization and, at the same time, you expound on your backing for home rule—you can't have both.

"Super governmental structures can and do take away local control. I am personally very vocal in support of home rule and strongly oppose any effort to erode such a system, as does the Gonsalves bill which you support."

County supervisors do not oppose SCAG, per se, but members feel it is imperative at this time a review and readjustment of SCAG's boundaries be made in order to determine which regional government best serves particular areas, he added.

"We believe that an Inland Regional Governmental structure composed of the counties of San Bernardino, Riverside, Mono, Inyo and Imperial have more commonly shared problems to resolve than does SCAG with its pesent boundaries.

"Problems that transcend counties, such as smog, rapid transit, flood control and others can be handled by a joint powers authority between SCAG and the proposed Inland Regional Governmental organization.

"The vast majority of the problems would then be resolved by officials who know the problems and their possible solutions; those who are closest to them."

Ayala said officials believe problems emanating from San Bernardino will be most difficult to be resolved by officials from Ventura and Los Angeles counties, "who at times are reluctant to admit we exist.

"I must say that, though we agree in principle on the vital need for regional government, we are miles apart on the mechanics to implement it.

"It is my firm belief that we already have too much government and I strongly feel that still another layer will hinder local officials in getting the services to the people and the job done expeditiously and properly," said Ayala.

Responds to Agnew criticism

Richardson defends Justice Department

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson says the Justice Department has taken "every reasonable step" to make sure information is not leaked to the press about the investigation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Richardson made the statement Tuesday in response to complaints from Agnew that Richardson and U.S. Attorney George Beall in Baltimore were permitting underlings to mount an "outrageous" campaign to influence the grand jury investigating allegations Agnew was involved in a kickback scheme.

"I fully share the vice president's concern about unfair and inaccurate publicity," Richardson said. "I stand by my previous statement that every reasonable step is being taken to assure that the Justice Department has not been and will not be the source of any such publicity."

In a statement, Richardson urged the news media to observe "restraint in what they report." He said this would help to insure fairness.

"I would point out, moreover, that we do not now have any firm basis for the assumption that the information which has appeared in the press has come from law enforcement officials," Richardson said. "In any case, any plausible lead implicating the Department of Justice will be pursued vigorously and appropriate disciplinary action will be taken against any department employe found to be responsible."

The attorney general declined to answer newsmen's questions, but department spokesman John W. Hushen said that Agnew's complaint to Richardson was made in a letter hand delivered to the Justice Department before Agnew went on television Tuesday.

"There is no evidence that anyone in the department is leaking information on the investigation and we will continue an admonishment to department personnel not to leak," Hushen said.

Jimmy Rodgers gets $200,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The city settled a damage suit by folk singer Jimmy Rodgers, who was severely injured in a freeway dispute with an off duty policeman, for $200,000 Tuesday. Rodgers had sued for $10.2 million.

The City Council approved the settlement after the city attorney's office warned there was "substantial risk" that Rodgers would get a larger sum from a jury.

An off duty police officer who stopped Rodgers in December, 1967, saying the singer was driving erratically, said Rodgers slipped and fell, striking his head. Rodgers, however, said he was beaten by the officer, and left in his car, bleeding from a head wound, without medical attention. He subsequently needed three operations and almost died.

Puerto Rican quits mayor race

NEW YORK (UPI) —Rep. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., has abandoned his attempt to become the first Puerto Rican mayor of the nation's largest city.

"I am convinced that an independent candidacy is not feasible. Therefore I will not be a candidate for mayor," Badillo, who lost the Democratic primary runoff to city controller Abe Beame said Tuesday.

FBI post goes to New Yorker

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Eugene W. Walsh, 55, a New York City native who joined the FBI in 1942, has been named the agency's assistant director in charge of the administrative division.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley announced the appointment Tuesday. Walsh will fill the vacancy created when Nicholas P. Callanhan was promoted to associate director, the No. 2 position in the FBI. Walsh served in the Indianapolis, Philadelphia and New York field divisions before being transferred to FBI headquarters in July, 1956.

Dr. Paul White 'doing well'

BOSTON (UPI) —Heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White showed improvement Tuesday, four days after he underwent an operation to remove a blood clot on the brain.

A spokesman at Massachusetts General Hospital said White, 87, former doctor for the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, was "doing well."

White stayed in the hospital recovery room from Friday morning until Monday. He was placed in a private room Monday.

2 experts say beef prices won't rise as freeze ends

United Press International

A Cost of Living Council official and an economist both believe beef prices will not surge upward when the freeze ends next month.

Henry Perritt, executive secretary of the council, said Tuesday that since beef producers are now withholding meat, the market may be flooded in September, keeping the price down. The worst of rising food prices is over and shoppers can look forward to a leveling off, Perritt predicted.

Dr. James O. Bray, an economist for the Stanford Research Institute, also predicted the cattle available would increase. At the same time, he said, prices for other items would start rising, giving consumers less money to spend on beef. He said beef prices may start declining by the end of the year.

Some food prices were lower at supermarkets on Tuesday.

Chicken and pork prices were down dramatically at A&P stores in the New York area. Center cut pork chops were down 40 cents a pound from the high of two weeks ago. Frying chickens were 69 cents a pound, 20 cents cheaper than they were last week.

The Safeway supermarkets in Chicago were selling uncut fryers at 59 cents, down from a peak of 83 cents.

Milton Kushins, an executive of Met Foods, a New York food chain, said "Supply and demand is entering the picture. The consumers just don't have the dollars to spend."

But Kushins predicted higher prices for rice, macaroni and oil, products purchased by those with little money.

Younger assails Demo 3-year death penalty plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger today branded as unconstitutional a Democratic plan to reinstate the death penalty for only three years to determine whether the gas chamber deters people from murder.

"We would theoretically be taking lives during this period while the state tries to decide the deterrent effect of capital punishment," said Younger. "No court, in my opinion, would authorize the taking of a human life without justification for experimental purposes only."

The assembly Criminal Justice Committee Tuesday amended a bill to provide the three-year experimental death penalty for 17 serious crimes.

A showdown vote was scheduled Thursday for the new proposal and a rival bill by Sen. George Deukmejian that is supported by Younger and Gov. Ronald Reagan. It was uncertain how the key committee would vote.

If his measure is rejected, Deukmejian said he will seek to have the full Assembly yank it from the committee next week. "The least the people deserve is a vote on the death penalty by the full legislature," he said.

Managers of gas stations plan Labor Day shutdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Many gasoline station operators plan to shut down over the Labor Day weekend to protest the government's Phase IV price controls, and some may do it as early as this weekend.

The American Automobile Association in a weekly survey of gasoline supplies said today the shutdowns probably would be "widespread."

"Although it is still uncertain how thorough area shutdowns will be if they do occur, one state retail dealers association said it was confident 60 per cent of Pennsylvania's 10,000 dealers would close on cue from the association," AAA said in the report.

AAA said its nationwide survey showed that gasoline dealer associations "in many states and cities" were organizing closings, "some as early as the coming weekend but most planned to coincide with the long Labor Day weekend."

The protest will be aimed at profit margins allowed under Phase IV price controls. Petroleum prices have been one of the chief targets of the federal anti-inflation program.

Bonita teachers gain 2nd salary increase

SAN DIMAS — The Bonita school board approved revised teachers' salary schedules Tuesday, adding an approximate 1.7 per cent to the salary guidelines approved June 12.

The increases, said Supt. James Johnson, keep the district in line with the board's stated goal of remaining at median level among school districts in the county.

Together with the increases approved in June, district teachers will receive pay hikes totaling from 4.8 to 7.4 per cent over last year. The increases raise the minimum teacher's salary to $8,263 per year.

In other business, the board approved a bid of $103,699 by the Steed Bros. Builders for the rebuilding of the Bonita High School library, which was partially destroyed by fire last March.

The bid, which came in over $15,000 below the architect's estimate, includes carpeting for the library, said Asst. Supt. James Overin.

Completion of the library repair work is expected in March 1974.

In an educational report to the board, Asst. Supt. Howard Wigell detailed the results of the district testing program during the past year.

Wigell reported that reading scores in grades 1 through 3 were "substantially" improved over last year and that growth was measured at all elementary levels.

The administration, said Wigell, was generally pleased with the testing results, especially in the area of reading and that the district goal now is to show similar growth at the intermediate and secondary levels.

Radical Berkeley councilman ousted

BERKELEY (UPI) —Radical city councilman D'Army Bailey took his ouster calmly Tuesday night after he was recalled by voters and replaced by William Rumford Jr., an official with the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

With all 189 precincts recorded, the unofficial vote was 18,569 to remove Bailey from office and 11,548 to retain him.

Bailey, 31, an attorney, termed the outcome a "sobering experience."

U.S. may begin troop pullout in Thailand

BANGKOK (UPI) —The United States may begin withdrawing some of its 45,000 troops stationed in Thailand by the end of this month, Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn said today.

Thanom said at his weekly news conference he believed that talks with American embassy and U.S. military officials concerning the troop reduction would resume on Friday.

Asked when the first troops could be withdrawn, Thanom said, "I think by the end of this month."

He said the talks had been delayed by the absence from Bangkok of Lt. Gen. Kriangsak Chamananda, deputy chief of staff of the Supreme Command.

"The two parties will consider the troop reduction step by step," Thanom said.

The American troop pullout from Thailand became feasible with the Aug. 15 U.S. bomb halt over Cambodia. Most of the air strikes had been carried out from bases in Thailand.

Thanom said the first units to depart would be those that came to Thailand from South Vietnam when the United States withdrew from that country in March under terms of the Jan. 27 Vietnam ceasefire agreement.

Along with the 45,000 servicemen—most of them Air Force personnel—stationed in Thailand, the United States maintains about 500 warplanes here including a fleet of B52 bombers.

Thanom conceded that the U.S. withdrawal would have "a great deal of impact" on the Thai economy. "They have spent a lot of money here," the prime minister said of U.S. servicemen.

But Thanom said that "not all" the Americans would be pulled out. An undetermined number will remain under the security charter of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), he said.

"There will be no total withdrawal," Thanom said. "It (troop strength) will be reduced step by step in accordance with the situation in this region and the security of Thailand."

American forces are stationed at seven airbases across Thailand.

U.S. jury files 25 charges against 4 in prison escape

SAN FRANCISCO — Conspiracy and harboring a fugitive are among 25 charges levied Tuesday by a federal grand jury here against four persons in the escape of Ronald Wayne Beaty from the California Institute for Men at Chino last Oct. 6.

Named in the indictment were Jean S. Hobson, 45, her son Bruce, 23, formerly of Mountain View, Morton Newman, 30, formerly of Menlo Park, and Robert A. Seabock, 22, formerly of Palo Alto.

Mrs. Hobson and Seabock are in custody in San Bernardino, awaiting trial on first degree murder charges in the fatal shooting of prison guard Jesus Sanchez during the escape.

Beaty, who was recaptured Dec. 11 on the San Francisco Bay Bridge in the company of Mrs. Hobson, later pleaded guilty in a San Bernardino Superior Court and turned state's evidence.

In the story he told of his escape, he named each of the persons indicted — all identified by authorities as members of the revolutionary group Venceremos, headquartered in Palo Alto. Mrs. Hobson, according to Beaty's story, was involved in the escape, and later went with him to a home in Gilroy where they linked up with her son.

He alleged that Bruce Hobson took him to a mountain cabin hideaway where the escapee stayed about one month. When he moved from the cabin, Beaty told a court May 7, he went to Seabock's home in Palo Alto, where Newman assisted with 24-hour "guard duty."

While in the Seabock residence, Beaty related, there were pistols, fragmentation grenades, smoke bombs, and what looked like a machine gun lined up on the kitchen table, ready for quick use in case police showed up.

Seabock was arrested shortly after Beaty's recapture while police were searching his home. The search itself became an object of contention, but during it Palo Alto police reported finding a partially-assembled pipe bomb, ammunition, an automatic weapon, and sulphuric acid.

In the indictment by the grand jury, the four were also charged with being accessories and aiding and abetting a felon in possession of a firearm.

During a subsequent trial for Bruce Douglas Burt and the young woman he married during the trial, Andrea Holman Burt, both convicted of participating in the escape-murder, Beaty was repeatedly attacked by the defense as an "inveterate liar." But the two were found guilty, and they now await sentencing on the second-degree murder decision.

Trial for Mrs. Hobson and Seabock is due in September, while U.S. Atty. James L. Browning said Newman and Hobson have indicated they will surrender to authorities.

Summation scheduled in murder trial

ONTARIO — Following rebuttal arguments by the prosecution Tuesday, final arguments were scheduled today in the trial of three inmates at California Institution for Men at Chino, accused of murdering a fellow convict last Dec. 17.

After final arguments in West Valley Superior Court here, the case could be sent to jury today.

In testimony during the trial it was alleged that Rudolph Cadena was killed as part of a conflict between two Mexican-American prison organizations, the Mexican Mafia and La Nuestra Familia. Defense attorneys earlier claimed that Frank Phillip Mendoza, Raymond L. Contreras, and Juan Figueroa Colon acted in self-defense and instinct after an alleged altercation between themselves and the victim.

Prosecutors have claimed there was no such altercation, and of five CIM inmates textifying in the trial, only one said he saw the victim attack one of the defendants before the slaying.

L.V. dehorns bond issue: park plans revised

LA VERNE — The City Council disposed of the last obstacles in the way of its $972,000 parks and recreation bond issue Tuesday night by unanimously approving the location of two new parks.

The two sites had been a bone of contention up to now but after a presentation by the Parks and Recreation Commission at the joint meeting, the council decided to go along with the proposal.

One of the new parks will be located on about six acres of property owned by Floyd Bunnelle north of Base Line Road and West of Wheeler Avenue, just south of a site orginally proposed in La Verne Heights.

The other location will be about 5½ acres on the corner of Wheeler Avenue and Third Street which is now vacant.

The council had objected to the La Verne Heights location mostly because it involved acquisition of a home which the owners were reluctant to sell, according to Ray Kaldenbach, director of the parks and recreation department. The realigned location leaves out that home.

Plans call for the establishment of an activity building, landscaping, a picnic and play area including a tot lot, and lighting, for a total cost of about $190,000.

The council also had second thoughts about the site proposed at Wheeler Avenue. Councilmen pointed out that the park would be only two blocks away from Kuns Park and suggested the possibility of expanding that park rather than developing a new one.

But Wayne Romanick, a Cal Poly landscape architectural student, who had drawn up the plans and made the presentation Tuesday on behalf of the commission, argued that the two parks would serve different purposes.

He said Kuns Park would remain a "passive" type of location whereas the new park would be heavy on activities. It would include a large play area, a multipurpose court, a large concrette slab for volley ball and badminton games, and a larger activity cener.

Acquisition and development cost of the Wheeler park is estimated at $240,000.

Also approved by the council as part of the bond issue were improvements for three existing parks.

These include a $250,000 community building at Los Flores park, lighting of the ball fields at Pelota Park and restrooms and other improvements at Kuns Prk.

The council and the commission agreed on the need to proceed quickly with the establishment of a citizens' committee to help explain and promote the bond issue set for Nov. 6.

This is expected to begin next month.

County fires keep firemen hopping

SAN DIMAS — County firemen Tuesday afternoon put out a three-acre brush fire north of Puddingstone Lake and then rushed to the scene of another fire near Covina Boulevard and east of the 210 Freeway overpass.

The causes of both fires are under investigation.

A total of seven engine companies and two camp crews fought the three-acre blaze which apparently started in the area south of Cannon Avenue between San Dimas and Walnut avenues.

Firemen fought the blaze for two hours before it was brought under control. The second brush fire burned less than a half an acre.

San Dimas meeting canceled

SAN DIMAS — The third week in August is apparently a bad time to schedule meetings in San Dimas.

Both the Bonelli Park Commission and the city Parks and Recreation Commission had to cancel their scheduled meetings Tuesday afternoon and evening because both commissions didn't have enough members attending for a quorum.

Chaffey College hires seven, delays project

ALTA LOMA — The Chaffey College board of trustees Tuesday hired seven teachers for the 1973-74 school year but held off on accepting a bid for remodeling of the student career counseling center because one of two bids received was too high.

Those were the only two items on the agenda.

Teachers employed are Mrs. Dorothy Bordorano and Mrs. Lillian Torres, nursing instructors; Mrs. Louise Agos, a vocational nursing instructor; Mrs. Grace Arndt, a nursing assistant instructor (a new progrom at Chaffey); John McGee, an instructor in corrections; Mrs. Beverly Benjamin, an instructor in coordinator of early childhood development; and Eddie O. Smith, an instructor in coordinator of fire science.

The student center bids will be considered at a future board meeting.

In the absence of vacationing Chaffey president, Dr. Stanley Warburton, associate superintendent Kenneth Hinrichsen represented the administration at the board meeting.

Fight leads to arrest of 3 women

ONTARIO — An argument and an ensuing altercation with police led to the arrest Tuesday of two Ontario women and another from Cucamonga on charges of battery, disturbance of the peace and resisting and interfering with arrests.

Police said an argument and a fight erupted between Zelda Rae Valentine, 30, of 1513 E. Fourth St. and Susie L. Montecino, 44, of 914 N. Calaveras Ave. at about 4 p.m. in the vicinity of the Montecino residence.

All were booked into West End Jail following the incident.

Welfare Isle to be renamed for Roosevelt

NEW YORK (UPI) —Welfare Island, a two-mile-long strip of land in the East River off Manhattan, which has had four names since the Dutch settlers first called it "Hog Island," has been renamed "Franklin D. Roosevelt Island."

At present, the 147-acre island is the site of two hospitals, but New York City planners are developing a 5,000-family town on the island, expected to cost at least $300 million. The hospitals will remain.

Dutch colonists named the land "Varriken (Hog) Island" because they used it for a swine pasture. When the English took control of New Amsterdam, they renamed it "Perkins Island." Later, a private owner changed the name to "Blackwell's Island" after his family.

It was acquired by the city in 1828 for $52,500 and became the site for the city's prison, workhouse and insane asylum. In 1921, the Board of Aldermen changed the name to Welfare Island.

Mayor John V. Lindsay made the new name official Monday, but said an official ceremony will be held in a few weeks when a memorial to President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be unveiled on the island's southern end.

Prime rate at new high

NEW YORK (UPI) —Big businesses borrowing money from some major banks will be charged 9¼ per cent interest— the highest prime rate on record.

The previous record, 9¼ per cent, was set only last week.

The prime rate is the rate banks charge big corporate customers for commercial and business loans. Although the prime rate may affect other interest rates, fluctuations in rates for consumer loans usually lag far behind the prime.

Economists who favor higher interest rates say it will slow down the superheated economy and hopefully help to stabilize prices. But Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, said the rising interest rates are bad for the economy. He called on President Nixon to halt or roll them back.

"In 1969, Congress gave President Nixon the power to not only stop interest rate increases but the power to roll them back and allocate resources to credit-starved sectors of the economy," Patman said. "He has the power over the Federal Reserve and he should act now. His powers must be used immediately if we are to escape the current economic crisis."

The Federal Reserve Board last week raised its discount rate—the rate on short-term loans it makes to banks—from 7 to a record 7.5 per cent to cut down on lending as a curb on inflation.

Among the bigger banks which upped prime interest rates were Franklin National Bank of New York, Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, Union Bank of California, Bank of California and Continental International Bank & Trust Co.

Won't race against pal, quits event

Dear Walt: My father and mother are mad at me because I will not run in the Labor Day races. I have made this decision because the coach planned to put me in exactly the same races that Ethan, my best friend, will run races in. I asked him not to do this, but he said I would either run these races or nothing, so I took nothing. Do you think I was right or wrong? —Bill

Dear Bill: I think you have a right to decide whom you will compete with, and if you decided that competing with Ethan on the track might sideline friendship, I think the decision is right. (To me a true friend is of inestimably more value than the cheers of a fickle crowd or the sparkle of a cheap trophy.)

But I wonder if you gave Ethan a chance to express his own views on your withdrawal from the race before you announced it to the coach? It may be that he was less than flattered by your decision not to compete against him ("Oh, he's sure I'd lose, huh?) If you haven't discussed the situation fully yet, it's time you did. — Walt

Dear Ele: If you are pretty certain that someone is always cheating at cards where you're working, but there is no money on the game (only cokes, etc.), would you say anything or just let it go? —Pauline

Dear Pauline: Personally I would not continue to play in a game with a crooked player. Without the element of total chance, a card game is a senseless affair. I suuggest you speak privately to the culprit. Your message: "I think there's some cheating going on in the game. I'd be grateful if you'd help put a stop to it. I know some families think cheating lends spice to a no-cash game, but it just destroys the sense of it for me. How about you? . . ."—Ele

Dear Ele and Walt: How often should a couple kiss in an evening after they have been going for over one year? — Rationed

Dear Rationed: After dating for a year, the couple should be able to discuss how far they intend to let their lovemaking progress. If they don't want to permit full sexual relations, then each needs to indicate the point at which her-his self-control wavers. This knowledge can then guide the couple in deciding how prolonged and frequent their kisses should be. —Ele and Walt

Dear Ele and Walt: My friend is always criticizing his family to me. I listen to him because I think it's probably good for him to let off his steam. If he asks my opinion, I try to turn things back so he thinks more about it himself. When I think he is being unfair, I tell him so but don't push it.

The other day my mom overheard us talking, and she told me later that I am taking a big chance letting him involve me in family secrets, and that an outsider almost always ends up in trouble in this sort of case. I haven't noticed any bad vibes when I got to his house, but do you think my mom is right?—Kit

Dear Kit: You seem to have two pluses going for you. (1) You are bright enough to ask questions that encourage thought, rather than make snap judgments. (2) Apparently he is not using your rap as support in home arguments. As long as these two guidelines hold, we think you can safely continue to counsel your pal. He's fortunate to have a chum like you!—Ele and Walt

Dear Walt: If you had to introduce two people of about the same sex and same age who tend to be jealous of anyone else you knew, how would you pick the one to mention first? — Heard Bells Once

Dear HBO: I' smile at my two prima donas and say, "I'll give you alphabetical billing. "Alex, I'd like you to meet Jamie. Jamie, this is Alex." — Walt.

Minister says Englishmen poor lovers

LEEK, England (UPI) — Englishmen should be given lessons in love to make up for their amazing ignorance in sexual techniques, the Rev. Michael Pollitt, dean of Leek, said recently in his parish magazine.

"This selfishness in lovemaking is demonstrated partly in an unwillingness to listen and an inability to cope with problems, and partly in the Englishman's ignorance about sexual techniques in marriage," he said.

Obituaries

Helen Budd

CLAREMONT — Graveside services were held Monday at Forest Lawn Glendale for Miss Helen Budd of Claremont Manor. She died Aug. 14 at the age of 91.

A World War I army nurse, she served in France at Bagoilles Sur Meuse, Base Hospital, Unit 46. Upon return to the United States, she attended Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., earning a degree in religious education.

Miss Budd worked as a director of religious education serving various churches in Illinois, North Dakota and Washington. Later she became principal of the Weekday School of Religious Education in Covington, Ky., where she served for 11 years.

Miss Budd moved to California upon retirement, settling in Claremont, where she was an active member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Republican Women's Club and the Claremont Women's Club.

She is survived by a sister, Miss Beulah Budd of Claremont Manor, and by another sister in Oregon.

Mae S. Unangst

POMONA — Miss Mae S. Unangst of 29B Calle Aragon, Leisure World, Laguna Hills, died Monday morning at her home following a one-month illness.

Miss Unangst was born in Nazareth, Pa. She moved to Claremont from that city in 1960 and lived in Claremont until April of 1972 when she moved to Leisure World.

She is survived by a brother, Elwood J. of Nazareth, Pa.

Private entombment was made today in the Pomona Mausoleum.

Memorial services will be announced later.

Nearly under control

Firefighters gain upper hand in wilderness blazes

By United Press International

Aided by overcast skies and higher humidity, firefighters gained an upper hand today in curbing the West's worst wilderness blazes in history.

They have charred nearly 200,000 acres of timber and grassland and caused losses of timber easily surpassing $70 million.

Sleeping and eating in shifts, more than 10,000 Forest Service personnel and volunteers from across the nation manned lines at 13 big fires in California, Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Utah and Nevada.

Most of the blazes have been controlled or contained today. However, a few are still blazing out of control.

Cool Temperature

Forest Rangers said temperatures have started to cool and clouds formed over the northwest to help firemen. Showers and thundershowers were forecast for eastern Idaho and central Montana.

Half of the 10,000 firefighters were battling six blazes in Northern California forests.

At Red Bluff in Tehama County, the Inskip Grade fire blackened 16,000 acres. It was declared contained at midday Tuesday but jumped out of control across the south fork of Battle Creek. Residents living south and west of the town of Manton were asked to evacuate their homes.

Near Susanville in Lassen County, winds up to 30 miles an hour whipped flames over 20,000 acres before being contained.

In the Eldorado National Forest east of Placerville, containment of the forest fire which has consumed 9,000 acres is expected.

U.S. Highway 50, closed Saturday when the blaze erupted, was expected to reopen today. It is a scenic major artery between Sacramento, the state capital, and South Lake Tahoe.

Women firefighters were pressed into service at the Eldorado blaze.

"It's exciting and strange," said Sherri Hunter, 23, a firefighter from Klamath Falls, Ore., "one minute the fire is roaring after you. The next minute, you go to wash your face and people start whistling at you."

Another big fire burned out of control in the deepest river gorge in the United States—Hell's Canyon on the Oregon-Idaho border — where winds fanned flames toward the lowest spot in the 5,500-foot deep canyon.

Six major fires blazed unchecked in Montana including the Tri Creek blaze and Caribou Mountain fire near the Canadian border. However, the blazes which blackened 33,000 acres around Miles City, Mont., are nearly controlled.

Hurricane kills 2 children, ruins hundreds of homes

CAMPECHE, Mexico (UPI) —Hurricane Brenda churned through southeast Mexico Tuesday with winds up to 112 miles an hour, unleashing powerful rains and floods that killed two children and washed away hundreds of homes.

The fierce winds later fell off sharply and the storm appeared to be blowing itself out.

The greatest damage from Brenda's heavy rains and winds appeared to be centered around this capital city just below the Yucatan peninsula.

Flood waters cascaded through the streets of Campeche and collapsed straw shacks. About 2,000 people were reported homeless after the storm passed.

Children killed

Authorities said two children in the city were swept away and carried to their deaths in the churning flood waters as Brenda approached.

The winds and rain also knocked out all communications with Ciudad del Carmen, an island city of about 10,000.

Brenda, the season's second hurricane, lost strength late in the afternoon. By 6 p.m., the U.S. National Hurricane Center in Miami reported the winds had fallen to 40 mph or below and announced there would be no futher advisories on the storm.

Headed South

Meterorlogical experts in Mexico City said the storm was headed south toward the jungle state of Chiapas, on the border with Guatemala.

Letter bombs arrive five days in a row

LONDON (UPI) —A letter bomb disguised as a packaged book was delivered by a postman today to headquarters of the ruling Conservative Party but was discovered and plunged into a pail of water to await bomb disposal men.

It was the fifth day of a bombing campaign involving letter bombs and small incendiary bombs in London's big department stores. Today the scare extended to Luton, 32 miles north of London, where police found six bulky suspected letter bombs mailed from the Republic of Ireland.

Police said they believed the bombs to be the work of either Irish extremists involved with the Irish Republican Army (IRA) or anarchists trying to launch an urban guerrilla war in Britain.

London police today defused a new incendiary device planted this morning in a major London department store, the 15th found since Saturday. This one was found in the fabric department of Dickins and Jones department store on Regent Street.

Merger of 2 teacher groups asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States' three million elementary and high school teachers will be asked to support a merger of the National Education Association and the American Federal of Teachers, the co-chairman of a teacher's group said Tuesday.

"Teachers cannot tolerate much longer this fighting among teachers," said Marge Beach, Oakland, of the National Coalition for Teacher Unity.

Her group, which claims credit for bringing the two national organizations to the negotiating table, is composed of officers and members of both groups and of their affiliates at state and local levels.

The 1.4 million-member NEA and the 400,000-member AFT have agreed to talks sometime after Sept. 1 to pave the way toward a single teacher organization. Not all teachers are members of the two groups.

U.S. presence has Thais in dilemma

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When the last American B52 exploded its last bomb over Cambodia, the result in neighboring Thailand was a sort of vacuum.

There are 45,000 American troops at seven bases in Thailand, and the Thais want to know more about their intentions for the future, or rather the intentions of the American government in Washington which they feel has not always taken them into its confidence.

Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn, the head of Thailand's military government, has declared the U.S. forces must remain so long as there is doubt that North Vietnam will live up to its cease-fire pledges in South Vietnam.

If, in the meantime, there should be a communist takeover in Cambodia and Laos, then he believes the U.S. should remain in Thailand indefinitely.

Against the government view are the dissenters who believe the American presence creates a threat to the peace of Thailand and believe it should be reduced as quickly as possible.

Among them is Thanat Khoman, the former foreign minister, who declares that eventually Thailand must make its accomodation with North Vietnam and with China and that the continuing presence of the American bases only makes Thailand a target for new communist aggression.

Thai university students, who are proving themselves an unexpectedly powerful political force, also are demanding quick removal of the American forces.

Between those who want the U.S. forces to leave and those who want them to stay are others who suspect that a U.S. doublecross is in the making. They fear that Thailand, after serving for years as the United States' most faithful southeast Asian ally, is about to be cut loose by the United States in the interests of its own global strategy.

In preparation for possible new external threats Thanom has strengthened Thailand's borders and has asked the United States for new assurances of continued military aid.

He also has new worries at home.

Thailand along with Burma used to be a primary exporter of rice to other nations of southeast Asia.

Burma no longer exports and Thailand is in the grip of a three-year drought. She has been forced to turn down orders from Cambodia, the Philippines and others for whom she has been a traditional supplier.

The drought has had an accompanying effect on the nation's farmers. Many have had to borrow, putting up their small land holdings as collateral. The result has been that many poor farmers have now become impoverished tenants.

Communist-led insurgency in the northeast and along the border with Cambodia and Malya continues to be a problem. The insurgents are not believed to number more than about 6,000 but they are insistent. China has toned down its broadcast support for the insurgents but has been vague about cutting off material support.

Whether they are led from China or from North Vietnam is a matter of debate.

These problems, plus the activities of Thailand's 100,000 students, plus new union activity among the nation's workers contribute to the uncertainty of the leaders in Bangkok.

Says Russ scientist

Friendship with Reds 'dangerous'

MOSCOW (UPI) —Physicist Andrei D. Sakharov, under pressure from Soviet authorities to halt his dissident activities, called foreign newsmen to his home today and warned that Western friendship with the Soviet Union could be "dangerous."

Sakharov, one of the fathers of the Soviet hydrogen bomb and leader of the small dissident movement here, was called in last Thursday by a Soviet prosecutor and warned that his activities had assumed an "anti-Soviet character."

His unusual news conference at his home clearly was intended as Sakharov's response to the warning.

Friends of the balding, 52-year-old scientist have expressed concern recently that authorities may be preparing to place him in prison or an insane asylum.

In a relaxed, 90-minute conversation with the newsmen, Sakharov spoke out against what he termed the anti-democratic nature of the Soviet system and talked of pressure brought against his family because of his activities.

At one point in the conversation, Sakharov said Western reapproachment with the Soviet Union could be dangerous if the West acquiesces in the lack of democratization in the Soviet Union.

"It wouldn't solve any world problem," he said. "It would mean simply capitulation in front of our real or exaggerated strength, or it would mean an attempt to get from us gas and oil, neglecting all other aspects of the problem."

This was an indirect reference to American, Japanese and other foreign business interest in striking deals with the Soviets for development of oil and gas resources here.

Sakharo is founder of the unofficial Committee for Human Rights, a small group of intellectuals who have sought to defend the rights of dissidents put on trial or sent to asylums.

Alioto urges controls over grain exports

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco Mayor Joseph N. Alioto Monday predicted food shortages and inflation would result from the unrestrained selling of American grain crops overseas.

The Democratic mayor urged Senator John Tunney, D-Calif., to relay to Congress, "the urgent need to provide some protection for the American consumer in the form of export licensing controls or some other device for equitably allocating available grain supplies.

Tunney held a day-long hearing for the Sub-committee on Consumer Affairs, the third such hearing to be held in California.

Alioto, former head of the California Rice Growers Association said that aggressive foreign buyers are "plundering" American grain crops with the active encouragement of the federal government.

This will result in "a new wave of rising prices, increased food shortages, and fierce inflation in the coming months," Alioto predicted.

Foreign buyers have bought up almost 3 billion bushels of wheat, corn and soy beans, Alioto said, and "the amount left for American consumers has plunged to a dangerous new low."

The San Francisco mayor, noted that some export controls and licensing would be in the best interest of the American farmer. "The farmer has a great deal at stake with rising inflation," he said.

"It strongly impacts on him through spiraling wage costs which he is often forced to absorb."

Alioto said export controls would help restrain domestic prices, but the return to farmers would be "healthy, but no runaway."

Australia, Japan are seeking more flexible foreign policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Australia and Japan, two of America's staunchest allies in Asia, both have advised President Nixon that they want to remain close friends but that the United States no longer is the dominant superpower in their national lives.

In separate meetings, Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka made it clear to Nixon their governments are pursuing a more independent foreign policy than Canberra or Tokyo have done in the past.

"What we wish to do, what we are doing, is to see that the official United States view is not the only view ever considered by an Australian government," Whitlam said after conferring in Washington with Nixon.

If Tanaka said it a bit softer, his message was just as clear.

After citing major political, financial and trade problems confronting the world, Tanaka said, "In enterprises of this scope, not even the United States, with all its might, can unilaterally solve the problems, nor should we expect it to do so."

American officials directly involved with Japanese affairs interpreted that as a blunt declaration that the United States should no longer expect automatic Japanese support for any future made-in-Washington solutions to international problems.

Both Whitlam and Tanaka went out of their way to emphasize they still value highly their relations with the United States. But Whitlam pointedly noted that if U.S. officials did not like the changes occurring in Asia, they had no one to blame but themselves.

"The initiative for these changes came not, of course, from Australia but from the United States," Whitlam said. "These initiatives —President Nixon's initiatives —have created a new reality for our region. Part of Australia's task has been to ratify the new reality."

The United States publicly supports decisions of Australia and Japan to establish diplomatic relations with Peking.

The U.S. position is that those developments were in tandem with Washington policy since Washington and Peking recently established liaison offices in each other's capital. But American officials feel that Whitlam and Tanaka granted diplomatic recognition to Peking much quicker than necessary.

"We do not wish to grandstand or thumb our noses at the United States," Whitlam told a National Press Club audience. "When our interests do not coincide and when we disagree with the United States we shall, as a good friend should, say so firmly and frankly, usually — and preferably —in private."

Whitlam stressed that while Australia is interested in improving relations with China, it does not wish to do so at the expense of U.S. friendship.

Barrier urged to foil Bay Area suicides

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A University of California researcher who has conducted an extensive study of Golden Gate Bridge suicides says there is a compelling need for a barrier to prevent people from jumping.

Dr. Richard H. Selden, of the university's School of Public Health, said it is a "myth" to believe that people prevented from jumping off the bridge will find another way to commit suicide.

"That simply isn't so," he said. "Of the officially confirmed number of suicide attempters who have been prevented from leaping from the bridge, less than four per cent have gone on to commit suicide."

A controversial "suicide barrier" has been proposed to stop the practice which has taken at least 482 known lives since the bridge was completed in 1937. The figure is more than for any other structure in the world.

Seiden pointed to the success of several other barriers built to cut down on suicides.

"The Empire State Building in New York City was the location of an outbreak of suicides in which 16 persons killed themselves by jumping from the tower during the period 1931-1947," he said.

An observation tower fence was constructed that "prevented further suicides from the tower."

Seiden feels the most relevant example of a successful barrier is the Arroyo Seco Bridght in Pasadena, which spans a ravine near the Rose Bowl. Eighty people jumped to their deaths from the Arroyo Seco Bridge during 1933-1936.

The barrier was constructed after "considerable public and journalistic criticism," Seiden said. "In the ensuing years there has been only one suicide from that location."

Seiden feels the Golden Gate has become a suicide landmark "with a fatal mystique that draws the suicide-prone."

The nature of suicidal fantasies seem highly specific and tied to a particular method," he said.

Seiden considers the "final source" and "true authorities" on bridge suicides to be the handful of persons who have jumped and lived to tell about it.

Dr. David Rosen, a psychiatrist, interviewed the survivors and all recommended the construction of a suicide barrier.

"If there had been a barrier on the bridge, I would have gone home and forgotten about it," said one.

The four survivors were indeed lucky. The jump into the icy water 220 feet below is almost always fatal.

Seiden and Kathy Tomlinson, who helped in the study, both feel the suicide figure is much greater than the official count.

U.S. panel lifts ban on inmate interviews

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A three-judge federal panel has ordered a reversal of a 1971 ban on inmate interviews and ruled that California prisoners have the constitutional right to ask for and obtain interviews by newsmen.

The panel ordered the state Department of Corrections to propose a new regulation to replace the present one that bans interviews by reporters. The decision did say, however, that if prison officials felt an interview with a certain inmate posed "a clear and present danger to prison security, it may be denied."

The court also said reporters do not have the right to get an interview with a specific inmate.

The court cited a U.S. Supreme Court ruling which said "the press enjoys no greater right to access to news sources than the average citizen."

The ban on interviews became effective Aug. 23, 1971, two days after an alleged escape attempt at San Quentin prison left two inmates, including George Jackson, and three prison guards dead.

In their ruling, the judges said inmates lose some of their rights when imprisoned, but "face to face interviews with media representatives are a vital element in prisoners' rights under the First Amendment."

The decision was made by U.S. District Judges Spencer Williams and William East and U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Oliver D. Hamlin, Jr.

Four bills aimed at air polluters okayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly has passed a package of four bills imposing tougher penalties on polluters in the South Coast Air Basin.

One bill by Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, would consolidate the six local air pollution districts in the Los Angeles area into a new regional commission with sweeping powers to crack down on smog makers. The bill was sent to the Senate on a 60-0 vote.

The other three measures cleared the Assembly by similar margins Monday.

Another Moretti bill would increase fines which can be levied against industries fouling the air from the current $500 maximum per day to a $10,000 maximum for repeated violators.

Two bills by Assemblyman Walter Ingalls, D-Riverside, would make public the names of the ten worst polluters in smog-ridden districts and require inspection of antismog devices on 1966-70 motor vehicles.

Might have been sticky situation

UNITY, Wis. (UPI) — A rubber container fell off a truck, burst and spilled 37,000 pounds of liquid glue on Wisconsin Route 13 near Unity Thursday.

The road was closed for several hours while workers cleaned up the glue before it reached the Eau Pleine River nearby.

Cost of Vietnam War only tip of iceberg

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although the Indochina War is sputtering to a halt after eight years and $110 billion, the hidden and greater part of the full costs of the war have only just begun.

Those who anticipate war for social welfare uses should note the debt interest and veterans benefits stemming from the Civil War came to more than four times the actual cost of the fighting.

In fact, the books on the Civil War are not closed yet. Although the last veteran, a 117-year-old Confederate, died in 1959, 545 widows and children of both Confederate and Union soldiers are still receiving pensions from the Veterans Administration.

The cost of those pensions is now a paltry sum compared to that for veterans of recent wars. These older pensions amounted to $818,000 last year, according to the VA.

The last veteran of the Vietnam War, however, will undoubtedly still be alive in the 2050s and the last dependent might survive into the 22nd Century if, as in the past, some aged veterans take teenage brides.

The books on the American Revolution were not closed until the last dependent, Phoebe M. Palmeter of Brookfield, N.Y., died at the age of 90 in 1911 — 130 years after Lord Cornwallis surrendered his Redcoats to George Washington at Yorktown, Va. The total cost of that war came to $255 million of which 60 per cent was interest on the debt and pensions for veterans.

Of the 14.4 billion total cost of the Civil War (not including sums spent on those ubiquitous monuments) 78 per cent was debt interest and veterans benefits.

The veterans really got organized after the Spanish-American War. The total cost was $5.9 billion of which only 5 per cent was for the fighting and 1.4 per cent for debt interest, since that 13-week war came cheap and was quickly paid off. But veterans' benefits took up the remainder, or almost 20 times more than the military costs of the war.

Some 3,000 veterans and 31,000 widows and children of Spanish-American War veterans still draw VA checks at a cost of 35.8 million last year.

The books on the more recent wars are still wide open, of course. To date World War II veterans benefits and debt interest have cost about $160 billion — less so far than the $315 billion spent to fight the war but considerably more than the $110 billion military cost of the Vietnam War.

Altogether the VA mails pension and compensation checks each month to 5 million persons, or one in every 40 Americans.

While the Indochina War fades into American history, the Veterans Administration thrives with $12.2 billion budgeted for the fiscal year that began July 1 — half for pension payments, one-quarter for medical care and the remaining quarter for college payments and other educational costs of veterans.

While the Indochina WQAR FADES INTO American history, the Veterans Administration thives with 12.2 billion budgeted for the fiscal year that began July 1 —half for pension payments, one-quarter sor medical care and the remaining quarter for college payments and other educational costs of veterans.

Retirement home names new director

CLAREMONT — Norman R. Bottom has been elected to the board of directors at Pilgrim Place.

Bottom is a retired U.S. Army lieutenant colonel whose service has ranged from intelligence and language assignments in Germany, Japan, and Korea to that of a senior instructor in the joint ROTC program at the Claremont Colleges in military and national security and intelligence.

Bottom and his wife have been living in Claremont since his retirement. They have a son, Norman Jr. of Huntington Beach, and a daughter, Mrs. Sidney Pelston of Pacific Palisades.

Jury system ruled illegal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A Municipal Court judge ruled Tuesday that the method of selecting juries in his jurisdiction is unconstitutional because Mexican-Americans are systematically excluded.

The decision by Judge Irwin J. Nebron affected only the five criminal cases which were consolidated for the challenge to the jury selection system in the central city area.

"No matter how you slice it, there's just not the slightest question in this judge's mind (that) the way the system works, the end result is that Mexican-Americans are being systematically excluded, perhaps unintentionally."

But in another facet of the case, the judge said there was no evidence that blacks were similarly excluded from the panels from which juries are picked.

The ruling—if upheld on appeal—meant that the five defendants cannot be tried by Municipal Court juries in the central district as presently constituted.

Nebron said he did not know why Mexican-Americans were excluded under the present system.

Pomona council appoints stand-in for bandmaster

POMONA — A muscian from Tujunga, who started playing with the Pomona Concert Band 18 years ago at the age of 13, will serve as acting band conductor Oct. 1 to next June 30.

The City Council appointed James D. Lytthans, 31, as a temporary replacement for G. Stanton Selby.

Selby, conductor since the band was organized in 1948, will be on a sabbatical leave from his teaching post at Mt. San Antonio College to research Portuguese folk music in Portugual and southern Spain.

The appointment will pay Lytthans $100 a month. The regular salary during the summer concert season is $750 a month.

Lytthans, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Lytthans, 199 E. La Verne Ave., is first clarinetist with the Claremont Symphony Orchestra.

He is a graduate of Ganesha High School, MSAC and in 1965 received a bachelor of music education degree with honors from USC.

Lytthans also holds a master's degree and this summer is working at the Idyllwild School of Music and Arts. He also is a Ph.D. candidate at USC.

He played with the Pomona band from 1955 on a regular basis until his graduation from USC. He was solo clarinetist with the group for a number of years and several times was guest conductor.

Lytthans for a number of years was director of instrumental music at Mount Gleason Junior High School in Sunland.

EDUCATION IN EVIL

All it takes is a little coaching from the big baddie, Fagin, to turn Oliver from an innocent youth to a high-class pickpocket. Rehearsing the rehearsing of Oliver in the art is Gary Hand as Fagin, at right, with Oliver, Kim Parks, on his lap. At left Fagin's ace student, Artful Dodger, portrayed by Gabrielle Rampick, watches on with a fellow gang member, played by Kent Parks.

Woman ruled guilty in plot to kill mate

POMONA — A Superior Court jury, deliberating less than a day, found Mrs. Ann Marie Eaton, 37, of Valinda guilty of murder for hire Tuesday afternoon.

Judge Glenn M. Pfau set probation hearing and sentencing for Mrs. Eaton for 9 a.m. Sept. 14.

Mrs. Eaton was accused by Deputy Dist. Atty. John Anderson of attempting to hire a professional killer for $1,500 last January to kill her husband so that she could collect the insurance money on his life.

The "killer" who contacted her turned out to be an undercover deputy sheriff who taped her offer, and then arranged for her arrest.

Mrs. Eaton, in her defense contended that the entire story was a hoax. She said she had made it all up to frighten away another woman who was interested in her husband.

Soliciting commission of murder carries a maximum of five years in the state prison and a $5,000 fine.

Planners get request for house moves

POMONA — Requests to move two houses into Pomona will be considered by the Pomona Planning Commission when it meets tonight at 8 in the City Council chambers.

Edward Reese, the applicant, proposes to move single-family structures onto adjoining lots at 1368 and 1372 S. Main St.

In another item, planners will consider a request by James H. Jackson to operate an upholstery business at 1712 Manor Circle.

Prior to the meeting, commissioners will be taken on a field trip around the city.

Foothill players to stage 'Oliver!' for four nights

POMONA — Tonight at 8, a small boy led astray will return to decency, his debaucher will suffer justice, and the world will sing in joy at the happy outcome of high drama when the county-sponsored Foothill Productions' presentation of the musical play "Oliver!" opens here for a four-day run.

Playing through Saturday night, the show will be presented in the Pomona Unified School District Auditorium, 800 S. Garey Ave. The box office fronts on Ninth Street at the south side of the building.

Directing the Lionel Bart adaptation of the Charles Dickens classic is Ross Clark, who played in the original Broadway production as well as in the touring company version. Clark held the role of youthful criminal Artful Dodger. He is assisted in the production staff by Fred Graff, directing the orchestra, Rey O'Day, choreographer, and Carlice Moultrie, vocal director.

Cast members for the production are drawn principally from San Dimas and La Verne. Leading characters from the San Dimas area include Gary Hand as villain Fagin, Gabrielle Rampick, Artful Dodger, Kim Parks as hero Oliver, and Millicewy Smith as sweet heroine Nancy.

Supporting cast members are La Verne residents Julie Mishles as Mrs. Bedwin, Ellen Brister as Mrs. Sowerbert, Jan Marie Love as Bet, and Fagin's gang members Lori Swank and Mathew Snyder.

Set in London slums in the 1850s, the tale follows Oliver's progress from a boys' workhouse through his accidental membership in Fagin's gang, arrest, and eventual adoption by a kindly old gentlman. Each experience is punctuated by song.

Ticket prices are $2 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under. This is the second season for Foothill Productions, a joint project by the cities of Pomona, La Verne, and San Dimas under the sponsorship of the Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation Department.

Child's match causes $7,000 house damage

POMONA — A 3-year-old child placed a lighted match on a bed at the home of Mary Moore, 564 Edwin St., Tuesday night and the result was a blaze which gutted the bedroom, causing $7,000 damage.

Most of the fire damage was to the south bedroom of the house but extensive heat and smoke damage was reported throughout the structure. Firemen arrived and put the fire out before it spread to other areas of the house.

The fire alarm was called in by a neighbor at 9:31 and firemen stayed at the scene until 11:40 p.m. with a crew of 15 men.

Psychiatrist's trial under way

POMONA — The trial of David G. Zappella, a former Pomona psychiatrist charged with 17 counts of Medi-Cal frauds here three years ago, got under way today with the selection of a jury.

Attorneys estimated the trial before Superior Court Judge Glenn M. Pfau will last about two weeks.

Zappella, who was executive director of the Tri-City Mental Health Authority here from 1961 to 1968, was accused of the violations in 1970. He now lives in San Diego.

Heirs receive settlement after Action Line inquiry

My two grandchildren were left $500 each in a will made by a friend of mine who passed away Feb. 11, 1970.

Each time we contact the attorney who is handling the estate to ask why the children haven't received their money, we always get the answer, "Next week," or the call is not returned.

I am enclosing a letter dated Aug. 13, 1970 in which the attorney states that "after the middle of September, we should be in a position to close out the estate." — H. I., Chino

Although we wrote to your attorney immediately upon receiving your letter to ask why the children hadn't received their money after three years, he didn't deign to reply.

You have informed us, though, that your grandchildren got their $500 each about a month later.

I had a back injury in February 1972 for which surgery was performed in March of the same year. I have not been able to do any work since. I applied for Social Security disability funds and was denied again. I asked for reconsideration and was denied again. Each application was answered in three or four months.

I have now had an application in for an appeal hearing since Feb. 9, 1973, and cannot find out when my hearing will be held, even after long distance calls to the hearing office in San Bernardino.

My question is, how long can they continue to deny me a hearing? It seems five months is long enough to gather information needed.

This has been an awful strain on my nerves. I have already had three ulcer surgeries. — H. H., Pomona.

The administration law judge in charge of Social Security's bureau of hearings and appeals in San Bernardino informs us that a hearing of your case will be scheduled shortly. To expedite matters, he will hear the case himself.

He wrote that part of your previous hearing file had been retired and you had been so informed. However, in his opinion, there is now sufficient information available to schedule another hearing.

Two months ago I ordered two pocket camera outfits and enclosed a check for $40.90. It was done through a sales promotion offer I received from the place where I send my film for developing.

Some time later I received and signed for one camera. I wonder why I received only one but thought perhaps it was shipped separately so waited a week or so before writing about it to the firm. I have received no reply.

To make matters worse, the camera I received and presented to my daughter on her 21st birthday did not work. I had to send it to Rivera to be taken care of under the warranty and still have not heard about it.

I am out $40.90 so far with no camera! — D. H., Claremont.

We focused on your problem by contacting the firm which does your developing in Santa Ana.

Our reply came from Pennsylvania. We were told that the import records in the firm's computer were incorrect with the result that you received one camera instead of two. You have since been mailed the second one.

You confirmed receipt of the second camera. We hope by now the first has been repaired and you and your daughter are having a snappy summer.

Four area families enter twins in county fair event

POMONA—Any contest judge with a tendency to double vision will be in deep trouble Sept. 16 when the Los Angeles County Fair holds its Twins Contest.

To date, four area families have entered their look-alikes and not-so-look-alikes in the Southland competition. The contest is an annual feature of the fair, which opens its 46th season Sept. 14 and continues through Sept. 30.

Tanya and James Agapay, 3, will be first-time entries in the most-alike, fraternal male-female division. They are the children of Terri Agapay, 1437 E. Seventh St., Ontario.

Twins Gail Ruth and Gaye Rebecca, 8, will be vying for top honors in the most-alike identical girls contest. They are the children of Richard and Lois Willimas, 5404 El Morado St., Montclair.

Another pair of first-time entrants are Michael Lance and Michele Dineen, 7, competing in the most-alike fraternal boy and girl division. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Porter, 15050 Monte Vista, Chino.

Another pair of twins competing in the most-alike girls contest are repeat entrants Tami Jo and Traci Anne Wheeler, 8. Their parents, Charles and Joanne Wheeler, 2112 Bloom Lane, La Verne, are entering the girls for the second time.

Completing each day's activities during the fair will be the Grandstand show, featuring—at no extra admission charge—the performers of the Polack Bros. Circus, and the championship cowboys and cowgirls of the Rodeo Cowboys Association Rodeo.

Nursery will hold school demonstration

CHINO — Staff members of the Pomona Community Co-Op Nursery School will conduct a demonstration nursery school at Value Fair, 12516 Central Ave., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Those with preschool children interested in nursery school participation are invited.

Applications for the fall term of the Pomona nursery school will be accepted. It offers a two-day or a three-day program, depending on the ages of the children. It will accept children up to kindergarten age.

International law vehicle for peace

At least two events in recent days have underscored — if any underscoring were needed — how close the world still is to the jungle.

At one extreme was the indiscriminate slaughter of airline passengers at the Athens airport by Arab terrorists.

At the other was the interception of a Lebanese airliner — "on the high seas," as it were — by Israeli jets in hopes of capturing Palestinian guerrilla leaders.

These are extremes, of course, and they are not the worst atrocities spawned by the Arab-Israel conflict, nor will they be the last. Yet between these extremes is a vast gray area of nonexistent or ill-defined or unenforceable international law.

It is in this area that a sovereign nation like France, for example, placing her own perceived security above any other consideration, can conduct a series of atmospheric atom bomb tests despite the strongest protests from the world community.

"Humankind's most ancient, most constant, most universal desire has been for peaceful order with justice among peoples and among nations," says Charles S. Rhyne. "Translating this desire from dream to reality is indeed humankind's greatest need."

Rhyne has done, more than probably any other person, jurist or otherwise, to realize that dream and fill that need.

In 1958, while president of the American Bar Association, he established the World Peace Through Law effort as a special committee of the association.

This evolved into the World Peace Through Law Center, created at an international conference of the world legal profession in Athens in 1963.

There have been four more conferences since then and the Center, of which Rhyne is president, now includes judges and members of the legal profession, as well as nonlawyers, from 135 countries. Included are the high court judges from almost every nation and in some cases the entire memberships of supreme courts.

During the week of August 25-31, thousands of these world law leaders will meet in Abidjan, Ivory Coast, for the Sixth World Conference on World Peace Through Law — the first such summit conference on the law of the world to be held on the African continent.

In the most ambitious program ever to go before a conference, the delegates will examine such areas as: Controlling dangerous drugs; international terrorism — kidnaping, extortion, skyjacking (with a "demonstration trial" involving an actual skyjacking case); refugee rights; environmental protection; United Nations reforms; making the World Court more used and useful; law of the sea.

"International law grows only by voluntary acceptance of treaties, conventions and other forms of transnational law and law agencies," says Ryhne. "There is no world legislature."

Through its unique position and the prestige it has acquired in the past decade, the World Peace Through Law Center continues to work toward building and strengthening the world law system through acceptance and use by nations of more international law.

Don't try Laird's way on tax form

One of the more original end runs around the truth by a member of the beleaguered Nixon administration, to borrow a term from the game favored by that same administration, has to be that of Melvin R. Laird the other day.

Far from pleading lapse of memory as others have done, the former Secretary of Defense, who is now the President's counselor for domestic affairs, forthrightly stated that he had recommended secret bombing operations in Cambodia in 1969 and 1970 in order to hit Viet Cong and North Vietnamese sanctuaries and to save American lives in South Vietnam.

When asked at a news conference about the method by which the raids were kept secret, he confirmed that a "separate channel of reporting was established for these particular attacks." The press was told only of the bomber targeting in South Vietnam, which provided a credible cover story for the secret strikes.

But while admitting that "I did approve the separate reporting procedure on the Cambodian strikes," Laird went on to say that "I did not approve at any time the falsification of any Air Force, Navy or Defense Department records."

In other words, the truth about the Cambodian raids existed all the time and was available to those in the government with a "need to know." Though the press, and the public, were fed a lot of baloney, the secret records were never falsified.

Imagine a court hearing the same kind of defense from, say, a man charged with tax evasion.

"Yes, it's true that I did use a 'separate reporting procedure' in reporting only part of my income to the Internal Revenue Service. But I did not at any time falsify a second set of records I kept for my own use."

It would be a strange jury that would buy that argument. It would be a strange public that would buy the same kind of reasoning from one of its alleged servants.

JACK ANDERSON AND LES WHITTEN

Artful dodgers' traits revealed

WASHINGTON — Last summer, when the Watergate culprits plotted their cover-up, their first thoughts were to destroy all incriminating documents. They shredded some documents and burned some more. One White House disposal crew even unblushingly planned to "deep six" a file in the malodorous waters of the Potomac.

Yet, one batch of documents escaped: the records of the National Gallery of Art which list the big shots who borrow copies of famous paintings to decorate their offices. Clues to the hidden personalities of the artful dodgers of Watergate are unexpectedly revealed by their choices.

Boyish presidential counsel John Dean, whose enigmatic wife Maureen sat behind him all those long days in the Senate hearings, has the same taste for lovely women on his office walls.

Mysterious Maureen's expression is reflected in "La Mousme," a dark-complexioned young woman captured by Van Gogh, which hung in Dean's old office at the Justice Department.

Dean could also muse over the pensive "Young Girl Reading" by Fragonard—ironically, a painter who fell from grace during the French Revolution because he had shown fawning loyalty to the corrupt French Kings.

Egil "Bud" Krogh, the White House's tough law and order adviser, as chief of the "plumbers," ran the antilaw and order break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office. But he exhibited a surprisingly delicate taste in art.

When he was transferred to the Transportation Department, his choice was the mystic "Wildflowers" of Redon, one of the most peculiar stylists of the past century. A Krogh aide told our reporter Bob Owens that the plumbers' chief eyed it several times each day.

In the White House quarters of Tom Charles Huston, the controversial young lawyer who drafted dark, ugly plans for clandestine burglaries and wiretaps on his fellow Americans, there were by contrast two brilliant, open scenes of outdoor beauty, one of the Lackawanna Valley, the other of Venice.

Kleindienst's 'High Road'

Another outdoor scene, the "View of a High Road" — perhaps the same "high road" he tried to take before the Senate Watergate Committee—graced the Justice Department office of former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst.

A White House talent seeker and hatchet man, Fred Malek, borrowed a print called "End of the Hunt." Whether "End of the Hunt" marks the end of Malek's talent hunt, or the end of Waterbugger Howard Hunt's tenure as a White House aide may be cause to ponder.

Selections from the National Gallery portfolio also give curious insights into bigwigs beside the Watergate bunch.

Discharged Interior Secretary Wally Hickel's office prophetically borrowed Rembrandt's "The Philosopher," while the House Immigration Subcommittee decorated its office with a dreamy picture of Faraway Italy. Usually upbeat Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, surprisingly picked ..Picasso's somber "The Tragedy."

By coincidence, the Senate's handsome Peter Dominick, R-Colo., and House Administration Chairman Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who has an irrepressible eye for the ladies, both exhibit the same picture — "The Lovers," by Picasso.

SAFE PASSAGE — Back when he was engineering head for the Army in the Panama Canal Zone, Col. Robert Clark got $3,000 worth of unauthorized improvements on his quarters at taxpayers' expense, including glass sliding doors in his living room.

Despite his taste for federally-funded extravagance, he was promoted to lieutenant governor of the Canal Zone. But his wasteful ways were too much for even the U.S.-run Canal authorities, and according to a letter from the Army, he was admonished. Clark retired, but we recently found him right back in the Zone holding down a plush job in the Canal Administration.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Bragging becoming lost art in Texas

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In the course of a recent vacation trip, I paid a visit to my old home town to see my 89-yearold father, who likes to boast that he is "the world's most humble Texan." I found him sorely agitated.

Inquiry revealed the source of his concern was the younger generation, which he affirmed was going to the bow-wows.

"How so?" said I. "In what way have the youth of this great state failed to measure up to their glorious heritage? My father replied that about half of the young Texans of today —the figure he gave was 48.6 per cent -are almost totally devoid of braggadocio.

"Bragging is fast becoming a lost art in Texas," he said sadly.

'The ancient tradition of Texas Hyperbole, which has been handed down from father to son, is dying out. Nowadays when an old master braggart hangs up his superlatives and goes into retirement, there's nobody to carry on. These modern kids have no feel for jingoism.

"You may find this hard to believe but out on the range the other day I heard no less than six discouraging words, all from the mouths of teenagers."

Being a natural-born Texan myself, and one who came to manhood during the golden age of vainglory, I did find that hard to believe.

But during a subsequent conversation with one of my teen-age nephews, I realized my father was telling it like it is.

While regaling this lad with some of my boyhood adventures, I chanced to mention that my old home town once had more windmills within its city limits than any other town of its size west of Fort Worth..

"I don't see where that's anything to brag about," the boy remarked.

Those were his exact words and they precipitated a family crisis. Finally his mother asked me to have a talk with the boy and see if I could straighten him out.

"Seymour," I said, "there are two kinds of bigness. Some is obvious, some obscure. If you are only going to brag about the obvious bigness, you might as well live in New Hampshire or some place like that.

"The mark of a true braggart is his ability to boast about something that the average blowhard overlooks. Our family has had a braggart for six generations. I hope you won't let us down."

A couple of days after I left Texas I noticed in the paper that the discovery of two additional bodies near Houston had broken the mass murder record previously held by California.

For Seymour, that may be the acid test.

More on Puddingstone

In the Aug. 11 edition of Scan magazine you had an article about "The Lake With the Funny Name" — an article well done and with good pictures—however the "funny name" needs further explanation.

The Pomona doctor who claimed that the rock formation looked like a raisin pudding, hence the name Puddingstone may have known his rocks as well as gallstones for the definition of the conglomerate of this type is: "a kind of conglomerate rock in which pebbles are embedded like plums in a pudding." Geogolists know it as pudding stone.

I have found many fossils at Puddingstone including sharks teeth and fish. It is interesting that we have these sedimentary rock formations only just a little west of the remains of ancient volcanic activity and a large amount of igneous rocks that can be found ajacent to the airport.

I can well remember several "frog leg feasts" at the home of Berry Epperson in La Verne after we had caught the frogs along the little creek now at the bottom of Puddingstone Lake. —Dee Dellenbach, Pomona.

Protests Dr. Brothers story

I am writing this in protest to the article about Dr. Joyce Brothers in the Aug. 12 Progress-Bulletin. I have talked to several people, both young and old, and we are all of the opinion that while she may be a brilliant scholar she has a warped mind.

I am fed up with the ideas that everything from the urge to shoplift to the way men wear their ties has a sex implication. I just can't understand why the news media believes decent people are interested in such trash. I have read my last article by or about Dr. Brothers and my TV set will not be turned on anytime she is on the schedule. I hope more will do likewise. —D.M., La Verne. INSIDE REPORT

Laird's warning about Ted Agnew

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — A confidential telephone call from t White House aide Melviin R. Laird to a Republican co gressional leader, warning him not to go all-out in defense o Vice President Spiro Agnew is new and harsh evidence t party professionals of the depth of the crisis that threaten Ted Agnew.

In his Aug. 7 telephone call to Rep. John B. Anderson o Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Conference, Lair carefully specified that he was talking not as a White Hous aide.

His message: don't get on a limb in the Agnew affair, par ticularly with an all-out defense of the Vice President. Stay awa from the Agnew affair as far as possible.

Agnew is under intense federal investigation on charges o possible criminal violations of various federal statutes involvin bribery, extortion, tax fraud and conspiracy.

Republicans who know about the Laird call to Anderson (de scribed as "astonished" by the warning) assume that Lair and possible other party grandees have contacted other senio Republicans with similar warnings.

Moreover, the Laird telephone call to Anderson fits a patter that has infuriated the Agnew camp. For example:

Haig gets briefing

1. Before Agnew himself received formal notice from the Justice Department that he was under investigation, Att Gen. Elliot Richardson reported (in late July) to White House staff chief Alexander M. Haig, Jr., with a briefing on all a pects of the case. On Aug. 2, Agnew's attorneys received their letter from the prosecutors.

2. A prominent television commentator was privately cau tioned by an official of the Justice Department 10 days ago i words similar to those used by Laird to Anderson: don't g overboard for Agnew; you may wind up with egg on your face

3. The White House has gone to embarrassing length not t put the President on record as to his Vice President's inno cence. White House spokesman Gerald Warren will only say that Mr. Nixon's confidence in Agnew has not changed.

4. The New York Times front-page dispatch of Aug. 15, ou lining charges against Agnew in vivid detail, is believed by furious Agnew allies to have emanated from high levels of the Justice Department (who flatly deny it), not from Maryland sources also implicated in the charges against Agnew.

It is not surprising that allies of Agnew, whose talents have sometimes been grossly used by the President to advance Mr Nixon's interests, would be filled with dark suspicion over these incidents. They regard them as proof of nefarious un derground administration warfare against Agnew, partly to ease the President's immense Watergate burdens.

Thus, in this conspiratorial view — so understandable on the part of Agnew intimates—Mr. Nixon or Republicans close to him are greasing the skids for the hapless Vice President. Under the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, they are quietly preparing to nominate a successor—most likely John B. Connally.

Connally Might Get Call

It was Connally who saved Mr. Nixon from disaster in the inflationary crisis of August 1971. Perhaps Connally, the former Democratic governor of Texas who turned Republican at a moment of maximum help to the Watergate-beleaguered President last spring, can help again.

To Agnewites, that fits the known fact that Connally recently cancelled his plans for a long trip abroad and the lesser-known fact that some Connally friends predict he will be back in the administration in October.

But in fact the Laird warnings may spring from something far less conspiratorial. They may be a flashing signal of caution based not on any desire to do in Agnew but on a rational and informed judgment that Agnew is a goner.

Likewise, Richardson's July briefing of Haig, before Agnew himself had formal notification, may also be explainable as a rational act based on the President's prior right to know. "Is that normal?" a Justice Department official repeated in answer to our question. "Hell, nothing's normal in this case. We're playing it by ear."

But such quiet and rational explanation is understandably difficult for Agnewites. The mood in the Agnew camp has grown isolated and embittered. Now, with word being secretly passed to "keep clear" of the Agnew affair, that mood will intensify, with dangerous implications for the Republican future no matter how the investigation finally ends.

Chino firms up date for vote on Civic Center tax

By MATE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — The City Council has reaffirmed Oct. 23 as the target date for a special election and established that the city will ask residents to approve a 25 cents tax increase for the new Civic Center.

The council took action Tuesday night in three resolutions recommended for adoption by City Manager Bob Fast.

Reading from his written report, Fast said "preliminary studies reveal that revenue for the Civic Center must come from several sources, since the overall magnitude of the project exceeds that which can reasonably be expected to be approved as a tax rate increase. These other sources should include revenue sharing and redevelopment."

The manager estimated the cost of the Civic Center ranging from a starting point of $1 million to an overall $3 million for long range needs.

The increase of 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation would provide about $100,000 in annual income. This, combined with funds from revenue sharing and redevelopment, should provide the necessary funds, said Fast, for a "reasonably adequate flexible base to plan the comprehensive and complete Civic Center program."

He explained the three resolutions to councilmen.

"The first resolution calls for the election on Oct. 23 and sets the measure, including the requested tax rate increase, for the election. The second resolution petitions the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors to permit the county registrar of voters to render certain services. The third resolution authorizes specified members of the council to file a written argument for the city measure," he read.

The council unanimously passed the three resolutions. Mayor Bob McLeod ask for and received a motion that the entire council would prepare the written argument for the measure.

In another matter on the Civic Center, the council accepted the final presentation of the master plan given by Norm Cates of VTN Architects, San Bernardino.

Fast prefaced Cates' report with the statement that Cates would "bring together and summarize those actions taken since the last presentation."

He also noted that since the board of supervisors had not yet accepted the final master plan, the council's approval should be contingent upon the supervisors' approval of the plan.

A master plan, began Cates, "is a dynamic planning tool, not a means to an end, but merely an indictor of future planning. The plan attempts to develop assurances that whatever future planing you do has been included in the master plan."

The 10-year master plan calls for the closing of 7th Street between D Street and Chino Avenue; and of D between 7th and Central Avenue. The closing of these two street sections would be made "at such time that the city makes its move to construct its facilities," said Cates.

The county library completed in June represents the first step of the complex. The second step "is anticipated to include the county facilities and site development," Cates commented.

"The third step would include the city hall, council chambers, police department, parking and site development," he continued. "Expansion of the library would come in six to seven years . . . Additional county and city space being added would be the final stage."

All phases would look at both the process of building and the occupation of facilities as space is needed, the architect noted.

Councilman Ralph Preciado voiced concern over the possible problem of the main artery of Central Avenue and separating the old and new civic center areas. He mentioned the possibility of extensive pedestrian traffic complicating the vehicular flow and asked Cates what allowances could be made for such.

"There is no need for excessive pedestrian traffic between the two units," replied Cates. He suggested that the old civic center on the east side of Central and D could be used for fire and recreation departments.

"The fire department is a fairly contained area, usually separated from other city activities. The recreation department also is not involved in the day-to-day activities of other city offices.

"The civic center will be the future emphasis for growth of business and the commercial area downtown," he concluded.

Upland council gives nod to city hall plan

UPLAND — In a departure from previous discussions on the matter, the City Council this week quickly and quietly approved the preliminary blueprints for a new city hall building.

The rare unanimous vote also authorized the architectural firm of Edward Durrell Stone of Los Angeles to proceed with the final plans for the single-story building which will feature a new council chamber and offices for 10 city departments and the city clerk.

In a brief presentation architect John Adams described the design with its central, sunken council chamber as the "best of two worlds."

The council chamber, he said, will provide seating for 112 persons and the use of draperies instead of walls will provide great flexibility in its use.

Councillman Harold Bailin, an outspoken foe of the entire project and the way it is being funded, cast his affirmative vote with no comment. He later quipped that his vote only indicated he was "satisfied with the design."

The new Civic Center has been under study for a number of years, but the move to build it got under way only after the city received some $500,000 in federal revenue sharing funds last year.

Bailin has consistently questioned the need for the facility and has lambasted the council and City Manager Elwin Alder over the way public funds are being appropriated to finance the over $700,000 cost of the building, which he believes is "unjustifiable."

The Highway Patrol has 5,500 officers who patrol 90,000 miles of state highways and county roads.

Upland loses attempt to block plant

UPLAND — A San Bernardino County Superior Court has ruled against the city in its attempt to force resubmission of a conditional use permit for the construction of a hot asphalt plant in northwest Upland.

The ruling, announced by City Atty. Donald Maroney this week, requires the city to honor the conditional use permit currently held by new owners of the property in question and to issue them a building permit for the new plant to be located near Benson Avenue and 16th Street.

The suit, brought by Flintkote Corp., had sought to test the legality of a city ordinance which does not allow the transfer of conditional use permits from property owner to property owner.

Flintkote had purchased Associated Rock Co., which had held a permit for a new plant since 1967.

The ruling, Maroney said, means the permits are transferable and run with the land rather than with the person holding it. He planned no appeal of the decision at present.

Airport impact study is translated into Spanish

ONTARIO — A language barrier has been removed from an environmental impact report prepared for the Ontario International Airport.

An executive summary of the report, needed for construction of a second main runway, has been translated into the Spanish language.

"This is just an effort to see that citizens have as much information about this as possible," said A. J. Dubiel, the airport's public relations officer.

"We thought since there are Spanish speaking people in the area who may have trouble reading the English version, it would be easier for them to read a report written in Spanish."

A member of the Los Angeles public relations office made the translation. Several hundred copies have been printed, which are being distributed to South Ontario residents and to libraries in Ontario, Montclair, Chino, Upland and Fontana.

The 20-page executive summary contains all the essential elements of the full six-volume, 600 page environmental study.

Copies of the full study, released last month by the Los Angeles Department of Airports, have been distributed to government agencies, libraries and to citizens groups.

No public hearing on the report has been set. This will be determined by the Los Angeles Airport Commission, said Dubiel.

County buys site to ease office jam

SAN BERNARDINO — County supervisors have voted to purchase the vacant Aerospace buildings at Tippecanoe Avenue and Mill Street here to reduce crowded conditions in county offices.

The county will acquire the 78-acre, three-building complex for $4 million. The purchase will involve federal revenue sharing funds, rather than property tax revenue, officials said.

Robert Covington, county administrative officer, recommended the new facilities be used initially to house the county's new environmental improvement agency, the registrar of voters, superintendent of schools and data processing.

These operations receive little if any public traffic, and all the more frequently visited departments will remain in the downtown area, he added.

Chaffey High to enroll students on Sept. 5, 6

ONTARIO — Student registration for the fall semester at Chaffey High School will be held in the campus cafeteria Sept. 5-6.

Principal Fred C. Adams said that all registration materials have been mailed to students who preregistered last year. He said the packet contains everything that is necessary for the self-registration program.

Students who did not receive a registration packet must go to the North Hall Administration Center, any day Monday through Friday from 7:30-4:30 p.m., where counselors will be available for assistance.

Registration will be from 12:30-3 p.m. on Spet. 5, and 7:30p3 p.m. the following day.

The opening day of school is Sept. 11.

Kaiser planning price increases

FONTANA — Kaiser Steel Corp. has announced that it has filed prenotification for price increases on sheet, strip and certain tubular products with the Cost of Living Council.

Savings and loan company marks Montclair opening

MONTCLAIR — American Savings and Loan Association is now celebrating the grand opening of its new branch at the corner of Moreno Street and Central Avenue.

The celebration will continue for the next month, said Scott Greenwalt, assistant vice president-manager, with refreshments and gifts for the public.

Located at 9133 Central Ave., the new American Savings building is a two-story pavilion-like structure comprising over 9,000 square feet with exterior finishes of marblecrete, travertine and bronze glass.

The building's architects, Maxwell Starkman and Associates, describe the structure as a "contemporary rendition of classic simplicity."

Montclair Mayor Harold Hayes called the building a compliment to the environment of the city in a proclamation presented at a special reception held last week for federal, state and local officials.

More than 700 guests attended the reception led by S. Mark Taper, president of the $4.2 billion association.

The reception included a tour of the new vault which includes over 5,000 safety deposit boxes which will be offered as one of the association's free services to customers with accounts of $1,000 or over.

College is adding program for hospital nurses' aides

ALTA LOMA — To help fill the need for hospital workers in San Bernardino County, Chaffey College is launching a new nursing assistant course this fall.

The 13-unit, two-quarter course, "Principles of Basic Nursing," will train up to 30 students per year in skills required for patient care in general and convalescent hospitals.

Classes, taught by the college nursing staff, will be held on campus with practical exercises conducted at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Successful students in the course will receive certificates in the specialty and, according to Mary E. Boul, allied health coordinator, will be fully prepared for state licensing examinations.

Miss Boul noted that over 400 nursing assistants, both men and women, will be needed in San Bernardino County hospitals each year.

The new program will be offered for both full-and part-time students. Interested persons may obtain additional information on the course by calling the college at 987-1737.

West End briefs

Federal gas tax distribution hit

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) —Supervisor Daniel D. Mikesell received approval from the Board of Supervisors of his request for the drafting of a resolution, strongly worded, asking that the federal government get out of the busness of collecting gas tax monies and then distributing it to the various states as it sees fit.

"Over 11 per cent of all gas tax monies are derived from the State of California," Mikesell stated, "'and only 6.6 per cent of that money comes back here for the improvement of our roads systems.

"This unequal transmission of funds must stop. We can do better with our own money in this state, and the government should let other areas take care of their own transportation problems and systems through collection and handling of their own funds," the supervisor stated.

The resolution, when drafted, will be sent to federal legislators, state legislators, the Sierra Club, the California Automobile Club and other interested agencies.

Garden lecture at Ontario library

ONTARIO — George P. Fee of the Armstrong Nursery will lecture on planning, improving and redesigning lawns and gardens at the Ontario Library Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Fee's presentation is the first in a four-week series sponsored by the library concerning garden and lawn care. Other topics that will be featured in the series are color schemes for the garden and yard; soil preparation; and rose care and cultivation.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 984-2785.

Stroke aid group will conduct sale

POMONA — The Organization for After-Stroke Resocialization will hold a rummage sale Sept. 7 and 8, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 215 Pomona Mall West.

The volunteer organization, which serves the East San Gabriel and Pomona valleys, assists stroke victims and their families.

Funds raised from the rummage sale will provide activities for stroke members, officials said. Persons wanting to donate clothing, toys, jewelry, household goods, books or furniture may phone 624-2163 or 622-6872 for pickup.

Supervisors approve new rates for hospital

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) — Recommended rate schedule for patients at the county General Hospital has been approved by the Board of Supervisors after hospital administrator Clifford M. Tahyer stated the rates became effective Aug. 1, reflecting anticipated costs.

"The recommended schedule," Thayer said, "represents the continuing effort to relate charges to costs as nearly as possible and, at the same time, provide for itemized patient charges for the various ancillary services.

"The schedule reflects the strong influence of the patient occupancy level on the various hospital units. Rate increases for daily service charges are recommended for five patient care units, a decrease in daily service charges is recommended on two units, and no change is recommended for three patient care units.

Following are the charges as presented by Thayer: Increases: pediatrics, $88 to $90; surgical, $79 to $93; premie nursery, $63 to $75; intensive care unit, $192 to $200; and extended care, $60 to $65;

Decreases: in the burn unit, $288 to $206, and in respiratory care, $259 to $242. No rate changes in obstetrics, $90; newborn nursery, $73; and medical, $95.

Montclair awards trophies at recreation review

MONTCLAIR — The Montclair Recreation Department has awarded trophies to the top finishers at each playground in the city's summer program.

The trophies were presented at the annual recreation review at Montclair High School. Winners were selected on the basis of total points for the entire summer's activities.

The winners at each playground were Kelly Nikolaus, Judy Demasi, Gwen Staten, Bobby Donley, Ron Partin, David Lupo and Terry Jones at Kingsley School; Linda Lobo, Shirley Slakeld, Hanna Butler, Tim Zombic, Randy Fremming and Doug Kirby at Lehigh School.

Beatrice Huete, Holly Conway, Lisa Robinson, Mike Van Noorden, Rusty Gray and Chris Conway at Margarita School; Cindy Ortiz, Melody Abrego, Paula Campbell, Mitchell Brown, David Ortiz and Larry Ortiz at Monte Vista School.

Mary Ann O'Beso, Kim Voght, Tracy Perez, Abel Ortiz, Michael Ingels, and Russel Miva at Moreno School; Michelle Flynn, Mercy Barela, Ontencia Barela, Sylvia Barela, Mark Shannon, Johnny Barela and Robert Molderat Vernon School.

The Championship Playground Trophy, which is awarded to the playground compiling the most points, was awarded to Lehigh School playground.

Re-stating the nation

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Nobody is named G. Etzel Pearcy, but if he were, he would be a geography professor at Cal State Los Angeles who has suggested a realignment and renaming of the United States of America. (Or is it United?)

Etzel (no relation to the car of the same name) was once the State Department's top geographer. He has just issued a monograph urging the reshaping of the states of the nation. Also renaming. Also reducing the number to 38, from its present 48. (I flunked geography in high school.)

I am all for eliminating some of the states, starting with Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. No one would miss Tennessee and Arkansas, either.

The Pearcy Pipe Dream would provide a better balance in size and population of the surviving states and bring improved government efficiency (any change would be an improvement) and would save the nation's taxpayers $4.6 billion a year in administrative expenses. Not bad for openers. I will say.

The names of the new states are great. Vermont would vanish into a northern New England conglomerate called Kennebec, and New Jersey and southern New York would combine in Hudson. Southern Texas would be Alamo, and the northern part, with most of Oklahoma and part of Kansas would be Shawnee. Perhaps we'd better just give Texas back to Mexico and start all over again.

Indiana, under the Pearcy Proposal, would link with parts of Illinois and Kentucky to become Wabash. Washington and Oregon would be Cascade. Florida and southern Georgia would make up Biscayne.

Bighorn, Cochise, Shawnee, Mohawk—the names of some of the states makes the new country sound like a bunch of Indian tribes. Bury my heart at Watergate.

C. Etzel suggests that Northern California take in part of Nevada and become El Dorado, presumably because it encompasses Reno and Las Vegas. Southern California, from San Luis Obispo down would nip off a little of Nevada and Arizona and be called San Gabriel. I'd call Southern California the State of Chaos.

Brave new world, though. "The Soverign State of Wabash casts 43 votes for. . . ."

"Does the Senator from Bayou yield to the Senator from Cascade?" Or "As go Kennebec and Mohawk, so goes the nation."

I frankly don't think the mere saving of $4.6 billion annually is enough to sway the millions of citizens of the proposed Bitterroot, Albemarle (mostly North Carolina), Erie, and Osage to the new state-ment.

The doctor comments

Hysterectomy isn't same as tied tubes

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — There are several girls in our office who are curious about certain issues of birth control. We often hear of women having complete hysterectomies instead of tubal ligations. This seems rather senseless to us. Why would they choose a hysterectomy over a tubal ligation?

When a woman has her tubes tied are there any side effects? What actually happens? Does the ovary stop producing eggs, or does the tie prevent the eggs from reaching the womb. If the eggs are still produced, does this not cause some damage from the eggs backing up in the woman's system.

How easy is it to obtain a tubal ligation? Is it a matter between patient and doctor, or are some hospitals opposed to it?

Dear Reader — Some women have a hysterectomy because they have problems with their uterus, such as a tumor or excessive bleeding. This, of course, also results in their being sterile. The body of the uterus and the cervix are frequent sites of cancer in the female. The complete removal of the uterus and cervix eliminates the likelihood of this problem in the future. Tying the tubes does not.

When the tubes are tied this removes the ability of the ova to pass down the tube into the uterus for implantation and pregnancy. This has no effect whatsoever on the ovaries. The ovaries are anatomically separated from the mouth or opening of the tubes. The egg is released by the ovary, passes a very short distance, in the open space, and enters the mouth of the tube. This means after the tubes are tied, ovulation continues as it did before. The eggs, however, cannot pass down the tubes, so they are absorbed by the body. They are not blocked up in the ovary, since they are released as they always have been, into the free space.

This actually is somewhat different than the vasectomy in the male where there is a connecting tube between the body of the testicle to the prostate and point of exit of sperm cells. Tying off the vas does block the emission of sperm cells, but tying off the tube in a woman does not block the emission of ova.

Not all doctors are willing to do tubal ligations. It is against some doctors' religious code, and the same can be said about some hospitals. The only real way to find out is to discuss it with your own doctor, if one has reason to seriously consider such an operation.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Medically speaking, what is moderate drinking? How many drinks a day?

Dear Reader — A small amount of liquor for a person with underlying brain damage can cause uncontrollable rages or abnormal behavior. In a severe case of ulcers, it may cause bleeding. Even in a healthy person, the accumulated affects can cause liver damage, brain damage and other medical problems.

No one should form a habit of having even one drink a day, and it's inadvisable to drink more than four drinks for any occasion. These should be drunk no more rapidly than one drink per hour and you should wait at least an hour after the last drink before driving. Drinks should be limited to one jigger of whiskey or a similar beverage in making a cocktail, or one bottle of bear, or a half a glass of wine.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on the menopause, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "The Menopause" booklet.

Tipping: obnoxious practice from West

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Singapore is officially discouraging tipping as an "obnoxious" practice imported from the West."

Deputy Labor Minister Sia Kah Hui opened a courtesy campaign among hotel employees with a denunciation of tipping as "obnoxious and embarrassing for both the giver and the receiver."

He said employers use it as an excuse to pay lower wages and it is "a root cause for discrimination in service between locals and foreigners, for many foreigners are accustomed to giving higher tips in their countries."

Erma Bombeck

No sooner did environmentalists start pushing the see-through garbage bags than the government decided to come out with Phase IV.

If you do not see the connection between the two, then maybe your garbage sitting on the curb for all the world to see has more class than mine.

There was a time when I was proud of my garbage. There were empty Sara Lee Boxes, champagne corks, mushroom tins and sometimes just for garnish, I'd sprinkle a few empty cans of lobster bisque on top and leave the lid ajar.

The other day I drove by the Wagners' and their garbage bags were lousy with brand Xs. Where has pride gone?

During the past year, not only has the quality of garbage deteriorated, but the quantity.

At the dinner table the other night, one of my youngsters asked for thirds.

"Save something for the garbage," I warned.

"Why?" they asked innocently.

"Why, indeed!" I said. "Do you realize that we used to be a five-can garbage family and now we are down to two measly plastic bags?"

"The Traxlers have six!" said my son.

"I don't know how they do it on his salary," I pondered.

"And besides that, they have a dog!" said another child.

"You're kidding."

"And a disposal," said my husband.

"They probably don't take vacations," I rationalized. "All I know is our garbage is so tacky it doesn't even attract stray dogs anymore."

"You're just depressed because you are tired and it has been a long day. Why don't you come in and relax and watch TV?"

"I'll be along in just a minute," I said.

Later he came out to the kitchen to check. "I think I've got it figured out. Friday, I'll have frozen fish and chips. Saturday, I'll go for the chicken, and Sunday, we'll have a cookout with spareribs, corn on the cob and watermelon. That should be filling."

"You planning the menus for next week?" he smiled.

"Don't be ridiculous. I'm planning my garbage!"

Sterilized turtles available for sale

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: A year ago Mother made us give up our baby turtles because she had heard they carry dangerous germs. But now I have heard they have sterilized baby turtles that are safe. Mother is not convinced. Can you help us? —K.R.

Dear K.R.: It's true. Certified baby green turtles ARE available in many areas now. They are certified free from salmonella and Arizona bacterium organisms known to cause potentially serious intestinal infections in humans. These baby turtles are not actually sterile, bacterially or otherwise, but they are considered free — when tested — of the organisms likely to cause human problems. (Germ-free animals of various kinds do exist under very specialized conditions in laboratories but all other animals of any species carry many organisms within their bodies. Most of these, normally, are harmless.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: What was your recommendation about clipping a parakeet's wings so it can't fly? —S.M.

Dear S.M: By all means have an expert do the wing clipping the first time. You might botch the job and it could end up painful, bloody and dangerous for the bird. Although clipping the feathers of only one wing, primarily the primaries, does effectively prevent flight, the bird will become so unbalanced in the air that it will often fall. This is the very reason it is inadvisable to clip just one wing; the poor bird can severely injure or even kill himself trying to fly. It's preferable to clip both wings evenly. The bird, in this case, can fly, but without his primary feathers he has to work so hard to keep aloft that he will quickly tire and come down. He will at least have control over his maneuvers will be able to make a comparatively crash-less landing.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We have two boxers, Beans who is two years old, and Bingo, going on eight. They're within two pounds of each other in weight. Bingo is the boss and this is what I wanted to ask about. Is he top dog because he is stronger or because he is smarter? —C.M.

Dear C.M.: Probably because he is more determined and certainly more experienced. Beans would undoubtedly have the edge in strength. I have no figures available here for canines; but in homo sapiens, for example, a comparable 65-year-old human, on an over-all basis, would only be 75 per cent as strong as a 20-year-older.

Bandits ran, loot--twice but forgot

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Take the money and run" is considered sound advice for most stickup men.

Police said Thursday two bandits remembered to run, but they forgot the money—twice.

Police said two men—one with a toy pistol, the other carrying a sawed-off shotgun —entered an auto goods store Wednesday and ordered the owner and an employe to put their valuables in a paper bag. The victims were then led into the restroom and tied up. The holdup men fled, but they left the paper bag behind.

Two hours later, police said, the same holdup team walked up to the owner of another auto supply store. One began pulling the sawed-off shotgun out of the bag and the owner screamed, "You can have the store!" and ran away.

The robbers stood in the store for a moment, and then, police said, they ran away too. Again, empty-handed.

A police spokesman said an eyewitness saw the bungling duo get into a car and drive off, and copied part of the license plate number.

Detectives arrested two suspects in the holdups, James Trappier, 22, and Jerome Water, 23, and booked them on charges of robbery—for getting the loot in the first holdup as far as the paper bag—and possession of a deadly weapon.

Con scheming break killed by explosion

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UPI) —A life term convict believed to have been involved in a scheme to break out of the Indiana State Prison was killed Monday night when an arsenal of weapons and ammunition exploded in his cell.

The victim was identified by prison officials as James Lee Collins, 25, who was sentenced to life as an accessory before and after the fact in the slaying of an Indiana state police trooper more than six years ago.

Officials said the blast set his clothing afire and he apparently burned to death. An autopsy was ordered.

Numerous weapons were found in the cell, all apparently homemade. They included five bombs, several pistols and 29 homemade shotgun shells.

Discovery of the weapons resulted in a complete shakedown of the prison population during the night, according to Warden Russell Lash. Authorities said the shakedown yielded ropes and various other contraband, including weapons.

Food costs held down during July

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced today that the month of July—when Phase 3 price controls were still in effect—was the only month in the last 11 that Los Angeles and Orange County supermarket prices remain unchanged.

The federal agency also said July's 0.5 per cent general price increase was down 0.4 per cent from June. But it marked the 18th consecutive month that living costs have gone up.

Southern California Bureau chief Suzanne Sadowsky said there was an 0.4 per cent rise in food costs, but "virtually all of the increase was for restaurant meals and snacks eaten away from home." The category of "food purchased for consumption at home" showed no increase, she said.

Since last June, supermarket prices have climbed 13.3 per cent, meaning that a cart of groceries costing $30 last year would cost $33.99 last month.

The consumer price index for the two counties has climbed to 129.1. A purchase which would have cost $10 in 1967, the index base year, now costs 12.91, according to the statistics.

Restaurant meal prices, which previously rose at a slower rate than supermarket prices, jumped 1.7 per cent during July to reach a level 12.2 per cent higher than July of 1972.

Meat, fish and poultry prices in the two counties rose 0.5 per cent but were offset by 1.0 per cent decline in the prices of fruits and vegetables. Coffee prices dropped slightly, while cereals, bakery and dairy products remained unchanged.

Other price fluctuations reported by the bureau included:

—Housing costs, up 0.5 per cent, chiefly due to higher mortgage interest rates and increases in maintenance and repair prices. Up 2.6 per cent since last year.

—Transportation costs, up 0.8 per cent to a level 6.0 per cent above last year. Car prices, gasoline prices, parking fees and repair work prices all increased.

—Health and recreation costs, up 0.6 per cent due mainly to increased dental fees and higher medicine prices.

Newscasting fairness to be studied

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —In an effort to fight "one-sided" and "anti-Nixon" radio and television newscasts, the county Republican central committee has organized a volunteer group which will monitor and report on the fairness of newscasters.

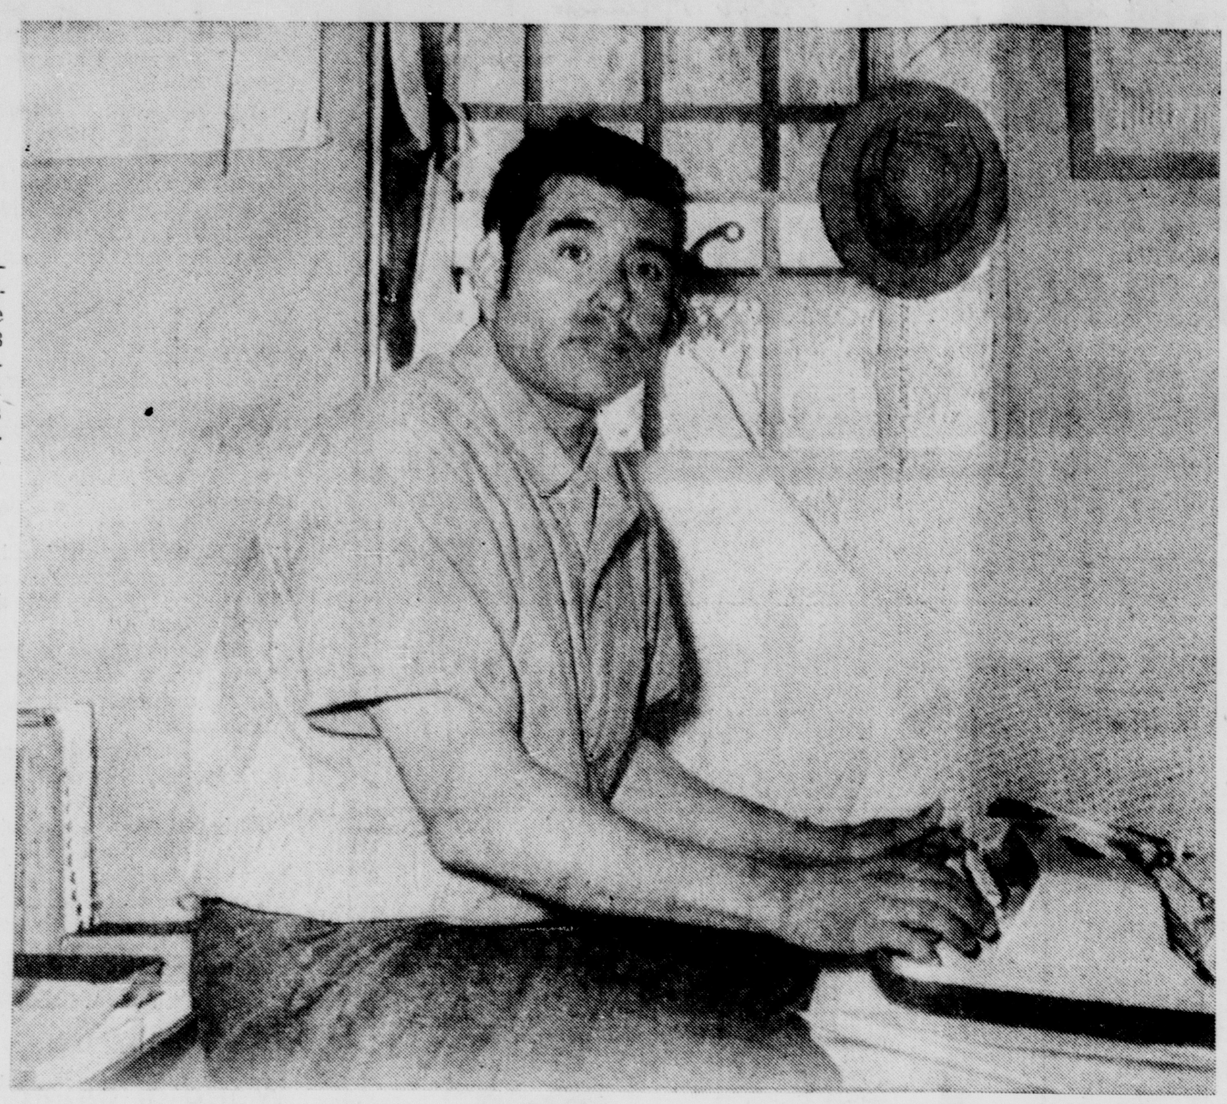
Organizers of the Fair News Committee said some broadcasters have "found the President guilty already" of involvement in the Watergate scandal and express their bias on the air.

"When incorrect or slanted statements are broadcast to millions of people," said central committee chairman Tom Malatesta, "they soon become facts. Our job is to combat these statements made toward Republican policies and to provide speakers who will set the issues straight."

"What we're trying to identify and stop is the blatantly one-sided newscaster or communicator who is anti-Nixon the other side," he said.

A similar program operated last year under the name "Nixon Watch," but no complaints were filed with the Federal Communications Commission. Malatesta acknowledges however that the FCC is "deep into an investigation of its own fairness doctrine at the present time."

The print media is excluded from the monitoring project as it was last year. Former newspaperman Lyn Nofziger, now the Nixon campaign director for California, said, "I don't need a bunch of volunteers reading the newspapers every day to tell me who the President's enemies or friends were among the press."



SEEKS NEW TRIAL — Juan Corona, convicted slayer of 25 persons, looks up from typing in his Vacaville cell, while listening to the radio on earphone. Corona wants a new trial to vindicate himself.

'I never killed those people,' Corona insists; new trial sought

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Eight months after he was convicted of hacking to death 25 migrant farm laborers, Juan V. Corona looks you hard in the eye, insists "I never killed those people" and asks for a new trial so he can testify in his own defense.

He will take a lie dectector test or even "truth serum" to prove he is innocent of what until a few days ago was the biggest known mass murder spree in U.S. history.

"How can a man, one man, do all those things," he asks, excitedly pointing a finger at a newsman questioning him about the grisly crimes that shook that quiet Sacramento Valley communities of Yuba City and neighboring Marysville in mid-1...

People who testified against him were "a bunch of liars," the district attorney was "dumb" and his own attorney, Corona says, was "crazy" for implying that his late brother, Natividad, actually murdered all those drifters and buried their bodies in shallow orchard graves along the Feather River.

The 25 mostly Caucasian victims, the Mexican-born Corona says, were "winos" he never came in contact with as a farm labor contractor "because these people are not worth a penny" as field hands. "Five or six of them, they equal one person, one good worker."

The prison guards at the California Medical Facility here "treat me real nice," he reports, and physically "I'm very well."

He is characterized as a model prisoner by the superintendent.

Sometimes calmly, sometimes emotionally, sometimes articulately, sometimes almost incoherently—but always emphatically—Corona for more than an hour Monday discussed in broken English his celebrated case with two reporters.

Was he aware of the current Texas case, where 27 boys were the victims of sex-torture slayings? "Yeah," he replied, "somebody told me they find some bodies down there (but) they bother me too much already, those kind of problems, so I'm not interested."

It was the first interview for newspaper distribution since his conviction Feb. 18 and subsequent sentence to 25 consecutive life terms.

Corona, 39, has trimmed off 30 pounds, shed his outspoken trial lawyer and picked up two Mexican-American civil rights attorneys: Louis Garcia and Mario Obledo, both of San Francisco.

According to district attorney David Teja, "perhaps the most significant evidence" was a green ledger found in Corona's home which contained the names of some victims. Among the other evidence was blood found in Corona's truck and alleged weapons splattered with blood discovered at his home and labor camp.

Corona insisted Monday it wasn't his handwriting in the ledger, thus disputing a prosecution witness, but he wasn't sure whether the ledger belonged to him "because I had so many." He noted there was conflicting trial testimony about the blood.

He wished his trial attorney, Richard Hawk, had called him to the witness stand, or at least offered some defense. The jury listened to nearly 200 prosecution witnesses for three months. But Hawk called no witnesses of his own, contending the DA had "botched" the case and no defense was necessary.

This week the savings are on the house.

MOVING AHEAD — Mayor Robert L. Butler looks up at the $122,000 Tower Plaza erected on the town square in Marion, Ill. Butler says that for the first time in history the City Council will not pass a tax levy ordinance.

No export controls on grains foreseen

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — An administration farm official promised flatly today the United States will not impose export controls on grains and soybeans in the 1973-74 marketing season unless some unexpected disaster hits the 1973 crop.

Despite pressure from bakers and others who want export controls invoked to assure bigger domestic supplies at prices below current boom levels, Assistant Agriculture Secretary Caroll G. Brunthaver said the United States would lose more than it could gain by limiting exports.

"The United States has been suffering from a severe balance of payments problem," Brunthaver said. "We have not been able to pay for all the things we have been importing, and we need to import even more things like fuels and raw materials in the future. The one major area where we can significantly increase exports is in farm products.

"We are not going to impose export controls short of some unforeseen disaster to this year's growing crops." Brunthaver also told the American Soybean Association he thinks the current wave of booming demand and peak prices for American crops "seems certain to endure at least through 1974, and probably through 1975."

"Even after the big wave recedes, we are likely to find the water much warmer and more pleasant in world markets than we've found it in the past," he predicted.

Noting that the Agriculture Department has removed all restraints on farm production for 1974, Brunthaver said the action would release a potential 19 million acres for crop use, but he warned that no one expects all of the acreage to actually be planted. He said his own personal belief is that almost all land which can be brought back into crops easily was returned to production this year.

"Further increases in crop acres will come harder," Brunthaver warned. He said the United States can increase production by farming "good" land more intensively and by bringing marginal, rough and brushy land into production. But crop prices will have to be good enough to induce farmers to make necessary heavy investments on the additional acreage, the official added.

Brunthaver's flat rebuff to demands for export control came as wheat and other commodity futures prices, after sagging last week, scored new recoveries Monday and moved back toward the record levels of last week. September wheat futures at Chicago moved up again to over $5 a bushel.

But the United States would "pay a very high price" in the long run for adopting export controls to lower domestic food prices, Brunthaver warned. He said the controls imposed in June to limit soybean exports in the waning months of the 1972-73 marketing year have "severely damaged our position."

Reporter looks at Prague five years after invasion

By THADDEUS C. KOPINSKI

PRAGUE (UPI) —The unmarked grave was covered with mounds of fresh flowers. A dozen candles flickered in the wind under gloomy skies.

An elderly woman with a small blond child stopped, crossed herself, and stood with head bowed for a few minutes, then disappeared along the labyrinth paths of Olsanske Cemetery.

In the course of fifteen minutes, half a dozen people Monday paid similar homage. Some walked away hurriedly when two policemen made their rounds.

The grave is that of Jan Palach, who burned himself to death on Prague's Wenceslas Square to protest the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia five years ago. The unmarked grave remains the most poignant memorial to the liberal reforms of former Communist party First Secretary Alexander Dubcek, which were crushed when Warsaw Pact troops occupied Prague on the night of Aug. 20, 1968.

But aside from the token homage evident at the cemetery—and a few more policemen than usual on the streets of Prague wearing billy clubs, not a usual part of their uniforms—the city reflected the "normalization" repeatedly invoked by the government of Dubcek's successor, Gustav Husak.

"The forecast of false prophets after August 1968 that the new Czechoslovak Communist party leadership of Gustav Husak will not be able to normalize and consolidate life in the country even in decades have not come true," the Slovak Communist party newspaper Pravda said in one of the strongest editorial comments on the anniversary.

The Czechoslovak Communist party daily Rude Pravo said "we must duly appreciate that it was thanks to this joint action (the invasion by Warsaw Pact troops) that favorable conditions have been created, for instance, for settling the arrangement of relations between Czechoslovakia and the Federal Republic of (West) Germany."

Today's Czechoslovak authorities, in addition to signing the West German treaty, have launched an extensive diplomatic offensive that has expanded to consular facilities with the United States and increased diplomatic ties with other Western countries.

Normalization, and the desire to forget the dramatic event of five years ago, is being stressed not only by the authorities, but can also be observed in the apathy and acquiescence of most of the population—with the possible exception of a few dissidents.

This has been helped along to a large extent by the government's policy of notably raising the standard of living and providing more consumer goods, many of them imported from the West.

Diplomatic observers have also noted in the past months that although Soviet troops still remain—albeit out of sight— and party members closely identified with Dubcek have had to leave their jobs as professors, economists or journalists to do menial work, authorities have shown considerable moderation with the remaining dissidents.

Logical move

City drops property taxes

MARION, Ill. (UPI) —The government of this southern Illinois town of 13,000 is making man-bites-dog-type news. Instead of raising its property taxes it is dropping them completely.

The city council has resolved simply not to pass a tax levy ordinance this year, in effect wiping out the city property tax.

To Mayor Robert L. Butler, the move seems only logical. Since he came to office in 1964, property taxes in Marion have been cut in seven of the past nine years.

Marion's last property tax rate is just 31 cents per $100 assessed valuation, or $31 on assessments of $10,000. In Chicago, 300 miles to the north, it runs about $800 for every $10,000 of assessed valuation, but that helps support schools and other services not financed in Marion by city taxes.

Marion has hardly suffered as it relinquished its property taxes.

During these years, the city built a $122,000 brick clock tower in its downtown square and a $130,000 fire station, bought a $50,000 fire truck to put in it, and installed $24,000 worth of public toilets.

Most of the time it paid cash —including $200,000 for improvements that tripled the capacity of its city reservoir. With all this, the city currently enjoys a $250,000 surplus.

Butler's cash down policy is the same way he handles his own finances.

"Never in my life have I ever bought a car or a suit of clothes or even my home on credit," the 46-year-old attorney said in an interview. "I figured that if I couldn't afford to pay cash for it, I didn't need it."

Back in 1964, he said, Marion was $80,000 in the red and the property tax on a home assessed at $10,000 was $112.

"The city council determined that if the city could ever get out of the red, an effort must be made to reduce property taxes," Butler said. "It was a direct result of that determination that taxes were reduced seven out of nine years.

"Each year, the council has budgeted for expenditures less than the amount of anticipated revenue. We have adopted this as a way of being reasonably sure sufficient funds would be avaiable to meet expenses in case the revenue didn't reach the expected level. More often than not, the revenue reached or surpassed the anticipated figure."

Surpluses began building up. Annexations were pushed to broaden the city's sales tax base.

Now, Marion's yearly income includes $565,000 from the state sales tax, $300,000 from water department operations, $196,000 from federal revenue sharing, $130,000 from sewer department operations, $76,000 from the state income tax and just $47,000 from the property tax.

Marion residents won't be getting off tax free. Aside from state and federal taxes, there will still be levies for county government, schools and parks.

But the taxes will be lighter.

English villagers nix nude bathing

PERRANZABULOE, England (UPI) —The village council of this little Cornish holiday resort turned down a request for nude bathing on its beach Monday.

Chairman Len Leah said 99 per cent of the letters received by the council had been against nude bathing. The council also received a petition signed by 1,187 residents against the idea, he said. Two were in favor, both men.

Bridegroom had handcuffs

LONDON (UPI) — The bridegroom wore handcuffs when he got married Recently and is back in prison today.

The groom, Gerard Kelly, an inmate of Brixton jail awaiting trial on charges he plotted to plant bombs in London, married 17-year-old Isabel Quinn of Belfast.

Kelly, 20, had time only to hug his bride and give her one kiss before being led to a prison van for the short drive back to the jail.

Kelly applied for permission to marry about two months ago, prison officials said.

Gray fox had blue eye, another brown

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The Animal Regulation Department said Monday that for the first time any of its handlers could recall, they had trapped a gray fox with one blue eye and one brown eye.

Dumped in Mississippi

Chloroform threat watched

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)— Louisiana's chief environmentalist says it will be two more days before he can determine if 64,000 gallons of toxic chloroform dumped into the Mississippi River at Baton Rouge will by-pass New Orleans without threatening the city's water supply.

John Trygg, assistant state health officer for environment, said small traces of chloroform were detected Monday at a Dow Chemical plant 15 miles south of where the chemical was dumped into the river.

Dow officials found the chloroform traces at their water intake plant and determined concentration of the chemical to be 83 parts per billion at its strongest level. The concentration dropped steadily through most of the day.

"There is very little specific information available on chloroform as a pollutant on water. But based on the toxicity of similar materials, we have determined that that level at Dow is well within the safe level," Trygg said.

He said earlier estimates the chloroform would reach New Orleans Monday morning were wrong. The chemical, which is 150 per cent heavier than water, will probably reach New Orleans Thursday morning, he said.

"We have determined that it will take probably in excess of 80 hours to reach New Orleans and considerably longer to reach the Gulf of Mexico," he said.

Trygg said he did not expect the chemical to threaten any water supplies, but "that doesn't mean we're not watching."

A barge carrying the chloroform from Freeport, Tex. to Louisville, Ky., sank Sunday while being repaired at a dock a few miles south of Baton Rouge.

One of three compartments of the barge split and leaked 64,000 gallons of the toxic chemical into the Mississippi.

Salvage operations were underway to recover the chloroform from the other two barge compartments.

Baton Rouge does not draw any water from the Mississippi River, but 34 communities and industries, including New Orleans, do use the river as a source of drinking water.

Our status at this point is that we've got all of the water plants on the stream (Mississippi) operating with the requirement that they continue this quantititive analysis, that they continue heating the water and testing for ether odor," Trygg said.

Any community or industry recording a strong concentration of chloroform entering its water system would immediately shut all intake valves and warn other downstream system of the danger, Trygg said.

Chloroform is widely used in hospitals as an anesthetic.

Picnic set by alumni Sunday

Division 27 of the Dale Carnegie Alumni Association will hold its annual family-style picnic at Le Roy Boys' Home Sunday from noon until 6 p.m.

There will be contests, races, a softball game and visiting in the boys' dormitories.

Members of the board of directors of the Home have been invited to attend the picnic and to be present at the awarding of the Dale Carnegie Alumni Association Boy of the Year plaque to Marty Sanchez. The selection was made by the board.

Kenneth Denny, vice president of the Carnegie alumni association, is chairman of the event. He proposed the outstanding boy award after consultation with Stan Keetle, administrator of the home.

Couple repeats vows at St. Joseph Church

In an evening ceremony at St. Joseph Catholic Church, Miss Deborah Kay Bowen became the bride of Christopher Paul Weiske.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Messer of Pomona, was given in marriage by her brother, Bruce Allen Bowen. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Weiske of Norwalk.

MRS. CHRISTOPHER WEISKE

The bride wore an empire gown of lace designed with a sailor-styled collar, long, fitted sleeves and a slim skirt edged in ruffles of lace.

Pearled orange blossoms held the bride's lace-edged, fingertip veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and small red roses.

Miss Susan Lynne Howe was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Patti Waldron, Miss Julie Higgins, Mrs. Marcie Lefebure and Mrs. Debbie Burwell.

Lisa Lefebure was flower girl and Steven Gurney was ring bearer.

Best man was Albert Valdespino. Ushers were Javier Chavarin, James Brodet, Bill Nieves, Michael Weiske and Jerry Bierly.

Dancers set luau Saturday

Wheels and Chains Square Dance Club of Walnut has planned its annual luau dance at the Suzanne School, Suzanne and La Puente Road, Walnut, Saturday, at 8 p.m.

Caller will be Ray McMillan.

Recently elected officers are: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nahmeas, presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Weiss, vice presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Melendres, secretary; and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Corder, treasurer.

The club dances on the first Saturday of each month with George Caudill calling, with round dancing cued and round of the month taught by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shawver; and on the fourth Saturday to the calling of Ray McMillan.

All square dancers are invited to participate.

Let's Ask The Cook

Questions are coming in about the use of soy meal as an extender for ground beef. We bought some the day it landed in our area so we could do a kitchen taste test.

Those were the best hamburgers in a long time, surprisingly good with excellent flavor, no shrinkage, no excess grease in the pan. In fact, you had better grease the pan and cook on no more than medium heat. True, some of the grease is retained by the soy meal but, as the meat manager pointed out when we discussed the matter, you are getting 25 per cent fat per pound.

Later I checked with him to see what response the product was getting. He shook his head. "The minute women see that necessary labeling of 'imitation ground beef' they toss it back, pick up our higher priced all-meat product. I can't understand it."

The same day regular hamburger meat was selling for 10 cents a pound more if — a big if — you bought a minimum of four pounds. Otherwise it was 20 cents more per pound. In all probability those who rejected it had insufficient knowledge of what "imitation" meant.

Soy meal is high in protein content so you aren't getting gypped on nourishment. Consider, my friends, with the food situation what it is we may all be darned glad to get items anywhere near what we were accustomed to buying.

One thing I had to learn about the beef and soy mixture was not to make hamburgers as large as I used to. Since there is no shrinkage, as with so much ground beef, I wound up with more than I could get in bun or bread slices. We have also tried all-chicken wieners and liked them. If anything they are less spicy. I like that.

We did not like the raw ground turkey even when I tried turkeyburgers, turkey loaf or whatever. I could not overcome the greasy taste no matter what other ingredients I added. I wonder if they ground the turkey skin along with the meat.

Did you know that rice contains 70 per cent protein? According to Jean Myer (pronounced My-ay) professor of nutrition at Harvard University, mothers milk is the perfect protein, almost 100 per cent, whole eggs are 94 per cent. Cows milk, meat and fish range from 76 per cent to 86 per cent. Chicken, nuts and beans are all good protein sources so it isn't a matter of all beefsteak.

However, it is extremely unwise to try to eliminate all carbohydrates from your diet. In time body balance gets upset. You need some of those carbos for necessary minerals and other items. That is why Jean Myer says he wishes women in particular would stop eliminating all bread and potatoes (also high in minerals) when they set out to lose weight. It isn't so much what you eat for a balanced diet as how much.

Popka and Waggoner vows are exchanged

Miss Aylene Waggoner and Dennis George Popka were united in marriage in a Nuptial Mass at St. Madeleine's Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Byron H. Waggoner of Long Beach and Mrs. Rosie Waggoner, also of Long Beach. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Popka of Pomona.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin designed with a circular train and accented with lace medallions and seed pearls.

A crown of lace and seed pearls held the bride's elbow-length veil. She carried shasta daisies and baby's breath.

Debbie Waggoner was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Marilyn Popka, Mrs. Barbara Sirney and Mrs. Lois Ingham. Tracy Souter was flower girl.

Serving as best man was John W. Popka. Ushers were Bill Waggoner, Bill Garlock and Pat Hennigan.

A reception at The Arbor followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Popka will honeymoon in San Diego and San Francisco before making their home in Riverside. The bride is an elementary school teacher in Riverside and the groom is a claims adjuster supervisor for Allstate Insurance.

Miss Junior Teen

Coronation Thursday

A "Miss Junior Teen" will be chosen during a contest on Thursday at Montgomery Ward's, Covina, as part of an annual "Back-to-School Show."

The event will begin at 7 p.m in the front parking lot of the store. The theme for the evening will be "Flashback" featuring sweaters, coats, shirtdresses and coordinated outfits.

Competing for the "Miss Junior Teen" title are 11 finalists, Mary Woore of Pomona, Kimberly Green of Claremont, Sandra Jeal of Azusa, Shiela Perry of West Covina, Janice Coalson of Baldwin Park, Lori Stark of West Covina, Melinda McKee of West Covina, Peggy Tams of Covina, Kathy Taylor of West Covina, Peggy Cunningham of Glendora and Marylynn Pace of La Verne.

Crowning the new Miss Junior Teen will be Miss Julie Lobosky of San Dimas, this year's Montgomery Ward's Girl of the Year. Julie is the former Miss Pre Teen California and Miss Los Angeles County to the Miss Teenage America Pageant, in which she was sponsored by Montgomery Ward's. She was the youngest girl in the history of the national pageant to be one of eight semi-finalists.

Special guest stars to judge the contest will be Charlie Tuna, local disc jockey; Miss Cindy Brown, Miss Teen California; Ken Russell, City Administrator of Covina; Mrs. Connie Keenan, District Wendy Ward; Mrs. Helen Parkinson of Parkinson Promotions; Maggie Morris, beauty editor of "Teen" Magazine; Nancy Crowell, women's editor for the San Gabriel Valley Tribune; and the store manager of Montgomery Ward's Covina.

Dr. John Black performed the double-ring rites.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward P. White of Pomona was given in marriage by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gonzales of Los Angeles.

The bride's gown, created by her mother, was of satin-finished crepe. Her floor-length veil flowed to a chapel train.

White daisies and yellow roses were carried by the bride.

Mrs. Julia Wright, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

Cheryl Wright was flower girl and Bobby Wright was ring bearer.

Serving as best man was Jim Gunther. Ushers were Dick Friedman and Raymond Tasco.

A reception at the church followed the rites.

After a honeymoon in San Diego, the newlyweds will make their home in Glendale.

All about tipping

DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: We always spend one weekend during the winter at Grossinger's for the Barbershoppers' Harmony Holiday Convention. We have a question about tipping.

"The fee includes all gratuities for the waitresses and chambermaids and is clearly stated on the bill. Three meals are served each day, and the food is more than ample and delicious.

"How much do the waitresses and busboys and chambermaids get as gratuities from a convention such as this? If we feel the service is outstanding, should we tip both busboy and waitress? How much? Should each couple tip, or as a group?

"We feel we do not want to tip twice, and yet we do not want to feel we have not tipped enough. — Mrs. E. W., Maple Shade, N. J."

Grossinger's tells me that, when gratuities are built into the overall rate for a convention group, the fixed charge is now $3,75 a day, which breaks down in this fashion (for three meals on weekends): waitress or waiter — $1.70, busboy — 85 cents, captain — 50 cents and chambermaid — 70 cents. Guests are free, however, to add to this amount if they feel they have had exceptional service. The employee will still receive the basic tip.

It is advisable for each couple to give this additonal tip separately (if they wish to do so) when they are part of a group.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I have discovered an excellent travel help (even if the trip is just down the road to Aunt Martha's). The two brands of non-woven cloths (HandiWipes and Wonder Cloths) are excellent for washing anything from floors to faces. They come 10 to a package and retail here for about 59 cents. They dry quickly and rinse clean with little effort.

"Half of one is just the right size for a face cloth, so for travel they are inexpensive enough to discard. And perfect for children's hands and faces. I have been so pleased with them I thought I'd like to share the fact with your other readers. — M. F., Alameda, Calif."

A very good idea, too.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: My parents gave me a large going-away party for a planned extensive European tour. Almost all the gifts were monetary. Unfortunately, my trip has been canceled. Should I return the money to the donors? — S. M., Arcadia, Calif."

I'm sure your friends would expect you to keep the money. Had you been given other things, you would not have been expected to return them because the trip was canceled.

(Miss Amy Vanderbilt welcomes your letters and strives to answer all those of general interest in her column. Send your questions and comments to Miss Vanderbilt in care of the Progress-Bulletin.

Knit fall bulky beauty

BY JUDY LOVE

This fall is going to be the biggest season ever for sweaters. Sweaters are everywhere, in every version. You'll see sweater dresses, coat-sweaters, long, short, big and bulky. It's a fashion heyday for all you knitters. You'll never be more in style!

So, put your knitting cap on, and start making some big knitting plans for your fall wardrobe. One of the newest and hottest looks for fall is the big sweater. Big, bulky and beautiful, the big sweaters will travel in great syle this fall — to the shopping center, to school, out for a day of fun, even to the P.T.A. at night. Wear your big sweater jacket over pants, with skirts and belted over a dress.

One of the season's sure winners sports a country-classic knit feeling, but in fact much trimmer and slimmer.

This versatile sweater-topper could be the most important addition to your entire wardrobe. You'll work in Bernat Shakerspun or Big Berella Bulky, using No. 11 needles. Depending upon the kind of yarn and the size sweater you knit, you'll use from eight 4-oz. balls to 21 2-oz. skeins. Either way, you'll whip up a smart custom bargain in no time. It's beautifully finished with raglan sleeves, ribbed trim, self buttons.

The unusual, squared-off pattern is surprisingly easy to work — a simple series of K sts with a sl. 1 on the odd rows. You P the first six even rows, Knit, then repeat the 8 to 12 rows for the handsome pattern stitch. (Depending on the yarn you choose.)

THE SWEATER topper is the big hit in knits this fall.

This terrific sweater topper will spark up your fall wardrobe in a big way. You can obtain easy-to-follow directions by simply sending 50 cents to Stichin' Time, c/o this paper, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet S376 and be sure to include your name and address.

KNIT KNACKS

Dear Judy Love: My daughter has shown interest in my knitting, and I would like to encourage her to try her hand at it. What would be a good item for her to begin with? —C.A., Chicago, Ill.

Dear C.A.: A scarf would be a perfect thing for your daughter because they go quickly and she can make something that she can actually wear and show her friends this winter. This scarf is knitted on the bias, and will be fun for both of you to try! You will need two ounces of four-ply fingering yarn and a pair of No. 9 knitting needles. Cast on 45 sts. 1st row: Knit. 2nd row: Kl. Inc. 1 st. in next st. Knit to last 4 sts. K 2 tog. K 2. As you have inc. 1 st at the beginning of the row, you should still have 45 sts on the needle. Repeat 1st and 2nd rows until the edge where the decreasings were made measures 34 inches. Cast off and block.

The directions are easy, and although you may need to help your daughter at first, she should catch on quickly and be on her own. Making something on your own is very rewarding, as we knitters know, and I'm sure that after her first success (and this scarf will be!) she will be eager to try other things as well. These scarfs also make wonderful Christmas gifts for friends and relatives — and what is more appreciated than a gift that was hand made just for you!

Happy knitting. — Judy Love.

Sex bias seen in 3 fields

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Three of the areas where the public can easily see the adverse effects of sex bias in schools are textbooks, physical education courses, and the lack of women school administrators," says Katherine Cole.

The director of the new Resource Center on Sex Roles in Education said also that minority students have concern for these issues as well as other ways women and minorities are "tracked" or restricted into narrow stereotyped roles.

WHAT A WONDERFUL WAY TO LOSE FAT!
THE "MODEL-ETTS" WAY HELPS CURB YOUR APPETITE
HELPS YOU LOSE THAT EXTRA WEIGHT
■ NO CALORIE COUNTING! ■ NO EXERCISES!
■ NO SPECIAL DIETS!

Thanks to a group of New York doctors, you can now lose pounds of ugly fat without going on any special diet, without cutting out any special foods.
HELPS REDUCE HUNGRY MOMENTS.
These New York doctors discovered a food adjuvant called "MODEL-ETTS."
"Model-etts" does remarkable things. It helps you cut down your caloric intake by a natural automatic curbing of the appetite and of the desire for foods, resulting automatically in a reduced intake of food.
Before "Model-etts" was offered to you, it was tested clinically by the doctors on a large group of non-glandular overweight men and women.
The doctors carefully checked results, and here is what they found:
1. Weight losses of 6 to 20 pounds without any ill effects whatsoever.
2. 96% of the men and women who used "Model-etts" lost weight.
"Model-etts" is absolutely safe. It is a food adjuvant - not a drug.
So, start today to shed those unwanted pounds and inches. If your condition is glandular or organic, see your doctor. "Model-etts" may help you stay on the diet your doctor recommends. Ask him about it.
You can get a full month's supply of "Model-etts" for $3.00 on money back guarantee. In clinical tests, "Model-etts" was 96% successful. "Model-etts" may not be 100% successful in all cases, but you take no risk in trying "Model-etts" on our Money Back Guarantee.
Come to General Nutrition to get "MODEL-ETTS." The sooner you start, the sooner you may have the loss of weight you yearn for.

Sounds too good to be true, but it is true!

How Model-etts Curbs Your Appetite
In the opinion of the supervising physician, based on the average of weight losses in the clinical tests, his calculations showed that 1 Model-etts Wafer has the hunger satisfying capacity of 1 pound boiled potatoes or 4 eggs or 5 slices of white bread, yet it contains only 6 calories.

Change in eating habits protects against disease

As heart attacks continue to be the number 1 health problem in America, we are all becoming aware of the need to change our eating habits to guard against this dread disease. The American diet is very rich in cholesterol and saturated fat, both of which are believed to increase cholesterol levels in the blood and lead to atherosclerosis.

Many doctors recommend that we eat less meat, eggs, dairy products and shell fish, and increase our consumption of foods which are low in cholesterol and rich in polyunsaturates, such as, poultry, fish, skim milk diary products, vegetables, fruits and a corn oil margarine.

It is not difficult to adjust to this low-fat diet, and you will find many recipes can be adapted with simple substitutions (i.e. chicken for beef, margarine for butter etc.) For example, here are two informal party dishes, tacos and dessert fondue, which have been modified for sensible eating.

These unique Chicken Tacos eliminate the traditional fat-filled ground beef. The savory taco sauce combines tomatoes, onions, garlic, chili powder, ripe olives and parsley for robust flavor with just the right amount of spice.

Chocolate fondue has become a popular dessert for casual entertaining. Chocolate, however, is high in saturated fat; make butterscotch fondue instead.

It is equally delicious and because it is made with margarine it is low in cholesterol and high in polyunsaturates. Serve with a variety of fruits, marshmallows and cubes of pound cake.

CHICKEN TACOS
- 3 tablespoons margarine
- 2 whole chicken breasts, boned, skinned and cut into thin strips
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 can (1-pound) whole tomatoes, chopped
- ½ teaspoon chili powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch dissolved in 2 tablespoons water
- ½ cup sliced ripe olives
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 10 taco shells, heated
- Shredded lettuce

Melt margarine in large skillet over medium heat and brown chicken.

Add onion and garlic; cook until tender. Stir in tomatoes, chili powder, salt, pepper and hot pepper sauce. Simmer for 2 to 3 minutes. Add dissolved cornstarch and heat until mixture thickens; stir frequently. Stir in olives and parsley. Heat for 2 to 3 minutes.

To serve, fill taco shell with about ½ cup chicken mixture and top with shredded lettuce. Makes 10 tacos.

BUTTERSCOTCH FONDUE
- ¼ cup (½ stick) margarine
- 1½ cups firmly packed dark brown sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 1 and 1-3rd cups light cream
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- 3 tablespoons water
- Apple wedges
- Banana chunks
- Pitted dates
- Pound cake cubes
- Marshmallows

Melt margarine in fondue pot. Stir in brown sugar, salt and cream. Cook over medium heat, stirring until brown sugar is dissolved and mixture is bubbly. Combine cornstarch and water. Add to brown sugar mixture. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Keep warm. Dip fruit pieces, pound cake, and marshmallows into dip. Makes 2½ cups dip. To keep apple and banana chunks from discoloring, brush cut surface with lemon juice.

Nonfattening chicken dish is delicious

"Everything I like is fattening", laments the serious or not so serious dieter. Not so. Diet foods can be as enjoyable as fattening ones. The secret is in the flavor.

According to the food chemists, flavoring is a science as well as an art. Each food has a distinct taste of its own, but certain foods are really laden with flavor. To name a few: onions, garlic, green pepper, herbs, spices, citrus fruits. All are low or no-caloried. They add zest and sparkle to many an ordinary dish. Lemon juice and rind, particularly, freshen and contribute a piquant taste to bland foods that might otherwise fall by the wayside in the "taste good" department. Seasoning and broth granules, with less than six calories per packet, pep up and add flavor to dishes too.

We've combined these three flavor-enhancers to create a chicken gelatin salad, high in protein, low in calories, that easily falls into the gourmet diet food class. Cool, perky, colorful and delicious with a total calorie count of 969 for the whole recipe, 121 each for the eight portions. With a taste like this, who wants calories. Serve this salad with buttermilk, which also is both thirst-quenching and low-calorie.

CUCUMBER BOATS WITH JELLIED CHICKEN
- 4 packets golden seasoning and broth
- 2 packages (4 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
- 3 cups boiling water
- ½ cup minced green onion
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimento
- 2 cups cubed cooked turkey
- 6 to 8 medium-sized cucumbers

Combine gelatin, golden broth, lemon juice, lemon rind and boiling water. Stir until both gelatin and broth mix are dissolved. Chill until slightly firm. Add remaining ingredients.

Pour into medium-sized muffin tins or custard cups. Chill until firm. Hollow out cucumbers with teaspoon. Unmold gelatin by running knife around edge of pan. Arrange in cumcumber boats. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Do-it-yourself cooks can save their food dollars

These are make-it-yourself days. There is real saving in buying fewer convenience foods and, instead, doing more cooking and baking in your home kitchen. Such creativity is rewarding, too and will serve to add variety to menus.

Take pies, for example. It's fun to bake pies and to serve some of the less familiar ones now and then. For the finale of a company meal, make Mint Refrigerator Pie. It's dessert and after dinner liqueur all in one, for the refreshing chocolate-mint flavor comes from creme de cacao and creme de menthe. Add shavings of semi-sweet chocolate to give a professional dessert chef flourish.

Cranberry Chiffon Pie is delicious after a meal of poultry or pork. The recipe given here uses canned whole cranberry sauce. The pleasantly spiced Sweet Potato Pie may be prepared from either mashed cooked or mashed canned sweet potatoes. Dark corn syrup adds extra goodness.

Because only a little sweetening is needed in these chiffon pies, light corn syrup, which sweetens delicately without masking flavors, is used. It has the added advantage of making for smoother testure and, in the case of chiffon type pies, it helps whip them up cloud light.

MINT REFRIGERATOR PIE
- 1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup cold water
- ¼ cup creme de cacao
- ¼ cup creme de menthe
- 1 pint heavy cream
- 1 egg white
- Dash salt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ cup light corn syrup
- Shaved semi-sweet chocolate

Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat creme de cacao and creme de menthe together over low heat until mixture comes to boil. Remove from heat; stir in gelatin until completely dissolved. Cool to lukewarm. (Do not chill.) Whip cream until stiff. Fold in gelatin mixture. Chill in refrigerator while preparing egg white mixture.

Beat egg white and salt until soft peaks form when beater is raised. Gradually add sugar, beating until mixture is smooth and glossy. Beat in corn syrup, a little at a time; continue beating until mixture holds firm peaks. Fold this mixture into whipped cream mixture. Pile lightly into pastry shell. Chill several hours or until set. Decorate with chocolate. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CRANBERRY CHIFFON PIE
- 1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
- 1 package (3 ounces) lemon flavored gelatin
- ½ cup boiling water
- 1 can (1 pound) whole berry cranberry sauce
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 egg whites
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ cup light corn syrup
- ½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water in large bowl. Mix together cranberry sauce, lemon juice and salt in 2-quart saucepan. Cook over medium heat just until mixture comes to boil. Remove from heat and stir in gelatin mixture, stirring until well mixed. Chill about 2 hours or until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon.

Beat egg whites until soft peaks form when beater is raised. Gradually beat in sugar, then corn syrup, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold in gelatin mixture. Fold in whipped cream. Chill 1 hour or until mixture is firm enough to mound. Pile lightly into pastry shell. Chill about 2 hours or until set. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SWEET POTATO PIE
- 1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
- 1½ cups mashed cooked sweet potatoes or 1 can (1 pound) water packed sweet potatoes, drained and mashed
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 cup evaporated milk
- ½ cup dark corn syrup
- ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons margarine, melted
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger

Beat together sweet potatoes, eggs, evaporated milk, corn syrup, brown sugar, margarine, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger until smooth and frothy. Pour into pastry shell. Bake at 425 degrees 15 minutes; reduce to 350 degrees and continue baking about 45 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Makes 8-inch pie.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Chameleon in us all

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My wife gets very upset with me because she says I'm a phony. She can't seem to understand that if I were totally honest, especially with my collegaues, I'd be out of a job tomorrow. It doesn't seem odd to me to be many different people in the course of a day. Perhaps this is because I really feel different with different individuals. My wife sees this as being deceptive, and, in a sense, that I'm cheating others and myself.

Since this comes naturally to me, I don't see how it can be dishonest. My secretary makes me feel one way, my wife another, by boss another, and the people in my car pool bring out other parts of me. Does this mean that I have a split personality or that I'm unhealthy in some way? —A..B

Dear A.B.: I think your wife may be taking "To thine own self be true." too literally. Social psychologist Kenneth Gergen has pointed out that we all wear many masks in an average day. This does not mean that we're being untrue to ourselves. I'm certain that your wife, too, changes when she is with different people, but she may not be aware of this in herself, though she sees it quite clearly in your.

Your wife may during any one day be an educator to your children, an arbitrater, a helpful neighbor, a responsible driver for a group of adults or children; she may also hold down a full-time outside job, and when she comes home, she is part lover, part friend, part parent, part child.

The same is true of any man. He plays various roles at his place of employment and in transit. He plays different roles with his children if he is a good father. He is a companion, a teacher, a provider, and a counselor.

We have as many different social selves as there are distinct groups of persons whose opinion we care about. Studies reveal that our identity changes even when we are with strangers. If we didn't react and change according to the needs and feelings of others, we would be insensitive, and we would certainly be unpopular. You might start off a day in an exceptionally happy mood, but if you appear at the office and discover your secretary is ill or her mother has just died, your exuberance is naturally tempered. You're not apt to launch into your favorite jokes. This is not being dishonest, nor is it being a phony. To do otherwise would be inhuman and extremely immature. Only a very small child could get away with pursuing his own problems and interest with total disregard for those around him.

Each person's self is much larger than he or she realizes. When we try to analyze ourselves or look inward, we see only a small part of our self. The German philosopher Schopenhauer made a distinction between the character people pretend to be, the character they think they are, and the character they are in reality. Each of us is several people and each of us plays many roles during any 24-hour period.

How we behave, or what particular role we play often depends on what we expect or want from others. If we want a favor, we may behave in one way and if we are in a position to grant favors, we behave in another way.

We are not being superficial, in wearing these masks. They provide a way to realize our own potential and to gain insight into others.

Damaged goods save money

Slightly damaged canned goods can save you money at the market, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Cans with small dents generally are marked down in price, and the dents will not harm the contents unless the metal has been pierced or the can seems loosened, the USDA added. Cans to avoid are those that are leaking or bulging or swelling at the ends.

Violinist sits on top of musical world

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — At 25, violinist Kyung-Wha Chung sits on top of the word of classical music. All the great concert halls are her stage.

In an interview, she had some words for boys and girls struggling with music lessons and practice sessions. She also had a few asides for parents of same.

The elf-like violnist—she's a seven—has been likened to two great fiddlers, Heifetz and Oistrakh. But this teeny-tiny musical giant could pass for somebody's teen-age kid sister. She also leaves the impression she couldn't put on an air if her life depended on it.

The Korean miss started piano when four, violin when seven. Brothers and sisters also were introduced to music early.

"Not because my parents were musicians," she said. "They were not. But they were wise. They had an intuitive sense about how wonderful it would be to start their children on piano."

At 11 she won two prizes from Seoul University and at 12 her government sent Kyung-Wha on a concert tour of Japan.

Soon after she was studying in America and came to the attention of Ivan Galamian, teacher of many of the foremost concertizing violinists of the day. He arranged a full scholarship for her at Juilliard n New York.

An award in an international competition incuded an engagement with the Pittsburgh Symphony in 1967. The next year she made her debut with the New York Philharmonic. She was called a major artist, extraordinary and a lot of nice things—all the way to sensational! Well, that turned out to be the word for her debut in Europe in 1970. At London's Royal Festival Hall with the London Symphony Orchestra under Andre Previn she made her mark. It included an invitation from Previn to be his soloist on an 11-concert Far Eastern tour.

She's been going around the world ever since but keeps her schedule loose enough to allow free time either in her New York or London apartment. To extend the relaxed feeling Miss Chung travels in blue jeans.

Strawberries are grown in almost all of the 50 states, but only 31 produce them on a commercial scale. California berries are on the market six months of the year, but other states grow enough to make this fruit a year-round item.

Coal riches may change face and life of Wyoming

BUFFALO, Wyo. (UPI) — The hunger of an energy-starved nation may bring to an end the life Wyoming people know in the coal-rice Powder River Basin. It appears there's no stopping the change.

Reynolds Metals is the biggest of the many mining companies and giant utilities eyeing the vast, low-sufur coal field that waints under parts of Northeast Wyoming, Montana, and the Dakotas.

The area contains 40 per cent of the nation's remaining coal reserves, with 35 billion tons readily recoverable. Most of it can be strip-mined.

"The major portion of the people in Johnson County are opposed to it," says William Holland, 64-year-old Buffalo attorney and state legislator. "They feel the great influx of population would be detrimental to their way of life in the community, and would bring greater problems than it would benefit."

Although mining has already taken pace, the massive development anticipated by most and feared by others is down the road. Reynolds probably has the biggest plan, a $2.2 billion uranium enrichment plant near here, and also in the discussion stages are coal gasification projects, coalburning power pants and more strip mines.

Agricultural area

The Powder River Basin, lying east of the snow-capped Big Horn Mountains, is largely an agricultural area, with small towns, clean air and water. Life is different than in the big cities of the east, and some came here just for that reason.

One of Wyoming's most outspoken environmentalists, Tom Bell, an editor of the High Country News, has warned that the basin may become "the Ruhr Valley of the nation," but "people polution" seems the abiding fear of some.

Although estimates of population growth are a dime-a-dozen in this town of 3,394, one forecast sees an increase of 10,000 people in a few years if Reynolds goes through with its plans.

"Undoubtedly the coal development will bring a substantial increase in population, and then the problems of air polution from the power plants may come about. There is also a hazard to the water supply," Holland said.

Lack of water has been the major delay in coal development in this grassland, used largely as cattle and sheep graze. Plans have been discussed to pipe water in for industrial use from miles away.

Like it or not

All is not opposition in the basin, however, although residents are demanding environmental safeguards along with the new life that seems to be coming, like it or not.

At nearby Gillette, a town of 7,194, Mayor Cliff Davis says the Campbell County population may jump from about 12,597 now to 18,000 by 1980, although some estimates forecast a growth to 23,000 by that date.

"I think people here are interested in the rehabilitation of the land, and they have been given assurances of that. I think our laws are adequate on this, and I have no fear," the 65-year-old car dealer and legislator said.

Robert Wallick, operator of a 13,000-acre cattle ranch near the Montana border, fears that Wyoming's updated strip mine reclamation laws still won't be sufficient to prevent the land from being harmed.

"I'm appalled they're not spending money on alternative energy sources in the amounts they did on sending a man to the moon. What about energy sources like the moon and the sun?" the 52-year-od rancher asks.

Some are selling

Some ranchers are selling their land, if the price is right, for coal stripping. "Some of them are looking to it for the dollar value to them right now, and that's all," Wallick says.

Wyoming last year produced more coal than any of its neighbors, and there appears no stopping its growth. The total output was 10,920,000 tons, the largest production in three decades.

Reynolds has not started construction of its facilities near Lake De Smet. It is attempting to organize a consortium to finance the uranium enrichment plant and coal-burning power plant.

"We have given adsolute assurance that we will protect the environment," says Joseph N. Moffatt, of Reynolds. He says there is "actually very little polution involved."

Moffatt says Reynolds would probably bring in 1,600 to 2,100 permanent employes for the facility to produce enriched uranium for nuclear power plants, many of them in the East.

Coal, however, is the reason for Reynolds' interest in Wyoming, because it would be the power. Reynolds has one of the largest coal holdings in the state, estimated at two billion tons.

L.A. police accused of discrimination

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A suit filed in U.S. District Court Monday accused the Los Angeles Police Academy of discriminating against women in recruiting for police officers.

The suit, filed on behalf of policewoman Sgt. Fanchon Blake and Michael Wendler, a woman who applied for a police officer position, comes two days after the police recruiting department began interviewing its first woman applicants for police officer positions.

The suit said that although some 4,500 women have applied, none has been hired by the Los Angeles Police Department in three years.

Last week the department began implementing a new "unisex" program proposed by Chief Edward M. Davis which opens a police officer position for both men and women.

Trainee classes at the Academy for 70 new recruits were all male in July and August, the suit said. Both classes were conducted after the "unisex" program to hire more women was passed by the city council.

The class action suit entered by the Center for Law in the Public Interest and the American Civil Liberties Union of Southern California suggested that the next trainee class be composed of 35 men and 35 women. An all-male class could only be held if the following class was all-female.

The suit named as defendants the city of Los Angeles, Chief Davis, and the city Civil Service Commission which approved the qualifications required of candidates for the "unisex" program.

Japanese retirement bill okayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill granting four years of retirement credit to teachers of Japanese ancestry confined in relocation camps during World War II has won the endorsement of the Assembly Retirement Committee.

The bill (SB173) by Sen. Ralph C. Dills, D-Gardena, was sent to the Revenue and Taxation Committee.

Dills said the measure presently would apply to only one teacher, Mrs. Inez Nagai of San Mateo County, who was sent to a Fresno County camp in 1942.

The lawmaker expressed hope that other teachers of Japanese ancestry who suffered a similar fate will "come forward to take advantage of this law."

BRIDGE

A basic play that few use

By Owald & James Jacoby

The obligatory finesse should be classed among elementary plays, but it is doubtful if very many bridge players know it.

South is in a pretty sound four-spade contract. He has to lose a trick to the ace of clubs and barring a very bad trump break will only lose two trump tricks.

However, there is no harm making an extra trick if it can be scored and the obligatory finesse will bring it in this time.

Opening lead—♦J

South wins the diamond in his own hand and leads a spade toward dummy's queen. It holds the trick and he leads a spade back. East plays either the 10 or jack. It doesn't matter which because South simply plays a low spade.

He has nothing to lose with this play. If West holds both missing trumps he is sure of two trump tricks. If East held the trump ace he would have used it to capture the queen.

Against the actual holding West must play the ace willnilly. Later on South picks up East's last trump; discards one club on a high heart and concedes a trick to the club ace.

What about three no-trump? Declarer would still try the obligatory finesse, but against a heart lead would have trouble collecting more than nine tricks and no chance to score 11.

Man carries sign in appeal to unknown girl

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Bob Hopkins is a walking valentine.

Around his neck as he pounds the pavement of this University City is a huge sign that droops almost to the ground, an appeal for a girl he met in August to contact him.

"Is this face familiar?" the sign reads. "You would have met me Thursday, August 9, as I was picketing in front of A&P. You caught a bus. I didn't catch your name..."

Hopkins, 23, admitted today that he feels "a wee bit foolish," but he decided it was the only way to meet the girl again.

"Only middle aged ladies talk with me," he said. "Women of the relevant age ignore me."

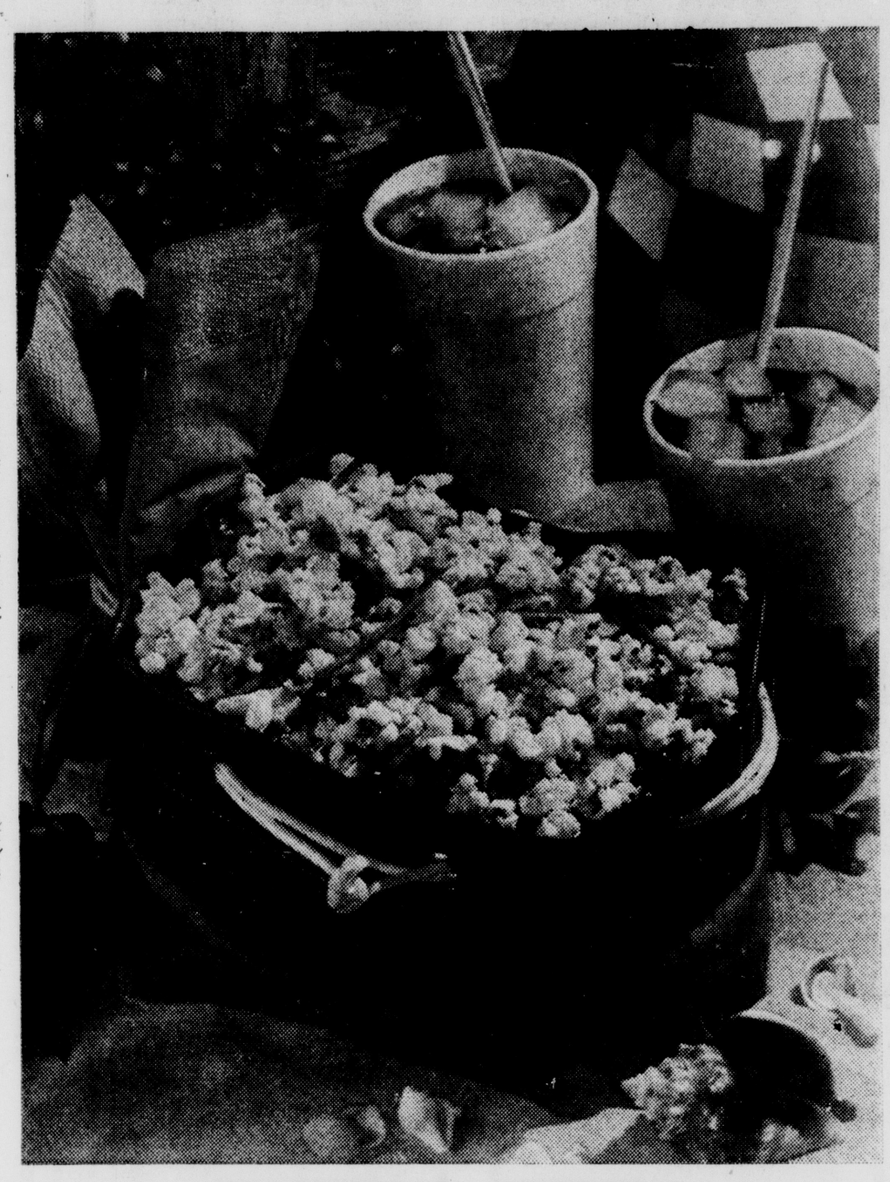
Progress-Bulletin Food and Recipes



BEACH PARTY POPCORN

Add 1 teaspoon soy sauce and 2 drops hot pepper sauce to 1-3rd cup melted butter. Put two quarts popped corn and 2 cups assorted seasoned snacks in large bowl. Pour the butter mixture over the popcorn mixture and toss well. Sprinkle with package bacon-onion dip mix and toss again. Spread mixture on a jelly roll pan and bake 8 or 10 minutes in a 350-degree oven, stirring only once. Makes 2½ quarts.

Simple hot dish is summer break

A nice simple hot dish often is welcome as a break from a constant diet of cold cuts and salads that make up many summer menus. A cheese-broccoli strata is a winning combination of flavors. Serve it with a hearty lettuce - tomato - onion - cucumber salad and lots of iced tea. There are a few tricks to making a good iced tea using either loose tea or teabags and the techniques are worth learning because tea is a true thirst-quencher.

CHEESE-BROCCOLI STRATA

(Makes 4 to 6 servings)
- 8 slices day-old bread
- ½ pound sliced process American Cheddar cheese
- 1 (10 ounce) package frozen chopped broccoli, thawed and drained
- 4 eggs
- 2 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard

Remove crusts from bread and cut each slice diagonally. Arrange 4 slices in a buttered 10 x 10 x 2-inch baking dish. Cover bread with one layer of cheese. Spread broccoli over this layer and cover with remaining cheese and bread. Beat eggs until foamy. Beat in remaining ingredients. Pour over bread in baking dish and refrigerate 1 hour. Bake in 325 degree oven for about 50 minutes or until puffed and golden brown. Serve at once. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

PERFECT ICED TEA
The 2-Quart Formula

Bring 1 quart of freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil in a saucepan. Remove from the heat and immediately add 15 teabags or one-third cup loose tea. Stir, cover and let stand 5 minutes. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding another quart of cold water. Keep at room temperature. When ready to serve pour into ice-filled glasses.

The Cold Water Method (for teabags). Fill a quart pitcher or container with cold tap water. Add 8 to 10 teabags (remove tags). Cover.

Tomato and fruit in barbecue glaze

Succulent grilled pork chops can be the new star in your barbecue repertoire. With an eye on economy, choose rib or shoulder chops, rather than loin chops.

The basting sauce is crucial for all barbecues — source of rich flavor and a beautiful golden-brown glaze. Now, you can try a new one. Here, tomato flavor, fine with pork, combines with the light touch of fruit ideal for summer. And, hurried home-makers please note: this sauce is quick and easy to concoct, as well.

All you need is an envelope of spaghetti sauce mix; then you add apricot nectar or pineapple juice. Brush the chops with the sauce, baste them repeatedly and turn them often, so they don't get too brown. Remember, all pork must be cooked thoroughly — no less then 30 to 40 minutes for these chops, over hot coals.

A new Golden Potato Salad with unusual cheesy flavor is perfect with grilled pork chops. Again, this recipe is easy and quick, using a package of potatoes au gratin. These come all peeled and sliced, with their own zesty cheese seasoning right in the package. Add the other ingredients for a new version of an old favorite, bound to rate A for appetite appeal.

Add sliced fresh tomatoes on the side for flavor and color; then, with iced tea and fresh peach shortcake, your satisfying summer repast is complete.

FRUITY GRILLED PORK CHOPS

- 1 envelope (1½ ounces) spaghetti sauce mix
- ½ cup apricot nectar or pineapple juice
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 4 to 6 pork chops

Stir together contents of sauce mix envelope, nectar or juice, and brown sugar; brush over pork chops. Grill over hot coals for 30 to 40 minutes, turning occasionally and brushing with apricot mixture, until tender and well done. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

GOLDEN POTATO SALAD

- 1 package (5 ½ ounces) potatoes au gratin
- 3 cups water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- ½ cup milk
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons vinegar

Combine potato slices from package of potatoes au gratin with water and salt in covered saucepan. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes, until tender. Drain and chill. Add celery and pepper. Combine contents of seasoning mix envelope from package of potatoes au gratin, milk, mayonnaise and vinegar; stir until smooth. Add to potato slices; toss gently. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Frankfurter is the link to economical nutrition

A woman dedicated to balancing the food budget without spending all day in the kitchen can look to the frankfurter for a helping hand. Frankfurters rate high as nourishing and satisfying assistants to hurried homemakers who want to provide quick, easy and economical entrees. The versatile frank, popular as a snack, can be combined with many other foods to achieve status at the dinner table.

Frankfurters require minimum preparation since they're fully cooked prior to packaging. Just heating through will bring them to full-bodied flavor, and with the addition of a bun, they're table ready. However, frankfurters easily can be converted into more exciting entrees.

For a tasty example, try Baked Frank and Bean Wrapups. This three-part harmony of texture and taste provides a trio to everyone's liking. Dad as well as the kids will go for the flavor of frankfurters split, filled with pork and beans and wrapped with bacon.

This is a nutritious entree as well as a tasty one. A hearty serving of two Frank and Bean Wrapups provides 19 to 22 grams of body building protein, well over a third of the recommended daily dietary allowance for most family members. They also contribute iron and the important B vitamins.

Fortunately this is a recipe that doesn't wear out its welcome with repetition. So keep it on file for some of those many times you want to provide a satisfying dish with good flavor at modest cost.

Also remember Baked Frank and Bean Wrapups when you need to solve an emergency meal problem. There's no preliminary procedure to go through. It's a convenient and quick route from easy preparation, to oven, to table.

Cole slaw, tomato slices and relishes provide accompaniments that are quick and p easing. Cornbread from a mix can bake with the wrapups to complete the main course while an ambrosia of slices of peaches and bananas makes a simple and delightful dessert.

BAKED FRANK AND BEAN WRAPUPS

- 1 pound (8 to 10) frankfurters
- 8 to 10 slices bacon
- 1 can (8 ounces) pork and beans
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons instant minced onion
- ½ teaspoon prepared horseradish

Slit franfurters lengthwise, but don't cut through. Combine pork and beans, prepared mustard, brown sugar, minced onion and horseradish. Place a heaping tablespoonful of bean mixture in slit of each frankfurter and wrap a bacon strip around each, securing with small wooden picks. Place frankfurters on rack in roasting pan and bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 18 to 20 minutes. Makes 4 to 5 servings of two frankfurters each.

New fish recipes are a lucky catch

If you're casting about for some interesting new company dishes, this catch of two choice fish recipes is a lucky catch indeed. Each dish has dinner party distinction yet both are remarkaby simple to prepare. They also boast a budget bonus—on a cost per serving basis, no-waste fillets and scallops are less expensive than many meats.

A smooth golden sauce, subtly seasoned with prepared yellow mustard, distinguishes the Baked Sauced Scallops, Wreathed with crunchy bleu cheese-flavored croutons, the dish presents an interesting contrast in tastes and textures. And remember, thaw frozen scallops before adding to the sauce and be sure not to overcook.

In the Baked Sole Florentine, smooth mashed potatoes quickly stirred together using instant mashed potato granules are combined with spinch to make a bed for the fillets. A sprinkling of cheese complements this exciting meal in one.

Either dish served with hot biscuits, glazed carrots and fresh vegetable relishes and topped off with cherry cobbler and coffee, is a balanced, festive and colorful meal.

BAKED SAUCED SCALLOPS

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1¼ cups milk
- ¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
- 2 tablespoons cocktail sherry, if desired
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1½ to 2 pounds scallops
- Cheese croutons or buttered bread crumbs

Melt butter in small saucepan; add flour and stir until smooth. Gradually add milk, sitrring constantly. Add mustard, sherry, and salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until mixture comes to a boil. Combine with scallops. Spoon into shallow 2-quart casserole; sprinkle croutons or bread crumbs around edge. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes, until bubbling hot. Makes 6 servings.

BAKED SOLE FLORENTINE

- 1 envelope instant mashed potato granules
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 package (10 ounce) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
- ½ teaspoon dill weed, if desired
- 1 pound fillet of sole or haddock, thawed
- Salt and black pepper
- ¼ cup shredded Swiss cheese
- Paprika

Prepare mashed potatoes following directions on package except increase salt to 1 teaspoon. Stir in egg, spinach, and dill weed. Spoon into greased shallow baking dish; arrange fish fillets on top of potatoes. Season with salt and pepper; sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until fish flakes easily when pierced with fork. Garnish with paprika. Makes 4 servings.

Dieters' spirits rise when this bread is served

There is nothing as special as the fragrant aroma of home-baked bread—especially to a low-sodium dieter when he knows it's being made especially for him. This delicious herb bread (and its many exciting variations) is guaranteed to perk up that dieter's spirits and add zest to his bland, routine low-sodium diet.

Nondieters will like it just as much as sodium-restricted diners, so make several loaves at a time, freezing for future meals. There's so little sodium in a slice of herb bread—only 4 milligrams—that this recipe fits into even a severely restricted sodium diet. And seasoned salt substitute is rich in potassium—an extra bonus to the dieter, since it eliminates the need for supplemental potassium compounds, so necessary for the low-sodium dieter.

LOW SODIUM HERB BREAD

(Makes 2 loaves, about 20 slices each.)

- 1 cup scalded nonfat milk
- 6 tablespoons soft shortening
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 2½ teaspoons seasoned salt substitute
- 1 package active dry yeast OR 1 cake compressed yeast
- 1 cup very warm (105-115 degrees) or lukewarm water
- 1-3rd cup chopped fresh parsley, chives or green onion tops
- ⅛ teaspoon crumbled rosemary
- 6 cups all-purpose flour (approximately)

Into scalded milk, stir shortening, sugar and seasoned salt substitute. Cool until lukewarm. Sprinkle or crumble yeast into very warm water in large bowl (for compressed yeast, use lukewarm water—80 to 85 degrees); stir until dissolved. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, parsley and rosemary. Add 3 cups flour; beat with spoon until smooth. Stir in remaining 3 cups flour. If dough is still too moist to handle, work in a little more flour.

Turn onto lightly floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl; brush lightly with salad oil. Cover with towel; let rise in warm place (about 85 degrees) until double in bulk, about 1½ hours. Punch down; turn rounded side up; cover; let rise in warm place a second time for about 30 minutes (the second rising is not necessary, but produces a better textured, finer loaf).

Knead well again; divide dough into 2 portions; mold into a loaf. Place in two greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pans.

Brush with salad oil if you wish a soft crust (and can afford the extra calories).

Cover with towel. Set in warm place (about 85 degrees); let rise until sides of dough have reached top of pan and center is well rounded above pan. Bake at 400 degrees about 30 minutes or until done. Remove from pans to rack at once. (If soft crust is desired and you can't afford the calories, cover bread with damp towel for 5 minutes. Wrap when cooled, so loaves won't dry out).

The sodium content will be reduced even more if distilled water is used in place of ordinary water. The sodium content will be increased if sweet butter or unsalted margarine is used in place of

FOR WHITE BREAD: Use salt substitute instead of seasoned variety. Omit parsley and rosemary.

Make these rolls and variety shapes with either the herb or white bread doughs:

SWIRL BREAD: Divide dough into 3 portions. Cut one portion in half; roll each half into a 24-inch strip. Twist strip; wind into a coil in center of an 8 or 9-inch round layer pan, well greased with shortening. Twist second strip and coil around first strip. Use remaining portions of dough for 2 more swirl breads. Let rise to double its bulk; bake at 350 degrees 35 to 45 minutes.

FRENCH BRAID BREAD: Use ½ or 1-3rd dough, depending on size braid you wish. Roll into rectangle ½" thick. Cut into 4 strips about 12 inches long; place on greased baking sheet or in shallow greased baking dish. Braid strips together, sealing ends. Sprinkle lightly with sesame seeds. Let rise and bake at 375 degrees about 25 minutes.

COCKTAIL LOAF: Using about ¼ dough, shape into long, slender roll about 15 inches long. Slash top at 3-inch intervals with sharp knife; sprinkle top with Seasoned Salt Substitute. Place seam side down on greased cookie sheet. Curve ends in to form crescent or make "snail" shape if you wish variety. Let rise and bake at 375 degrees about 20 minutes.

QUICK CLOVERLEAFS: Shape dough into 2-inch balls. Place in greased muffin cups; brush with oil. Let rise and bake 400 degrees about 15 to 20 minutes.

PARKER HOUSE: Roll out dough on floured surface to about ¼-inch thickness. Cut into 3-inch rounds, with biscuit cutter. Brush with melted shortening. Mark a crease with dull edge of knife to one side of center of each round. Fold so top half slightly overlaps; press edges together at crease. Place close together on greased baking sheet. Let rise and bake at 400 degrees about 15 to 20 minutes.

HERB STICKS: Roll herb bread dough ½-inch thick. Cut into 6 x ½-inch strips. Pinch each strip into pencil-like shape. Then place fingers on ends of each strip; gently roll strip back and forth, moving fingers to center, then out to ends again, to form evenly shaped 10 x ⅜-inch stick. Place sticks 1 inch apart on greased cookie sheet. Slash tops in 2 places; sprinkle tops with seasoned salt substitute. Let rise and bake at 400 degrees about 15 to 20 minutes.

DINNER BRAIDS: Roll out dough to ½-inch thickness. Cut into 5 x ½-inch strips. Braid strips together in groups of 3, sealing ends. Place on greased baking sheets; sprinkle with sesame, caraway or poppy seeds, if desired. Let rise and bake at 400 degrees about 12 to 15 minutes.

Rice dish is versatile

Those who enjoy eating find good recipes turning up in many places. For example, a delicious orange-raisin rice was whipped up by the chef of the Lakeland Yacht Club in Lakeland, Fla., as a special treat for members of the Florida Citrus Commission and their guests. The chef and FCC members generously shared the recipe with those who later also enjoyed the refreshing and different rice dish. Orange-raisin rice goes well with fish and meats and Chinese dishes.

ORANGE - RAISIN RICE

- 1 tablespoon shredded orange rind
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1½ cups water
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ½ cup seedless white raisins
- 1 cup raw rice

To shred orange rind, remove very thin orange-colored rind from orange with potato peeler; cut into thin strips. Melt butter in saucepan. Add orange juice, water, salt, sugar, raisins and orange rind. Bring to a boil. Add rice slowly. Cover; reduce heat and cook 25 minutes until rice is tender and liquid has been absorbed. Makes 6 servings.

IN 1963 - LUCKY was the first supermarket to take action against high food prices. That's when LUCKY abolished stamps, games and other costly gimmicks and gave you instead, everyday low discount prices and worthwhile savings in every department.

NOW IN 1973, we are again deeply concerned with rising food costs. As in the past, you can count on us to bring you our customary high quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices at all times.

However, in these unpredictable times, there may be unavoidable shortages of some products. Regretfully therefore, we must stipulate that all items appearing in our advertisements are subject to the availability of those products during the period of the advertisement. You may be sure we will do all we can to keep our shelves fully stocked. We deeply appreciate your patience, loyalty and understanding.

Make salads fun for the small fry

Salads seem to bore small children and it often is difficult to slow the youngsters down long enough to feed them a nutritious meal during summer playtime. Quick dunking foods served on decorated plates and in cups help lure them to eat. Most children enjoy embellishing their fare with sprinkle-ons or like to dunk them. Added fun comes when the young ones can laugh at cartoons and riddles while eating. Cut up bananas, for example, into bitesize chunks or serve fresh pineapple, raw carrot and celery strips to dunk in a variety of dressings served in paper cups.

Bitesize banana, carrot and celery strips make fun dunking salad.

SALAD FUN

ROSY MAYONNAISE

1 cup mayonnaise
1-3rd cup pineapple juice
3 tablespoons finely chopped maraschino cherries

Combine all ingredients in a bowl and beat until smooth and well blended. Chill until ready to serve. Makes one and one-half cups.

CHEESECAKE DRESSING

1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, at room temperature
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
¼ cup milk or cream

Mash cream cheese and sugar until soft and fluffy. Stir in lemon rind. Gradually beat in milk until mixture is smooth. Chill until ready to serve. Makes about 1 cup.

PEANUT BUTTER DRESSING

1-3rd cup peanut butter
1-3rd cup mayonnaise
1-3rd cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Combine all ingredients and beat until smooth and well blended. Chill until ready to serve. Makes 1 cup.

Sandwiches can be frozen to be safe

Brown baggers and picnic goers taking sandwiches on outings must fight summertime heat. Without refrigeration, sandwich fillings wilt and chance undesirable growth of bacteria causing foodborne illness.

For safety's sake, freeze sandwiches that must travel in summer heat for more than three or four hours. Sandwiches are put in the freezer the night before; then in the morning, sandwiches are put in the picnic cooler or lunch box. Within a couple of hours, they'll be thawed and ready to eat.

To prevent soggy fillings, spread a thin layer of margarine to cover filling side of bread. Use filling of cold meat or poultry, peanut butter or cream cheese.

Avoid cooked egg white which becomes tough, also mayonnaise and some salad dressings which separate. Raw vegetables can lose their crispness.

Wrap sandwiches in plastic bags, excluding as much air as possible, and fasten tightly.

Or, place sandwich in center of square of freezer paper, foil, or plastic wrap. Bring edges of paper together. Fold two edges together, overlapping several times, until they fold flat on sandwich. Turn package over and fold corners back. Fold ends back several times until they fold flat on sandwich.

Put sandwiches in the freezer. They may be frozen up to two weeks. Two sandwich suggestions by Mrs. Higgins that keep best when refrigeration is impossible are peanut butter and jelly or cheese.

Thompson grape harvest under way

Thompson Seedless grapes are now being harvested full blast in the Delano area. The next two to three weeks should be the best time to buy them.

From Delano to Fresno harvest of the seedless grape crop should supply markets through September. Storage houses will continue to furnish retailers with Thompsons through October.

The quality of Delano grapes is considered average to good, easily meeting the minimum requirement for sugar content. Berry sizes generally are medium to large, and very desirable for consumers.

A little hint on buying Thompson Seedless grapes — those berries with an amber blush indicate maximum flavor and sweetness. However, marketing of such grapes is difficult. Maximum ripeness of Thompson causes "shattering," or grapes falling off the bunch. The lighter the straw-like color and the closer to amber the color of the berry, the sweeter the treat.

Warm weather several months ago contributed to a heavier harvest of Thompsons this year, as compared to last year. Delano has the largest acreage of all California districts, and should reach peak production by the end of this month. It will be followed by the Fresno-Dinuba-Reedley district about the first of September.

Prices at present are reasonable, and the fruit plentiful. Thompsons are sellling from 43 to 69 cents per pound at retail, and this is not expected to increase because of the labor situation unless supplies are drastically curtailed.

A little less than half of the total Thompsons produced in California are sent to the fresh market. The remainder of the berries are processed, either dried as raisins, crushed for wine or brandy or canned in fruit cocktail.

Here is a healthy and nutritious salad using canned fruit cocktail for a summer treat.

BANANA SPLIT SALAD

For each salad line banana split dish with lettuce and top with shredded lettuce that has been tossed with oil and vinegar dressing. Split 1 banana lengthwise and moisten with ascorbic acid.

Roll banana in granola cereal and place each half along side of dish. Using a scoop, place 3 balls of cottage cheese down center of dish. Sprinkle ¼ cup fruit cocktail over cottage cheese. Serve with honey lemon yogurt dressing.

For honey lemon yogurt dressing, blend 1 quart yogurt with ½ cup honey and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Garnish each serving with poppy seeds, if desired.

Safety tips for barbecuing

Going to barbecue on your balcony, out in the backyard or at the beach this summer season? If so, the National Safety Council has these suggestions for safer summer cookouts.

To start a charcoal fire, use wood chips or shavings, or an electric starter. If a liquid is used, make sure its for that purpose only. Never use gasoline or lighter fluid. Also, never add starter fluid once the charcoal is lighted due to the danger of flare ups. And, never use a charcoal grill indoors!

Prices high everywhere

If you think America's food prices are too high, be happy you don't live in Japan. Tokyo retailers were charging $2.25 to $2.65 for a single peach. Prices are 50 per cent higher than in 1972.

As a meat substitute

Catfish is gaining status

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The ugly, whiskered catfish, introduced into California waters in 1874, has reached a new peak of popularity.

Beef shortages and threats of soaring prices have turned the consumer to possible new meat substitutes and leading the list, according to the state Department of Fish and Game, is the catfish.

Ralph "Catfish" Young, spokesman for the department who works out of Long Beach, attributes the new, surging interest in catfish to its easy catchability and wide availability across the state.

The state spent about $275,000 in catfish programs last year, stocking Southern California waters with half a million, yearling fish. Smaller ones also were planted throughout Northern and Central California.

"There is a tremendous interest in catfish," Young said. "We've had quite a few inquiries about where to catch them and requests for a free catfish recipe booklet are running about 300 a day."

Young advises that the catfish, distinguished from other fish by its smooth, scaleless body and eight long whiskers, can be taken on ordinary or even the crudest of tackle. He suggests such baits as mackerel, live bluegills, minnows, crayfish, clams, "in fact they seem to like something that smells a bit. They really go for odors."

The catfish, Young adds, is "very sensitive to vibrations and that type of thing. They seem to hear noises. You've got to be very, very quiet and very, very patient. Patience is the essence."

Young, who has tried most of the 21 recipes he helped compile in the booklet (available by writing the department at 350 Golden Shore Long Beach, Calif. 90802), calls the catfish "one of the best tasting I've ever eaten. It has a chickenish texture and it's rather delicate. I think it's very delicious. I like fish and I think it's one of the best."

Two of Young's favorite recipes are Mother Hubbard's Secret and The Colonel's Favorite.

The ingredients for Mother Hubbard's Secret are: 3 pounds skinned catfish fillets, 1 gallon water, 1 cup salt, ½ cup beer or ale, ½ cup prepared mustard, 2 cloves finely minded garlic, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce, ½ cup toasted sesame seeds and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley and paprika.

To put it all together add salt to water and stir until dissolved. Pour brine over fish and let stand for 30 minutes. Remove fish from brine and dry. Combine beer, mustard, garlic, Worcestershire sauce, liquid hot pepper sauce, ¼ cup sesame seeds and parsley. Dip fish in mustard mixture and sprinkle with remaining ¼ cup sesame seeds and paprika. Place on well greased grill inside smoke oven. Cook in a very slow oven at 250 degrees for one hour or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve with hot biscuits. Serves six or more.

The ingredients for the Colonel's Favorite are:

2 pounds catfish steaks, ½ teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 2 cups cooked rice, 2 tablespoons grated onion, ½ teaspoon curry powder, 5 thin lemon slices, ¼ cup butter or margarine and chopped parsley.

To put it all together cut the fish into serving size portions place in a well greased baking dish 13-by-9 by 2 inches. Sprinkle fish with salt and pepper. Combine rice, onion, and curry powder and spread over fish. Top with lemon slices and dot with butter. Cover. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees for 25 to 35 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove cover the last few minutes of cooking to allow for slight browning. Sprinkle with parsley. Serves six.

Save energy as you cook

When it comes to cooking, the power companies offer a few tips to conserve energy during the latest crisis: use a portable grill or fry pan instead of the oven. When the oven is used, cook as many dishes as you can at the same time. And, avoid using a large unit for a little pan.

However, the dairy industry suggests ways to avoid cooking altogether: Use your imagination and dairy products right from the refrigerator for some super summer meals. Fresh fruits and vegetables complement such dairy products as cottage cheese, yogurt, sour cream, natural cheese, or ice cream and sherbet for tasty snacks, salads, main dishes or desserts.

WE BAKE ENOUGH SWEET ROLLS AND COFFEE CAKES FOR A MONTH OF SUNDAYS.

Rise and shine! At Van de Kamp's, we bake over 20 "good morning" things like Cinnamon Rolls and Danish, Bear Claws and Butterhorns, Dutch Rings, Walnut Swirls, Rosettes...it just goes on and on. And whether you eat them nestled next to scrambled eggs and sausage or just heaped with melty butter, you'll find every one's worth getting up for.

Mostly, that's because we still bake our sweet rolls and coffee cakes like we've been baking them for over half a century—with real eggs and plenty of just-churned butter and fresh fruits.

Even our rolling pin's still in use. So c'mon. This Sunday, or any day of the week, treat yourself and the whole family to a deliciously old-fashioned good morning. From Van de Kamp's.

The cod fish ball eases the budget

It is delightful the way certain foods are described in literature. For example, cod is called "salt-water fish with a very low social rating" in one tome although it is considered one of the most important of commercial fish. Depending upon how it is cooked, cod can be good or gagging. In today's market, its price is right. Try Cod Fish Balls or Cod Fish Cakes with a Spicy Tomato Sauce as a taste change and to ease the budget.

COD FISH BALLS

- 2 ounces salted boneless cod fish
- water
- 2 cups diced potato
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 tablespoon margarine
- Dash pepper
- ¼ cup flour
- 1 tablespoon corn meal
- 1 pint (about) corn oil
- Spicy Tomato Sauce (recipe below)

Cover cod fish with cold water and soak 1 hour; drain. Put soaked cod fish in 2-quart saucepan; cover with water. Bring to boil and boil 15 minutes. Drain and flake, if needed. Cook diced potato in boiling water 10 minutes or until tender; drain well. Mash together cod fish and potato.

Stir in egg, margarine and pepper. Beat until light and fluffy. Shape into 2-inch balls. Mix flour and corn meal. Coat balls with flour mixture. Pour corn oil into heavy flat-bottomed 3-quart saucepan, deep fryer or 10-inch deep skillet, filling utensil no more than one-third full.

Heat over medium heat to 375-degrees or follow manufacturer's directions for electric frypan or deep fryer.

Carefully add cod fish balls, a few at a time. Fry about 5 minutes or until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot with Spicy Tomato Sauce. Makes 9 to 10 balls or 3 to 4 servings.

Cod Fish Cakes

Shape mixture into 2 and one-half-inch cakes. Coat both sides lightly with flour mixture. Heat one-fourth cup (about) corn oil in large 10-inch heavy skillet over medium heat or follow manufacturer's directions for electric frypan. Place fish cakes carefully into hot corn oil and fry about 2 minutes on each side or until golden brown. Add additional corn oil if needed. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 10 to 12 cakes.

SPICY TOMATO SAUCE

- 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
- 2 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon light corn syrup
- 1 tablespoon margarine
- 1 teaspoon basil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 bay leaf

Stir together all ingredients in saucepan. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer, stirring occasionally, until sauce has thickened, about 20 minutes. Makes 2 cups.

Brush flavor on vegetables

Fresh vegetable kabobs cooked on the barbecue grill are flavored when brushed with melted butter. But they're even tastier when the melted butter has other flavors added! So, for a tastier kabob, brush with parmesan-butter baster. Combine ½ cup (1 stick) melted butter with ¼ cup grated parmesan cheese, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and ½ teaspoon leaf oregano. Then cook your favorite vegetable kabob combination, brushing occasionally with the butter baster for a great cookout meat accompaniment.

Dairy foods help dieters

Need to diet to look a little better in that bikini on the beach? If so, remember to reduce sensibly! Adopt a diet of low-cal, high-energy foods packed with nutrients to prevent between-meal hunger and dieter's fatigue. Dairy products can be a dieter's most valuable ally. Milk and other milk products such as yogurt, cottage cheese or cheese are leading sources of body-building calcium and protein, riboflavin and vitamin A. Dairy food dishes will stick to your ribs and help you stick to your diet.

As Selma sees it

Counting calories isn't the only way

DEAR SELMA:
Is it not true that counting calories is the only way to govern one's intake of food values?
Mrs. J. W.

Dear Mrs. J. W.:
Counting calories to control the intake of food values is one way—not the only way—to approach weight control. Calorie counting finds us substituting candy for cottage cheese and vegetables. It does not guarantee a balanced diet and it does not account for the fact that, as fat people, we are lazy and we give up too easily at something requiring constant mathematics. I prefer something easier, where counting of calories and worrying about food values has been done for me to ensure that I will have a balanced program of eating and still lose weight.

DEAR SELMA:
How can I eat in a restaurant or while traveling?
Mrs. B. G.

Dear Mrs. B. G.:
I have found that it is easy to get the foods we need while losing or maintaining our weight. It isn't necessary to be frightened about eating out. Order the food required on your diet. Meats can be broiled and there are many types of vegetables, salads and fresh fruits available. If they bring your steak or fish floating in butter, remember that you are allergic to butter—you break out in fat. Send it back.

Stroganoff combination is appetizing

A different beef stroganoff combines brussels sprouts with sauteed meat and mushrooms, served over hot buttered noodles. The appetizing combination is topped with a sour cream-wine sauce for a special and lower cost midweek family dish.

BEEF AND SPROUT STROGANOFF

- 1½ pounds boneless sirloin steak about ¾ inch thick
- Butter or margarine
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- ¼ cup water
- ¾ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced, or 2 cans (3 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 packages (10 ounces each) frozen brussels sprouts
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon basil leaves
- 8 ounces medium wide noodles (about 4 cups)
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 quarts boiling water
- ¼ cup white wine (optional)
- ½ cup milk
- 1½ cups dairy sour cream

Slice steak diagonally into slices ⅛-inch thick. Place slices between two pieces of waxed paper or foil and pound with rolling pin until very thin. Cut into 3-inch strips. Set aside. Melt two tablespoons butter in large skillet. Saute onion until crisp-tender. Add meat and brown on both sides. Add ¼ cup water, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add mushrooms, brussels sprouts, pepper, salt and basil. Cover and simmer another 15 minutes or until sprouts are tender. Add more water if needed. Meanwhile, add noodles and one tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil.

Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Transfer to serving dish and mix with one tablespoon softened butter, Spoon meat-brussels sprouts mixture around outside edge of serving dish, piling noodles in center. Cover and keep hot. Add wine to drippings in skillet. Bring to boil and simmer about 30 seconds. Add milk and heat almost to boiling. Remove from heat and blend in sour cream. Spoon sauce over meat and noodles. Makes 6 servings.

Try celery for crispest of salads

An all-purpose salad is crackly crisp and sweet with a combination of sliced celery, raisins, chopped walnuts and carrots. Dressing has a sour cream base. Serve it with roast pork, chicken or a cheese main dish or with cold cuts. This salad does not wilt quickly so it is a good choice for a buffet dish.

CELERY SLAW

- 3 cups thinly sliced Florida celery
- ½ cup coarsely shredded carrots
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
- 1-3rd cup salad oil
- 2 tablespoons wine vinegar
- 1¾ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ½ cup dairy sour cream

In a small bowl combine celery with carrots, raisins and walnuts; set aside. Blend together oil, vinegar, salt and black pepper. Slowly stir in sour cream. Pour over celery mixture; toss lightly. Serve with meat, poultry or fish. Makes 6 portions.

Frozen sweet that's chewy

Make a summer's eve supper end sweetly. Dissolve 1 envelope unflavored gelatine in ¾ cup hot juice or sherry. add 1 pint softened vanilla ice cream by spoonfuls and stir to melt. Fold in ½ cup snipped pitted prunes. Spoon into dessert dishes and chill.

Italians have a word for cheesecake—low-calorie

Yes, it is possible to have your cheesecake and eat it too—without the usual zillion calories a slice. This Italian-inspired cheesecake manages the trick nicely, thanks to ricotta cheese and fresh California peaches.

There's no denying that everyone's old standby cream cheese cheesecake recipe is excellent—or that it's loaded with calories. The Italians have a different idea. They prefer their cakes lighter and zestier—and they serve them, typically, as an accompaniment to fresh fruit. (Italians are, of course, among the world's more notable fruit lovers.) Put the lighter-cake concept and fresh fruit together and you have Italian Fresh Peach Cheesecake, capped with ripe summer peaches.

The use of ricotta, the classic Italian low-fat "cottage cheese," in this cheesecake makes it rich-tasting—but lessens the cheese caloric load considerably. (The cheese is readily available in most areas but if you can't find any, just substitute low-fat cottage cheese.) The ripe peaches add their own special—and low-calorie—juiciness and sweetness to the whole affair. It's a rather astonishing fact that, for all their sweetness, a medium-sized fresh peach has only 38 calories, making peaches the darlings of weight-worrying epicures.

And—with the protein and calcium in ricotta and the good quantity of vitamin A provided by the peaches, this cheesecake is not only delectable enough to top off a dinner party, it's nutritious enough for a.m. and p.m. snacks without too many attacks of remorse.

The fresh peaches called for in this recipe come, appropriately, from California, the nation's own "Mediterranean" area, and one of its largest peach-producing states. Californians, like Italians, know their fresh fruit. A tip from California: Home-can or freeze fresh peaches while they're available, from now through September. They're probably the most versatile of all fruits; "put up" in a light syrup, they do have more calories than fresh peaches, but their fresh flavor and their versatility endure.

For more exciting ways to use and serve fresh California fruits this summer, write for your free copy of a colorful new 48-page booklet. Prepared by the growers of California fruits, this beautifully illustrated booklet contains more than 100 tested recipes. Please send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to "Fruits of Summer," P.O. Box 4640, Sacramento, Ca. 95825.

ITALIAN FRESH PEACH CHEESECAKE

4 eggs
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ pounds (3 cups) ricotta cheese or low-fat cottage cheese, pressed through a fine sieve
1 cup evaporated milk
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated fresh lemon peel sliced
Powdered sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Press all but ¾ cup of the crumbs firmly over bottom of a 9-inch spring-form pan. Bake 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on a rack. Meanwhile, in a large mixing bowl, beat eggs until light-colored.

Gradually add sugar, beating until mixture is thick and light. Blend in salt and ricotta, then evaporated milk. Add flour, vanilla, lemon juice and lemon peel; mix well. Pour mixture over cooled crust.

Sprinkle reserved crumbs evenly over top. Bake at 350 degrees 1 hour and 10 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Turn off oven and leave oven door ajar; allow cake to cool in oven for about 2 hours. Cover cake and chill.

At serving time, remove sides of pan. Arrange peaches over top of cake and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Makes 10 servings.

CINNAMON CRUST CRUMBS. Whirl in a blender or crush into fine crumbs 1 package (6 ounces) zwieback. Pour crumbs into a mixing bowl and blend in ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon and 1-3rd cup melted butter.

Solon fined, sentenced to day in jail

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Sen. Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., was fined $110 Monday and sentenced to one day in jail on a drunken driving charge.

Superior Judge Williby Case Jr. said the jail sentence was mandatory under state law. He gave Fannin 30 days within which to report for serving his jail time.

Fanning was arrested last Nov. 17 by an officer who later accused the senator being abusive and threatening his job. A breath analyzer test indicated a blood alcohol content of .135 per cent. The legal limit is .10.

But the charge was dismissed after three doctors submitted affidavits stating that Fannin was taking a medicine, zyloprin, which could affect the test.

This was disputed by a police chemist, and the dismissal caused controversy. A grand jury began an investigation of the circumstances, and County Attorney Moise Berger reinstated the charges last week.

An explanation of Sunday's qualifying

The two 100-mile qualifying races for the California 500 will be held this Sunday.

The 500 itself is a week from Sunday. Relatively little publicity has been forthcoming this year. The track, as almost everyone knows, is being run by a new group after the old one was unable to meet its bond obligation payments and had to throw in the towel.

The two 100-mile qualifying races are an entirely new departure from the usual method of qualifying for Indy type races. It's never been done before and the auto racing world will be watching with interest.

Previous procedure has always been to have the drivers with the fastest averages for the four qualifying laps on the first day of qualifications start in that order on race day.

Anyone qualifying on subsequent qualifying days was placed in the starting grid BEHIND all of those who qualified the first day.

Under the new format, the drivers will drive the qualifying laps Saturday. But there ends the similarity. Instead of four laps, they'll drive only two. That way everybody should get ample chance to qualify.

True, the three fastest drivers do clinch the one-two-three (first row) positions Saturday. But wait, we've just begun.

Everybody races Sunday

The three fastest are still expected to race Sunday in the two 100--mile events. The reason being there is considerable money and championship points to be won.

The difference Sunday is that everybody but the three fastest will also be racing to determine their actual starting positions for the California 500 Sept. 2.

Drivers with the fourth through the 18th fastest speeds Saturday are guaranteed places in rows two through six for the 500. But Sunday's two 100-mile events will determine their exact position.

Drivers with the 19th through 27th fastest speeds are guaranteed places in rows seven through nine. But the exact position will be determined in one of the Sunday races.

Makeup of those races will be determined through the speeds at which the drivers qualify Saturday. The odd numbers (fastest, third fastest, fifth fastest, etc.) will be in the first race at 1 p.m.

The even numbers (second fastest, fourth fastest, sixth fastest, etc.) will be in the second race which will start at 3 p.m.

A driver who, for example, had the fourth fastest time Saturday might place poorly or even be forced to drop out of this race Sunday. As a result he would be placed lower (depending on his finish), but no lower than 18th (outside, sixth row) for the start of the 500.

A driver who qualified at the 19th to 27th fastest speed Saturday can move up no higher than 19th position (inside, seventh row) no matter what he does Sunday. By the same token, he can wind up no farther back than 27th (outside, ninth row) for the 500.

Room for more

The last six starting positions will be determined entirely from results of the two 100-mile qualifying races Sunday of cars who qualified at speeds below the fastest 27 Saturday or qualified during the final qualifications Sunday morning.

But that's still not all!

It's no wonder the final format of the qualifications was not agreed upon (between drivers and USAC) until Tuesday morning.

And in spite of the paucity of publicity, it should make for the most exciting qualifications ever for an Indy type car.

The two 100-mile events Sunday both count toward the National Driving Championship and points will be given.

Purse for each 100-mile race is $25,000 with the winner getting 26½ percent or $6,875. The leader, or leaders in each race will earn $125.00 for each lap they lead the race.

So the pole winner or either of the other two front-row qualifyers Saturday can pick up some pretty good money plus championship points Sunday.

The pole winner, whoever he may be, and the driver who earns the outside position on the first row Saturday will be in the 1 p.m. race. The number two qualifier, who earns the middle position in the first row Saturday, will be in the 3 p.m. event.

OMS drivers clear 190 m.p.h.

ONTARIO — Speeds over 190 miles an hour, the first accident of the year, and the absence of the "Super Team" marked the second day of practice at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Lee Kunzman, who held the fastest time of the day of 178.214 miles per hour on the opening day Monday, came out in the late afternoon Tuesday to claim the top speed again.

Driving the No. 55 Cobre Firestone Offy, Kunsman took to the track just before it was closed for the day and grabbed the speed lead from Lloyd Ruby with a 190.904 clocking.

Prior to Lee's final run of the day, Ruby had toured the 2.5-mile course at 190.856 miles per hour. But they were the only two drivers to top the 190 barrier.

Other top times went to Mark Donohue (188.466), Gordon Johncock (186.540), Bobby Unser (186.428) and Sam Posey (184.729).

But as Johnny Parsons was climbing toward the leaders in his Lodestar Offy just a half hour before the closing of the track, he hit the wall between turns one and two. He walked away uninjured, but his car was towed to the garages for repair on the right rear area.

"The back end got away from me," Parsons said. "I don't know if something broke or if I just lost it."

Previous to hitting the wall, Parsons had been clocked at 183.460 miles per hour.

The yellow light that went out for Parsons crash was the sixth of the day, but it only lasted nine minutes.

That gave Kunzman the chance to take the lead in speed again.

Altogether there were seven yellow lights which interrupted the day's session, four for track inspection and two for Mike Hiss and Roger McCluskey, both of whom stalled on the backstretch. McCluskey's yellow ended the day of practice.

There was a total of 34 cars on the track for the day, 20 of which made their first appearances.

But one of the big teams was missing—the Vel's Parnelli Jones threesome of Joe Leonard, Al Unser and Mario Andretti.

Their cars were reportedly undergoing major suspension modifications.

PRACTICE NOTES: The speed limit was lifted afternoon the lunch break Tuesday, but not before four more drivers went over the 175 mile per hour ceiling. A total of nine drivers were flagged off the course for going over the limit. . .

Coming to Ontario, the top five drivers in the USAC Championship Money standings include Gordon Johncock ($224,658), Roger McCluskey ($145,318) A.J. Foyt ($123,133), Billy Vukovich ($118,979) and Johnny Rutherford ($62,369) . . .

One more spot was filled on the entry field Tuesday when Bill Simpson hooped in the No. 99 Joe Hunt Magneto Offy and cruised the track at 181.320 miles per hour. . . .

The sand which had plagued the first day of practice didn't seem to bother the drivers in the afternoon Tuesday. That was one reason the USAC officials didn't lift the speed limit until after the afternoon break, hoping the sand would be cleared out by the morning practice. . .

The popular consensus around the track was that the 200 mile per hour mark should be reached by Thursday or Friday. . .

Mark Donohue and Indy Rookie of the Year Graham MacRae were given permission Tuesday to qualify late Friday afternoon. Both have a Can-Am race this weekend at Elkhart Lake, Wisc.

L.A.'s lead still intact after loss

NEW YORK (UPI)—On the strength of Bill Russell's third homer of the season, Don Sutton and the Los Angeles Dodgers had a 1-0 lead over the New York Mets after seven and a half innings.

Sutton walked John Milner in the eighth inning Tuesday night and Ed Kranepool beat out a bunt. Milner advanced to third on a sacrifice and scored on Don Hahn's sacrifice fly to tie the game.

In the ninth, Sutton walked Wayne Garrett with one out and he too second on an infield out. Manager Walter Alston conferred with Sutton and they gave an intentional pass to Rusty Staub, choosing to pitch to Milner, the next man up.

Milner singled in Garrett with the winning run in a 2-1 victory and the Dodgers now nurse a two-game lead over Cincinnati, which lost Tuesday to Chicago.

The Mets got only three hits off Sutton in the first seven innings and five in all. He took his eighth loss against 15 wins.

Ray Sadecki went the distance for the Mets, running his record to 3-2. It was the first complete game for the veteran southpaw since Sept. 13, 1971. He allowed only four hits.

The walks to Milner and Garrett hurt the Dodgers badly but the decision to walk Staub in the ninth was the strategy that killed them. Milner seemed amused when Sutton walked Staub to get at him—the cleanup batter.

"At that," he said, "I guess if I was pitching I would do the same thing. Staub hits for better average and he doesn't strike out as much. They tried to jam me with breaking stuff but I've been backing up a little and getting my hits. I'm pretty satisfied with the way I've been going lately. I was out for five weeks with a pulled hamstring early in the season and that hurt me."

Milner got two singles, scored a run and drove in another in three at-bats against Sutton.

Andy Messersmith, 11-8, goes against the Mets' George Stone, 7-3, tonight in the second game of the three-game series.

Angels listless in defeat

Singer looks for support

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — If the Angel team that showed up Tuesday night at Anaheim Stadium shows up tonight, Bill Singer doesn't have a chance in a thousand of winning.

Singer (16-10) opposes Milwaukee's Jim Slaton (8-11) in the second game of the three game set. The Angels have not beaten the Brewers at the Big A this year. If they played them all as they did Tuesday, they wouldn't beat anybody.

In Tuesday night's encounter, three things were lacking . . . enthusiasm, timely hitting, and throwing, not necessarily in that order.

The Halos' powderpuff attack netted two unearned runs in the seventh inning . . . on two Milwaukee errors, a double, and a single. But this was only after the Brewers had built up a 6-0 lead.

Otherwise the batters main activity was producing infield outs. There were ten of them in the first six innings off Jim Colborn (16-8).

In the meantime Nolan Ryan (14-15) was getting killed by Jeff Torborg's continued inability to throw out runners attempting to steal.

Milwaukee runners beat Torborg's throws to second base no less than four times in the first 5 1-3 innings. Two of them were by none other than George Scott, the 6-2, 210 pound first baseman.

Scott had stolen six bases and been thrown out four times prior to Tuesday's game. Tony Oliva, the gimpy kneed designated hitter of the Minnesota Twins stole his only base this year off Torborg.

Jeff, a fine defensive catcher and once a rifle-armed receiver, simply does not get the ball to second base very quick since his shoulder problems. One of his throws was absolutely letter perfect except that it took an awful long time to get to second base.

As a result, the Brewers scored once in the fourth on a bunt hit and stolen base by Bob Coluccio and two infield outs. They added another in the fifth on a walk, a hit, stolen base, and a wild pitch.

Torborg was sure batter Don Money had foul-tipped the ball and at first did not go after it. When he began his belated charge, it was too late.

In the sixth, Ryan's ancient enemy, lack of control plus some unusual umpiring did him in.

Ryan easily retired the first two batters and thought he struck out the third, Scott, twice. But home plate umpire Jim Honochick and first base umpire Larry McCoy did not agree and Scott eventually walked.

Naturally he stole second, but this time not so naturally. Torborg's throw was there ahead of Scott and Shortstop Rudy Meoli made a sweeping tab with his glove. But everybody in the ball park saw the ball drop out of Meoli's glove except second base umpire Jim Odom.

Odom called Scott out and while the big first baseman was arguing heatedly, the Angels trotted off the field. But third base umpire Lou DiMuro ran over and reversed the call and the Angels and Ryan had to come back out.

That made three times Ryan thought he had Scott retired in the same inning. It was too much for his control, always shaky, to overcome.

The slightly-built fireballer walked Darrell Porter. John Briggs doubled. Bobby Mitchell belted his third home run and Ryan walked slowly off the field.

He struck out eight and walked four in his 5 2-3 innings. He has 296 strikeouts in 252 1-3 innings. He needs 87 strikeouts in his remaining 10 starts to break the single season record of 382 held by Sandy Koufax.

For an American League mark, he needs but 53 to break Bob Feller's record 348.

Manager Bobby Winkles was furious after the loss and blamed the men in blue. "That game was turned around by the umpires," he muttered.

"It's the first time I've ever seen a man (DiMuro) run all the way across the field and change another man's decision, he continued. It was also clear that earlier Scott had struck out and Honochick missed that one."

Winkles also expressed a disenchantment with the work of Odom. "If the second base umpire hustles a little bit and gets into position, he can see the ball if it is dropped by any player," the Angel manager said as he fired his last salvo.

Through it all general manager Harry Dalton stood behind a chair in the corner looking like the fans had looked most of the game, grimfaced.

ANGEL NOTES — Colborn is 4-0 against the Halos this year and 5-1 lifetime. The Brewers are 7-3 against the Angels this year.

After a fine 39-32 record in their first 71 games, the Halos have slipped to 17-33 in their last 50. In the meantime, Oakland won 32 while losing 18.

Ontario's Del Crandall, the Brewers' manager, will be one of the featured guests Thursday at the weekly public sports luncheon in the Stadium Club. He'll be joined by Mike Epstein and pitcher Dave Sells of the Angels.

Yanks try to catch up to runaway Russians in vain

MOSCOW (UPI) —The embarrassment of track and field behind them, U.S. athletes were in the gold medals race at the seventh World University Games today after a trio of firsts by the swimmers and another victory by the men's basketball team.

Russia's Olga Morozova won the women's singles tennis title, 6-3, 7-5, over Kazuko Sawanatsu of Japan. Earlier Miss Morozva, one of the top world players, had defeated Claremont's Janice Metcalf, 7-5, 8-6 in the semifinals. Miss Metcalf had won her first four matches.

But, however hard they try, they can hope for no better than second place behind the runaway Russians.

Following gold medals by Cathy Carr of Albuquerque, N.M., in the women's 200-meter breaststroke, Sally Tuttle of Ventura, Calif., in the women's 100-meter freestyle and Allen Poucher of Jacksonville, Fla., in the men's 100-meter butterfly, the U.S. cagers routed a taller Czechoslovakia team by 110-59 to move closer to the almost inevitable final matchup with the Soviet Union.

The Russians, meanwhile, ignoring the first decisive U.S. breakthrough in the gold medal rush, added five more in assorted sports to boost their overall total to an unreachable 48. The United States, with five golds now, moved into second place and Romania dropped back a notch to third with three.

"We had a day off on Monday and it hurt us," said U.S. basketball coach Ed Badger, whose all-winning team plays Cuba today. "It was a bit of a letdown."

The "letdown" was that the Americans did not maintain their 80-plus winning average margin, but the Czechs were never in the game after an opening 20-2 U.S. surge.

Cal Poly's Anderson still ponders last year

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Roy Anderson has had nine months to ponder Cal Poly Pomona's 1972 football season, and all that time hasn't made it any easier for the Bronco head coach to mask the disappointment.

"Last year's team should have been the best ever at Cal Poly," Anderson said while catching a breather from Tuesday's practice session. "We had a winning season the year before, and I expected even more last year. When we won four out of our first five games, I was sure that there was no way anybody was going to keep us out of the race."

But the Broncos weren't destined to achieve success in even the most modest terms when the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) chase began Poly was beaten four times in as many conference games, and limped off with a 4-6 showing overall.

"The team came apart mentally," Anderson said in the kind of confession a coach rarely makes to the press. "It just wasn't together as a group. The team didn't go into a game as well as it should have."

Graduation probably solved the dissension problem, but it also deprived Anderson of some top-notch individuals which he and his new staff will have to replace during the Broncos' pre-season practice.

The new squad started practice in earnest Monday with two-a-days without pads. The pads will be donned Thursday.

"This is a rebuilding year," Anderson declared. "We have a good crop of freshmen. Basically, we can win, but each player will have to put out stronger than he has ever put out for a football team before."

A check of the Bronco roster finds 10 seniors listed, with 18 lettermen returning.

The biggest gap Anderson has to fill was created by the graduation of Jack Surina, one of the better quarterbacks in the school's history.

Dave Erickson, a transfer from Santa Barbara City College, figured to be the heir apparent to Surina's job, but a case of asthma hasn't improved and Erickson isn't expected to see any action until his senior year.

The QB job market, then, is open to three applicants, Steve Rothblum, Surina's backup man last season, Jim Zorn, a transfer from Cerritos, and Randy Brown, a freshman from Norco.

The second biggest worry for Poly is in the middle of the defensive line. "We need bigger, heavier, and stronger defensive linemen," Anderson complained. "Our size doesn't match up to our schedule."

Over on the other side, though, Anderson is pleased with his offensive linemen. Though the Broncos lack depth there, the personnel they do have are high-caliber.

Center Steve Weiss, who took the job over as a freshman, rates highly among CCAA snappers going into his sophomore season. Guard Randy Daniel and tackle Steve Celotto, both junior transfers from El Camino, also rank in the class of the conference at their positions.

Both the secondary and the linebacking chores need to be assigned with greater clarity, but Anderson has found some impressive candidates.

Mark Mahan, another El Camino convert, is discussed often in connection with linebacking, while Sam Hairston, a junior from Santa Monica, and Paul Russell look good in the secondary.

But the factor that Cal Poly is really banking on—the point which could resurrect last year's title hopes—has to be the ground game.

"We have some good backs," Anderson pointed out, "three of whom should be among the tops in the conference."

The titanic trio includes Greg Cruz and Rudy Murray, seniors, and Rick Robinson, a junior halfback.

If the Broncos could press their opponents with a strong running attack, a number of the aforementioned deficiencies could be overcome.

But Anderson can't count on potential to correct the weaknesses. He and staff have to counter them during the drills leading up to the Broncos' Sept. 8 opener with Fresno State at Fresno.

"The key to this team," Anderson cautioned with an eye to the problem-plagued days of '72, "is whether or not they all like each other."

And if Anderson gets the big, happy family he hopes for, things could be improving at Kellogg Field this year.

Ganesha football signups Monday

POMONA — Sophomore football signups for Ganesha High will be held Monday at 5 p.m. in the Ganesha High Boy's locker room.

Boys intending to sign up that day must bring football or tennis shoes, shorts, T-shirt and socks in order to participate in the conditioning program for the first four days of that week.

86 PROOF KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY DISTILLED AND BOTTLED BY THE JAMES B. BEAM DISTILLING CO., CLERMONT, BEAM, KENTUCKY

Foster 'punishes' Fourie

ALBUQUERQUE N. Mexico (UPI)—Bob Foster said he wanted South African Pierre Fourie to suffer 15 rounds of punishment for what he interpreted as a racial slur.

So, using his seven-inch reach advantage to its fullest extent, Foster jabbed away at Fourie for the full 15 rounds before a delighted hometown crowd Tuesday night and successfully defended his light-heavyweight title for a record 12th time. The decision was unanimous and all three cards were lopsided.

During the weigh-in Tuesday the fighters had flared at each other and Fourie had told Foster, "tonight's the night, boy."

Foster was immediately upset at Fourie's use of the word "boy."

"I'm going to knock him out tonight for calling me boy," Foster said.

But once the fight began the 34-year-old Foster did not press for a knockout. He was content to stick his left jab in the face of the challenger time after time and use his reach to ward off what Fourie had said would be "his "secret plan of attack."

"I wanted it to go the whole 15," said Foster, who won the title in 1968 from Dick Tiger and has now defended it more times than any other boxer in history. "I had him four or five times. He called me 'boy,' "and I don't like anybody to call me a 'boy.' "Every time I hit him he was hurt."

After the fight, according to Foster, Fourie came to the champion's corner and apologized for the remark.

"I accepted the apology," said Foster, who was making his first title defense before his home town fans.

Fourie indicated he thought Foster was using the weigh-in incident as an excuse for not being able to score a knockout. It was only the second time since Foster has won the crown that he didn't knock out a challenger.

"He didn't hurt me," said Fourie, who had a string of 29 wins in a row broken with the loss. "If you have got the reach and you know how to use it, then you do have an advantage. But an old man never likes to go 15 rounds. He likes to put them away if he can." Fourie is 30.

Alan Toweel, Fourie's manager, wanted it made clear his fighter did not intend his comment to Foster during the weigh-in as an insult.

"You Yankees call each other boy all the time," he said. "So what's wrong with somebody else doing it."

Both Fourie and his manager said they wanted a rematch.

"I would like to fight him again," Fourie said. "I don't think it is a disgrace losing to the champ. He's the best light heavyweight champ of all time."

Foster, who won his 50th fight against six losses—all against heavyweights —was guaranteed $75,000 for the fight, which was watched by 11,000 persons in the University of New Mexico Auditorium. Fourie, now 46-3, was guaranteed $10,000.

Foster, who came in one pound under the limit at 173 pounds, was awarded the fight on the judges cards, 149-138 and 149-130. Referee Jim Cleary had Foster the winner, 148-128. Foster not only had a reach advantage, but he outweighed Fourie by five pounds.

The champion's jab opened a cut in the challenger's nose during the second round and Fourie also suffered a cut over the left eye in the third round.

Only once—in the 13th round—did Fourie display the kind of aggressiveness he needed to win the fight.

"He just smothered my attack," Fourie said. "I couldn't get inside."

Gavelman on spot at Los Alamitos

The seventh race lineup has John Ward on Savannah's Boy, Dan Cardoza on Gavelman, Don Knight on Texas Tracer, Steve Treasure on Spotted Bar Bull, Charles Smith on Chili Bar and Eddie Garza on Three Stripes.

The fifth race early feature lists Garza on Dorthy's Palleo, Luke Myles on Un Charge, Treasure on Tee Cee's Choice, Smith on Olde Smoothie, James Dreyer on Royal Pass and Dale Holbrook on Red Robbie.

Post-time for the $2 exacta first race is 7:45 p.m.

Tonight's twin-bill distance feature is a prelim to Friday's night's fifth running of the Pap Stakes, which figures to draw such seasonal stakes victors as Hy Divy, Bar Fame and Little Lady Roar.

Gavelman, despite running the distance only four times in his career, owns the third best clocking at the distance, a 45.73 win registered July 25. The only horse to have run a faster winning 870 at Los Alamitos this season has been Hy Divy, with times of 45.55 and 45.58.

Savannah's Boy has raced only three times this summer but last year won in 45.60 and figures to be a strong contender, as does Chili Bar, who enters tonight's race with two victories and a second in his last three outings.

Sports news in brief

NATIONAL FOOTBALL League teams are rich enough today they no longer need the protection of television blackouts of home games. That was the conclusion of a House committee Tuesday. It recommended Congress ban the blackouts when tickets for regular home season games are sold out before the season opens and Congress limit the area of any blackouts allowed. NFL contracts with the networks prohibit a television station from broadcasting a game within the team's home territory when the team is playing on its home grounds. The area is any radius including potential fans, but usually is considered to be about 75 miles.

The 1975 SUPER BOWL could be moved out of New Orleans if the Louisiana Superdome is not completed, according to National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle. Rozelle toured the downtown stadium Tuesday and said an NFL committee would return later this year to determine if the Dome will be ready for the 1975 Super Bowl.

SANDY BLUE, the recent Hollywood Oaks winner, runs for the title of best filly in the West today when she faces 11 other distaff speedsters in the $30,000-added Del Mar Oaks at a mile-and-one-eighth on the turf course at Del Mar.

MARTY RIESSEN and Stan Smith, who Monday night put the United States into the Davis Cup challenge round, were eliminated from the $100,000 Canadian Open Tennis Championships Tuesday. Smith, who reestablished himself as Tennis' No. 1 player with his fourth Davis Cup victory over Romanian's Ilie Nastase Monday, was defeated 7-6, 7-5 by Miami's Eddie Dibbs. Riessen, who dropped Tom Ovici in four sets at Alamo, Calif., Monday, was eliminated from the Canadian Open by American Charlie Pasarell, who downed him, 6-3, 6-2.

TOP SEEDED Margaret Court of Australia led all seeded entries Tuesday into the second round of the $30,000 Virginia Slims Women's Grass Court Championships by beating Cynthia Doerner also of Australia, 0-6, 6-3, 6-4.

CHRIS EVERT of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. strengthened her lead over Australia's Evonne Goolagong this week in the women's division of the $425,000 commercial union Grand Prix of Tennis.

Rams practice in Orange Bowl

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams will fly to Miami Wednesday to get in some on-the-scene practice at the Orange Bowl for their Friday night exhibition game against the Dolphins.

The Rams seek their first win of the preseason against the Super Bowl champions. Los Angeles has lost to Dallas and Oakland and tied Cleveland.

Guard Tom Mack and tight end Bob Klein, who were held out of the last game because of injuries, worked with the first string offensive unit Tuesday.

Offensive tackle Charlie Cowan took things easy because of a sprained ankle. Merlin Olsen, bulwark of the defensive line, limited his activity because of a bad knee.

Ontario bowler has 300 game

POMONA — Jerry Fagan, Jr. bowled a 300 game Monday night at the Bowlium in Montclair.

The 23-year-old Ontarian carried a 169 average. But the righthander was hot Monday night. He had games of 189, 197, 182, and then, bingo, 300!

Fagan's wife, La Verna, witnessed the feat. The couple have a boy, eight, and expect another child shortly.

The perfect game, lanes five and six, was the first 300 game at the establishment in two years. Fagan's previous high was 279.

Trojans chosen again in ratings

NEW YORK (UPI)—The University of Southern California, a unanimous choice as the No. 1 team in college football last year, is expected to capture that honor again this season, according to the United Press International's Board of Coaches.

The UPI coaches board didn't make the Trojans a unanimous pick in the preseason ratings, but of the 29 coaches who participated in the voting, 25 selected USC as their No. 1 pick. The four other first place votes went to Michigan, Ohio State, Texas and Auburn.

Runnerup to the Trojans in the balloting was perennial Big Eight power Nebraska, the 1971 national champion. The Cornhuskers received 175 points, which was nine more than the third place finisher, Ohio State, received.

Texas, defending Southwest Conference champion, finished fourth in the voting followed by Alabama and Michigan. Then comes Penn State, UCLA, Tennessee and Colorado to round out the top 10.

Oklahoma, which will be trying to regroup after its scandal-ridden 1972 season, heads the second 10 followed by Notre Dame, Auburn and Arizona State. Louisiana State is in the 15th position, Houston ranks No. 16 and Florida the fifth member of the Southeastern Conference to be named in the top 20, is ranked 17th.

Rounding out the top 20 are Texas Tech in the 18th spot and Georgia Tech and North Carolina in a tie for 19th.

Southern California, which went undefeated last year, has enough material returning to make a strong run at another unbeaten campaign, yet Coach John McKay remains cautious.

"This team is capable of winning every game again," he says, "but if we're better than last year's club, we've got a helluva team."

The Trojans have lost seven starters from the offensive unit and four from the defensive team, but among the returnees are running back Anthony Davis and linebacker Richard Wood, both second team All-America selections a year ago. Also back are two outstanding pass receivers Lynn Swann and J.D. McKay and quarterback Pat Haden whom coach McKay believes could be the best ever to wear a Trojan jersey.

"He's as good a dropback and rollout passer as I've ever seen," McKay says of Haden. "Even when he scrambles, he'll find a way to throw a 50-yard touchdown pass."

Aaron desire: to play in Series

By United Press International

Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron's long-time friend and current manager, has been saying all season that the Atlanta Braves slugger's No. 1 goal is not surpassing Babe Ruth's all-time career home run record.

"Sure, Hank wants to break the record," Mathews has been telling anyone who would listen. "But he won't sacrifice his value to the team by swinging for homers in any situation. He wants more than anything else to play in one more World Series. And that means hitting to win games."

With 704 homers and the Braves out of the National League's Western Division race, Aaron is at a stage in his assault on Ruth's mark of 714 career homers where he could be excused if he swung for the horizon every time he went to the plate.

But true to Mathews' prediction, Aaron is "swinging for the team"—as he did Tuesday night when he had a double and two singles and drove in three runs as the Braves rallied from a 7-0 deficit in the third inning to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 11-7. The homerless game, Atlanta's 128th game of the season, left Aaron with a projection of eight more homers this season and a total of 712.

Pittsburgh defeated Houston 6-3, New York nipped Los Angeles 2-1, San Francisco beat Montreal 3-1, Chicago topped Cincinnati 6-4 and Philadelphia rallied for a 9-8 triumph over San Diego in other NL games.

Pitcher Rick Wise's grand slam homer was the big blow of the Cardinals' seven-run third inning outburst but the Braves rallied for six runs in their half of the frame on Aaron's two-run single, Dusty Baker's two-run double and Dave Johnson's two-run homer.

The Pirates crept to within 1 ½ games of the Cardinals in the NL East when rookie John Morlan scattered nine hits and Gene Clines scored the decisive run on Don Wilson's third wild pitch. Willie Stargell drove in two runs for the Pirates while John Edwards homered for Houston.

Rico Carty singled home the tie-breaking run for the Cubs in the seventh inning and Ferguson Jenkins went the distance with a 10-hitter for his 11th win against 12 defeats. Carty and Don Kessinger had three hits each for the Cubs while Joe Morgan had three hits, including his 19th homer, for the Reds.

Del Unser's three-run double with two out in the ninth lifted the Phils over the Padres, who carried an 8-5 lead into the ninth. Greg Luzinski hit his 22nd homer for the Phillies while Nate Colbert and Clarence Gaston homered for San Diego.

Pro football roundup

No reprimand for Thomas

By United Press International

Duane Thomas won't get any reprimands from the National Football League for his alleged refusal to heed the National Anthem at pre-game ceremonies.

Thomas, the controversial Washington Redskin running back, touched off a controversy last Friday night when he supposedly walked around and turned his back on the flag during pre-game ceremonies at Buffalo's Rich Stadium.

Buffalo fans began shouting at Thomas and after a thermos bottle was thrown at him, he charged the stands and had to be restrained by teammates.

Thomas' pre-game action won't be chastised, however, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Tuesday.

Addressing a meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in New Orleans, Rozelle said that conduct during the playing of the anthem was up to the individual club to police.

"I think it was an isolated incident," Rozelle said. "In most stadiums in the country, the stands are more removed from the field. Thomas' behavior is the sort of thing for the club to police. We give them guidelines about the National Anthem, behavior by players and coaches and such, but these are policy recommendations and are not mandatroy."

Rozelle also said the 1975 Super Bowl might be moved from its scheduled site, the Louisiana Superdome, if the new stadium is not completed. He said it probably would not be transferred to the Tulane University Sugar Bowl Stadium.

"We would like to get into the Superdome as soon as possible and with the rotation system, if New Orleans had the game in 1975, in Tulane Stadium, it would be several years before it could return," he said.

In news from the camps Tuesday, the New Orleans Saints put starting safety Hugo Hollas on the injured reserve list and he'll be out all season and Cincinnati cut punter Ken Duncan and wide receiver Steve Kingman. Houston dropped four players—kicker Mark Williams, linebacker Jim Bishop, offensive lineman Sam Holden and running back Eddie Richardson.

New York Giant Coach Alex Webster and reserve quarterback Randy Johnson jointly announced that Johnson had not asked to be traded after apparently losing his battle to unseat Norm Snead as No. 1 signal caller. Johnson said he and the club had reached an agreement on his status and that he would remain the rest of the season.

Miami Coach Don Shula announced that fullback Larry Csonka, who has missed all three-pre-season games since the Dolphins' opening victory against the College All-Stars, will play against the Los Angeles Rams Friday night.

In other action scheduled for this week, Dallas is at Houston Thursday night and Cincinnati is at Detroit on Friday night. Atlanta takes on Cleveland at Knoxville, Tenn., Oakland plays Minnesota at Berkeley, Calif., Baltimore is at Washington, New England at New Orleans, Philadephia at San Diego and the New York Jets at St. Louis on Saturday.

On Sunday, the New York Giants entertain Pittsburgh, Green Bay is at Kansas City, Chicago at Buffalo and Denver at San Francisco.

American League roundup

Stan settles for one-hitter

By United Press International

Stan Bahnsen's near no-hitter last night for the Chicago White Sox was almost as poetic his expression of how he felt after he gave up his only hit, a single to Walt Williams, with two out in the ninth inning.

"It felt like the bottom fell out of the balloon I was riding," Bahnsen said after settling for a 4-0, one-hit victory over the Cleveland Indians and just missing the American League's fifth no-hitter this year. "It was such an emotional thing 'til then, I just wanted Williams to hit the ball on the ground and he did."

Williams, who takes a short stroke, rapped a ground ball on a 2-1 pitch too hard and too far to the left for third baseman Bill Melton to nab. Bahnsen, who had pitched a pair of nohitters in the minors in 1966 and 1967, stood gazing into centerfield for a few moments before retiring the last hitter.

"I always wanted to pitch a no-hitter in the big leagues," said Bahnsen who won 21 games last year after being traded to the White Sox from the Yankees. "I wish Williams would have pulled the ball a little. He's a tough hitter."

"I really don't feel anything about breaking up the no-hitter," Williams said. "I was nervous when I came up to the plate. After fouling off the third pitch, I cleaned my spikes. I never clean my spikes when I'm batting. I was trying to hit the ball as hard as I could and when it hit the grass, I think it helped in getting past Melton."

Williams was Bahnsen's teammate on the White Sox last year and said of him, "I really like Stan Bahnsen. He's a super guy to me, but..." But, Williams didn't have to add, they're wearing different uniforms now.

Bahnsen, who gave up a walk to Dave Duncan with two out in the second inning and then retired 17 batters in order before walking Duncan again in the eighth, picked up his 16th victory against 14 defeats. Second baseman Jorge Orta drove in two runs for Chicago on three hits, including his third homer, and also saved the no-hitter temporarily when he went behind second base to make a tremendous stop and throw out Buddy Bell in the third.

In other American League games, Baltimore nipped Minnesota 2-1, Boston outslugged Texas 15-9, Kansas City clipped New York 5-4, Detroit tripped Oakland 6-4 and Milwaukee downed California 6-2.

Al Bumbry's ninth inning sacrifice fly scored Bobby Grich, who had doubled and moved to third on a single by Mark Belanger, with the winning run as the Orioles extended their winning streak to nine games by beating Minnesota.

Grant Jackson, 7-0, earned the victory in relief of Jim Palmer. Twins' starter Bert Blyleven, 15-13, absorbed the defeat although he went the distance for the 19th time.

Dwight Evans powered a 450-foot two-run homer in the second inning and started a five-run third inning and Reggie Smith drove in five runs to pace Boston over the Rangers and give Roger Moret his eighth victory without a defeat.

Lou Piniella's third single of the game drove in Amos Otis, who had doubled, with the tiebreaking run in the fifth inning and lifted Kansas City past the Yankees behind the excellent relief pitching of Joe Hoerner.

Mickey Stanley hit two triples and a single and drove in two runs and John Hiller pitched five innings of two-hit relief in leading the Tigers over Oakland and snapping a nine-game A's winning streak.

Preliminaries, finals held in NAAU swim competition

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)— The pace quickens today in the National AAU competition here, featuring preliminaries and finals in swimming following two days of diving.

Fifty-three swimmers will be chosen today through Saturday for a spot on the U.S. team that will compete in the first annual World Swimming and Diving Championships at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, next month.

The first two days of the meet at the Plantation Swim Club were devoted strictly to diving. Starting today, swimmers undergo a daily schedule of heats during the day and finals starting at 7 p.m. through Saturday.

Scheduled are finals in the men's and women's 200-meter backstroke, 100-meter breaststroke, 400-meter freestyle and 100-meter butterfly. Forty-five swimmers, 24 men and 21 women, and four men and four women divers, will be selected for the trip to Belgrade, Sept. 19, representing the U.S.

Michael Finneran, 24, of Columbus, Ohio, Tuesday won the AAU National Championship in the one-meter dive after performing a tough reverse 1½ somersault layout.

Finneran, who performed a "perfect dive" last year in the Olympic trials, led a field of 12 finalists and finished with 498.96 points. Close behind was Richard McAlister of the Air Force Academy with 491.85. Tim Moore, Columbus, Ohio, who finished with 470.40 points, was third, while Julian Krug of San Jose, Calif., fourth with 464.26.

Finneran, whose perfect dive came at last year's Olympic trials when all seven judges gave him the top score of 10 points, received mostly eight points from each judge in his fourth national title Tuesday. Two of his previous AAU titles were in the three-meter event.

New OMS facilities convenient

Deke Houlgate

Motor sport today

While the original operators of Ontario Motor Speedway were losing $9.6 million in three years, they were not letting people drive their cars into the infield because they didn't want fans to harm their $200,000 sprinkler system.

Consequently, infield customers quickly learned they had to park their cars outside the speedway and walk around to where tunnels led to the infield — distances from one to four miles. In the hot sun that's a long walk. Families who do it once usually don't again.

As a result, the cheap infield tickets didn't sell, a fact which may have cost former operators more than $1 million in ticket sales and deprived a lot of spectators of the opportunity to attend good racing shows.

This has changed under new management, which is partly made up of Indianapolis Motor Speedway personnel. Fans cannot only drive into the infield, they can park there overnight before the race, if they are willing to pay a small extra fee.

Clarence Cagle, superintendent of both Indy and Ontario tracks, figured out how to protect the sprinklers. His crews simply have unscrewed the heads and capped them so that nothing can hurt them.

Cagle's simplistic approach to accommodating fans by eliminating needless problems may result in making OMS a more friendly, pleasnt place to watch a race when the California 500 is held Sept. 2.

For instance, he has moved the "lost children" area away from speedway first aid stations, relieving medical personnel from their annual baby-sitting chores.

Two of the most serious medical problems on race day have been exposure (heat and sun) and drunkenness, often combined. To relieve congestion at first aid stations — as many as 700 patients being treated at one time — he has ordered extra air-conditioned trailers placed around the speedway. This will create more medical facilities and more shade for heat victims.

There have been many complaints that traffic jams to and, from the speedway on race day have worsened each year. Cagle, the mastermind of Indianapolis' amazingly efficient traffic plan, has already taken that up with police in Ontario and the California Highway Patrol.

"I (particularly) brought the getaway traffic situation up in a traffic meeting. We've been assured that officers will be on duty after the race. I have every reason to believe it will operate efficiently. Everybody involved wants this place to be a success."

The first thing Cagle did when he took charge about June 1 was to order a major weed abatement program, which is still going on. He was fearful of fire, because everything — landscaping as well as weeds — was so dry. His crews have pumped as much water as speedway wells can take out of the ground onto the infield grass. The place is starting to turn green again.

The 86,000 permanent grandstand seats have been thoroughly washed down, cleanup crews have picked up all the litter and most other problems of neglect due to the six-month speedway shutdown are under control.

Juan Manuel Fangio, the five-time world driving champion, is so tightfisted with a peso that he saves his used gum to chew later and bums cigarettes rather than buying them, despite his enormous wealth.

Mike Hawthorn and Peter Collins used to flip cigarette butts at the ceiling of a hotel in Modena, Italy, to try to make them stick, but the Marquis de Portago outdid them. He made a sling out of his napkin and hurled pats of butter at the ceiling.

Once on the East African Rally while repairs were being made on his car, Stirling Moss heard heavy breathing and looked up, face to face with a full-grown lion. He immediately went for his camera, to take a picture of the beast.

These and many other illuminating anecdotes are contained in the latest book on worldroad racing stars of the last two decades, Grand Prix Champions by Mary Schnall Heglar (Bond-Parkhurst Books, Newport Beach, Cal., $7.95).

It is a series of sketches on world champions from Alberto Ascari (1950) to Emerson Fittipaldi (1972) with a very keenly defined analysis of racing drivers in general in the foreward and a statistical section in the back for settling arguments.

Like most books of this type it is basically biographical, filled with the sort of hero worship quotations that only a died-in-the-wool fan would prize. But there are enough bright and informative passages to make it worthwhile.

"Motor racing is impossible to be safe," Moss told the author, "and I think that because it is dangerous is one of the reasons that people come to it. Not hoping to see anybody hurt, but — I think it's rather like if I go to a circus and I see a man on a high wire watching him. I don't want to see him fall — but I want to see him sort of shake a bit."

The life of the party title must go to Graham Hill, who is a well known raconteur, after-dinner speaker, talk show guest and teller of all shades of jokes. Hill's greatest act, however, is a strip tease, complete with bumps, grinds "and a Mt. Rushmore expression worthy of the toughest cookie in San Francisco's tenderloin," says the author.

Emerson Fittipaldi and the soccer super-star Pele are great frinds and admirers of each other. In mid-1972, when the Brazilian driver was racing toward the world title, Pele sent him his soccer shirt for good luck. When Fittipaldi won the next race, he sent his victory trophy to Pele.

Jimmy Clark away from the track delighted in donning kilts and dancing Scottish jigs, often with other Scottish drivers as partners. Once he and Jackie Stewart got carried away with their twirling and fell into the shrubbery. Another time his partner Innes Ireland ended the dance when a prankster slipped a cactus paint up under Ireland's kilt.

Jochen Rindt crashed at Monza 20 feet from the mobile hospital. Instead of taking him there, medics put him in an ambulance for a 45-minute ride to Milan, during which their police escort got lost. When they arrived, Rindt was dead.

Phil Hill's parents died within weeks of each other in 1951. They had nver approved of his racing, but with his small inheritance and a loan from his brother Jerry he bouth a Ferrari race car.

"How do you tell that to a reporter?" he asked. "My parents died so I bought a Ferrari!"

Maine picks Carlton Fisk

BOSTON (UPI) —Catcher Carlton Fisk recently was presented the first Turk Gilbert Memorial Award as Maine's favorite member of the Boston Red Sox.

Fisk won the honor in a close contest over Tommy Harper and Orlando Cepeda. The selection came in a poll of Maine's sportwriters and broadcasters.

Gov. Kenneth Curtis threw out the first ball for Sunday's Red Sox-Kansas City Royals game which was designated State of Maine Day.

Southland racing

CORONA — The West Coast "Race of Champions" to be held Saturday at 8 p.m. is rapidly becoming the Midget racing event of the year.

USRC President Lou Stoltz has received entries from most of the midget associations this side of the Rockies. Some of the drivers who will be competing for the share of the $3500 purse include the champion from Arizona Wayne Wyler and Eddie Jackson out of mile high Denver, Colorado.

VALENCIA — A grand prix race for dirt-track motorcycles will be presented by the Hilltoppers' Club on Labor Day, Sept. 3, on a new 3-mile all-terrain course at Indian Dunes Park near Saugus.

The program, to be run under A.M.A. District 37 sanction, is expected to attract upwards of 600 entries, including many top competitors of both desert and motorcross racing.

As an added feature, a twilight motocross show has also been scheduled for the same day at the Valencia-based speed complex.

IRWINDALE — During the last seven weeks of rugged CMC Motocross action at Irwindale Raceway, only two riders have been able to win the competitive 500cc professional class: Jim West of Pasadena and Luke Messer of Los Angeles. Two weeks ago this pair went down to the last few inches before Messer finally got the win.

This Friday night beginning at 7:30 their two-month battle continues.

Another confrontation to expect comes in the 125cc Expert class between Metco Penton teammates Chuck Bower of Anaheim and Bruce McDougal of Orange. Last Friday night Bower stopped his good friend in his attempt at a fifth consecutive night 125cc overall win.

EAST IRVINE — International 125cc Motorcross stare Bruce McDougal of Orange returns to Orange County International Raceway this Thursday night in hopes of continuing his fantastic win record.

The young Penton rider won the 125cc professional class last week and then collected third place cash the same night in the 250cc class. The victory was his fourth in a row at night CMC sanctioned events, and it marked his 21st win of the season.

EAST IRVINE — Much has been said about today's generation gap and now it has hit speedway motorcyle racing. Thirty-three year old John "Handlebar" Flanders and thirteen year old Dennis "The Kid" Sigalos have challenged each other to a match race tonight at Orange County International Raceway.

Flanders, who earned the nickname of "Handlebar" for skills at his profession of manufacturing and selling motorcycle handlebars, feels experience, strength and knowledge of the sport will carry him to an easy victory. On the other hand, Sigalos feels his youthful reflexes, lack of fear and light weight make him the one to beat.

CORONA — The super fast modified stock cars return for another exciting round on Corona Raceway's tricky two groove half mile Sunday at 7 p.m.

The modifieds, under the able direction of Ed Hudson, are starting to change their appearance and are beginning to look like the modfieds that run the eastern circuits. The first driver to "modify" his modified is Ron Arey of Costa Mesa.

GARDENA — A match race involving two of California's top young motorcycle riders will cap the second American Motorcycle Association short-track program on the quarter-mile at J. C. Agajanian's Ascot this Friday night.

Danny Hockie of Habor City will challenge Rock Hocking of Fremont, the AMA's national indoor winner on the lightweight bikes, in a special event. Both, of course are entered in the entire series of races and could meet twice.

The idea of the match occurred after Hockie won qualifying honors last Friday and then had to sit on the sidelines with mechanical problems as the Fremont junior went on to win his heat, the semi-main and main event easily.

IRWINDALE — The stars of NASCAR sportsman stock car racing will share their Friday night racing program with the West Coast Modified Association hardtop coupes and modified compacts at San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale this weekend.

Ten events of high speed racing competition on the ultra-fast half-mile speedway will be topped off by a 25 lap coupe main event and a 30 lap sportsman feature race. Trophy dashs send off the competition by 7:30 p.m.

Yesterday versus today is the theme in the coupe competition with 1973, '68 and '39 Chevy coupes with powerful V8 racing engines installed challenging Camaros, Mustangs, Corvairs and Falcons on the high banked speedway.

Can-Am at Elkhart Lake

It's Follmer against Oliver

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. — Teammates who aren't teammates could provide a furious duel for prize money and championship points here on Sunday when the fifth race of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series comes to twisting Road America.

They are England's Jackie Oliver and American ace George Follmer. Oliver, 30, from Walton-on-Thames in Surrey, England, has won fame as a long-distance driver with victories at Sebring and LeMans in 1969 and at Daytona in 1970. Follmer, a former U.S. Road Racing champion, is defending Can-Am champion.

In International Formula 1 competition they are teammates on the world-title-seeking UOP Shadow team. But for the Can-Am—with its million dollars-plus prize package, richer even than Formula 1—they are opponents in the keenest kind of auto-racing rivalry. Follmer drives an RC Cola Porsche 917 in the Can-Am while Oliver has a UOP Shadow.

Montagnana Trio to play at Barnsdall

LOS ANGELES — The Montagnana Trio of London will present a free concert in the Concerts on the Green series at Barnsdall Park at 4:30 p.m. Sept. 9.

Trio members are Delores Stevens, piano; John Gates, clarinet, and Caroline Worthington, cello.

The concert is sponsord by the Bureau of Music of the Los Angeles Municipal Arts Department in cooperation with Musicians Union Local 47.

SINGING STARS — The Classic Edition, a San Diego barbershop quartet, is one of more than 25 groups which will compete Saturday in the Far Western District Southern Division contest of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America at Ontario High School. Preliminaries will start at noon; finals and a Barbershop Jamboree will be staged at 8 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the door.

Cal Poly stages two short comedies

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

POMONA — Cal Poly's summer drama students staged two miniplays on marriage (and other things) Friday and Saturday, a well-performed couple that makes a pleasant evening of theater.

Edward Albee's "The American Dream" and "The Golden Fleece" by A. R. Gurney Jr. will be repeated in the university theater at 8:30 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

The curtain-raiser, "Fleece," is a rather stodgy playlet with a faintly allegorical cast back to Jason and Medea. (Jason ends up in a motel with a cute broad.) I was not smitten with the play when it was at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center a few seasons back, and the Cal Poly presentation did not alter my opinion. Elissa Napolin and Steve Morris are convincing and amiable in the roles of Betty and Bill, but they could use better material.

The star of "Dream" is a wonderfully kooky girl named Robin La Valley, who, as Grandma, puts on a hilarious characterization of a sassy, spirited little old lady in tennis shoes. Miss La Valley's voice, gestures, mannerisms and movements turn the young lady into an authentic old bat, and her performance brings out all the rich, wry humor Albee aimed for.

Barbara Edivan's Mommy is a delightful caricature of the sophisticated married woman of today, bored, devious, and waspish, endlessly smoking and babbling cliches—as all of the characters do.

Daddy is played by Paul Oakes with an amusingly low-key performance, expressionless and calm. The vapid character emerges with consistency — Oakes draws a barrage of laughter from the simple procedure of opening the front door.

Jeannine Lambeth, the familiar busy clubwoman, contrives an amusingly befuddled portrayal, and Brian Gale as America's beautiful, empty dream is blandly persuasive.

Director Ralph McCormic, drama department chairman, gives the two plays his customary insight and discipline.

Shatner to star

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — William Shat,er, onetime star of television's "Star Trek," will appear in summer stock in "Arsenic and Old Lace" in the Midwest.

Ives to be guest

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor-folk singer Burl Ives will make a guest appearance next season on "The Oral Roberts Show."

Television star an ecology freak

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Randy Mantooth, the razor sharp paramedic of "Emergency," is attuned to nature and the ecology. He lives a unique life for a television star.

A 28-year-old bachelor, Mantooth-whose father is a full-blooded Seminole Indian-lives alone in a remote section of Topanga Canyon, midway between the San Fernando Valley and Malibu Beach.

He rents a small, unpretentious house on an acre of land. A creek runs through the property in the springtime.

The setting is rustic. The aroma of chapparal, greasewood and sage assail the visitor in a pungent and heady mixture. Mountains plunge down to ravines all around the area. Smog is rare.

The old house, consisting of four rooms-living room, bedroom, kitchen and bath-is furnished with odds and ends, about what you'd expect of a young man on his own. Nothing fancy.

There are no gas lines to the house. Everything runs on electricty. There is insufficient power for an electric range, however, so Randy must rely on hot plates to cook his meals. He also has a portable oven.

Even with a star spangled modern gas range Randy would be lost. He's a terrible cook and cheerfully admits it.

"I'd starve to death if I didn't have a girl friend who likes to cook," he says.

But starvation is not threat enough to rush the dark-hair actor into matrimony. He is the product of a broken home and doesn't want to marry or have children until he feels such a union would be lasting.

Randy is essentially a loner. When the NBC series is not in production he spends hours walking the trails into the mountians just outside his front door. A mile from his house there is no sign of civilization except an occasional jet vapor trail.

On weekends he vists his mother in Santa Barbara, but more often he jumps into his Land Rover and heads for the desert, or "anywhere there aren't people."

He camps out under the stars, fixes a few spare meals and simply sits and contemplates the beauties of surroundings.

If he feels the need for company Randy will invite a girl friend to accompany him on one of his treks to the desert or mountians, but she must enjoy isolation and cooking over a campfire.

There is no set pattern to Randy's life except when he is working. Then he is required to report to Universal Studios at 6:30 a.m. It is a 28-mile drive from his hideout, but he thinks it's worthwhile.

Mantooth is pleased with the success of the series, but the show is a mixed blessing to him.

PRETTY MERMAID Cindy Gardner, a University of Michigan coed, is one of two mermaids at Marineland in Palos Verdes this summer. She is shown frolicking with fish and bat rays in the park's oval tank, "the world's largest fishbowl." Miss Gardner is majoring in biological oceanography at Michigan.

Brown urges that all reveal contributions

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., said that he would voluntarily disclose all campaign contributions he has received and urged other gubernatorial candidates to do the same to avoid a Watergate-type scandal in California.

"Watergate could not have happened if all campaign funds had been fully reported to the public," Brown told a luncheon of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"It is imperative that we act now to prevent Watergate scandals in next year's California campaign and only full reporting of contributions will assure a fair and honest election."

Brown, a Democrat, said he will voluntarily disclose within the next week al contributions he has received in his current race for the governor's office and he will issue a statement disclosing his personal assets and income.

He said some potential gubernatorial candidates already have raised "hundreds of thousands of dollars in campaign funds and are refusing to disclose the source of their money." He did not name anyone in particular.

"The voters are demanding an end to secret fund raising and backroom politics," Brown said.

There is no legal requirement that candidates reveal their assets and income.

Brown said disclosure of campaign contributions would not be required by California law until May, 1974.

MEETIN' & EATIN' AT BETSY ROSS

By Gene Neighbors

Hi, Neighbors,
Y'know, if you can't have fun in your business, it's sorta sad . . . Well, we at Betsy Ross do get a real kick out of bein' in the ice cream parlor and coffee shoppe business. Those of you who have used our very popular Party Plans know how much fun you can have in our places for birthday parties, anniversaries, and other special events with no fuss nor muss —just fun and the time to enjoy your own party with friends and families.
We hadn't heard much from the Betsy Ross bunch at Mountain and Foothill in Upland, so I stopped in t'other day to learn the reason for all this shush. Turned out they had a lot to talk about, but just didn't know we'd be interested. I missed the manager, JOE HURTON, but did meet MARY COBB. She was in Las Vegas recently and pulled out her matches from Betsy Ross. Standin' beside her was a couple from Wisconsin who saw 'em and said they'd eaten in a place like that the day before. Seemed they described the one in Upland, where Mary decorates the cash register.
She also told us about the day BOB CRANE ("Hogan's Heroes") and his family dropped into the Upland Coffee Shoppe. Said he and his family like to eat at Betsy Ross, and remarked what a beautiful setting that one enjoys with its view of the mountains.
Want to give the kids (old and young) a treat? Let 'em order our foot long hot dogs with all the trimmins, and an ice cream specialty of their choice. We serve almonds with most of our ice cream fountain specialties, and shall continue to do so for as long as we can, in spite of the rise in the price of almonds. Those darn things are like gold, but we need 'em to top off our sundaes like we have for the past 47 years.

At Disneyland

Buddy Rich, Ray Stevens slated

ANAHEIM — Drummer uddy Rich and his band and singer Ray Stevens will perform at Disneyland starting Sunday.

The Electrical Parade which tells its story with a quarter million twinkling lights, will wind its way down a darkened Main Street nightly at 9 and 11:30.

Stevens, whose hits include love songs, tunes with a message and comical ditties, will be spotlighted Sunday through Aug. 31 on the Tomorrowland Stage at 10 p.m. and midnight.

Rich will bring his ensemble of musicians, who present big band, jazz and modern sounds, to the Plaza Gardens nightly through Sept. 8.

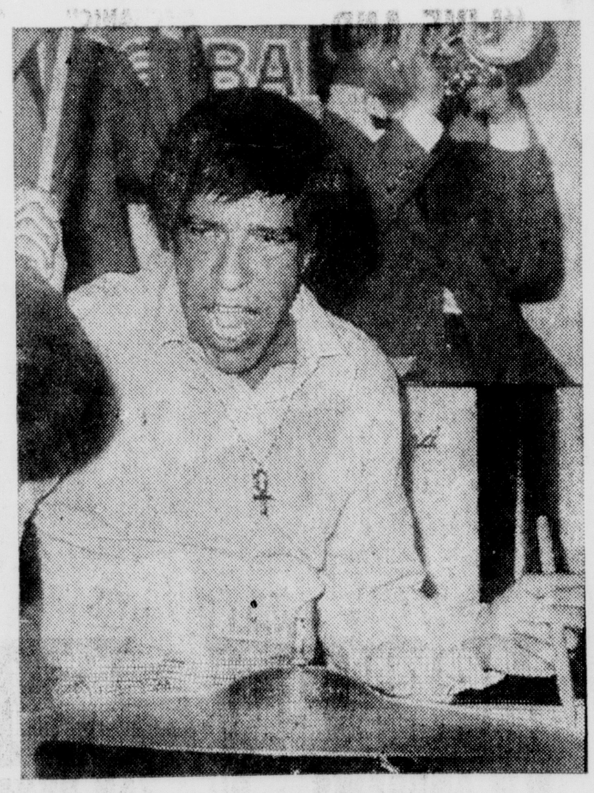
Writer, performer, arranger Stevens is currently on the charts with is latest release, "Nashville." He has been producing a decade of hit including Grammy winner "Everything Is Beautiful," the sardonic "Mr. Businessman," modern love song "Unwind," and novelty recordings "Ahab The Arab" and "Guitarzan."

Billed at "The World's Greatest Drummer," Rich has been drumming since he was a child. His credentials include years with the big bands of Artie Shaw and Tommy Dorsey and recordings with such greats as Dizzy Gillespie, Count Basie and Charlie Parker.

Every night at 9:20 Tinker Bell makes her flight above Fantasyland igniting the "Fantasy in the Sky" fireworks display.

Tiny feet wear the rocks away

Jackass penguins have nested so many centuries on Dasen Island at the tip of South Africa that millions upon millions of their feet have worn away rocks. The penguins keep to paths that run nearly arrow-straight from nesting ground to sea.



DRUMMING UP TRADE — Buddy Rich, billed as "the world's greatest drummer," will perform with his band in the Plaza Gardens of Disneyland Sunday through Sept. 8. Rich has played with the bands of Artie Shaw and Tommy Dorsey, and made records with Dizzy Gillespie, Count Basie and Charlie Parker.

Step right up, folks

Buy yourself a railroad car

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thinking of opening a restaurant, a motel, a dance floor, a shopping center, a new office, a warehouse, or buying a new home?

Then hurry on down to Flemington, N..J, on Sept. 4 and get in on the bidding at the third auction in history—and the biggest—of antique railroad passenger cars. The foregoing are some of the remarkable things that have been done with cars that galumphed the continent by rail from the turn of the century through the 1920's.

Nine cars are to be auctioned, the cheapest at a minimum bid of $2,800, the most expensive to start at $28,500. Jackie Gleason is expected to be present and maybe Johnny Cash, both railroad buffs, plus a sprinkling of corporation heads with eyes alight.

This is a private auction, with advance registration required, plus $6 for a kit of photos, floor plans, and details, according to the boss seller, Alfred M. Coleman of (Box 123) Bethpage, N.Y.

Five of the cars are Coleman's. He has the other four under contract to sell. He's only 25, but he's been a rail buff since age 16, when he bought his first car.

Restaurant Cars

Why the sale? "I can't find a place to pull all my cars. They're not bringing in any money now. And window breaking by kids is a big problem. Besides I'm in another business. I tried to make trading in old railroad cars a business, but it's too hard to get customers—you can spend $1,000 advertising and still get only one customer. But I may stay in it as a hobby. This sale is my entire stock now."

The main user of old passenger cars—and No. 1 prospect for Coleman—is the man who converts one into a fairly expensive restaurant.

There are at least 50 such restaurants around the country. All you need to do is build a bit of track on your property for the restaurant to sit on, hire a house mover, and move it down the highway. The interior is up to you—maybe invoke the past, the 1890s.

There are many other uses underway:

—Product exploitation. One manufacturer restored three cars and took them all over the country ... People take a baggage car and make it into a dance floor to add to their restaurant . . . A Pennsylvania man used 22 cabooses for a motel ... A man in Texas turned the whole Denver Zephyr into a motel. This was a famous Chicago-Denver train that was discontinued in the 1960s.

RR mismanagement

Coleman is a former railroad man: "I started at 18 with the Penn Central, beginning in a tower and becoming a general yard master—I went up fast but I saw what was happening in railroads. I made my exit at 21. I found the Penn Central to be 100 per cent mismanaged."

The queen of Coleman's auction fleet is old No. 1158, a coachparlor that he and seven other people spent two years restoring. They used paint remover, steel wool and toothbrushes to remove eight coats of varnish and paint from beautiful African solid mahogany wood inlaid with striping to make designs—work that is more or less a lost art. It has the original crushed blue velvet seats.

"That is one job I never want to do again, as long as I live," he said. "We sweated in hot summer and froze in winter."

No. 1158 made two famed runs, at speeds up to 100 miles per hour. One was when Arthur Brisbane, the journalist who was rich in real estate as well as word peddling, decided he had to get from Philadelphia to New York immediately to cover a Dempsey-Tunney fight in the 1920s.

The other was when Enrico Caruso got an emergeny call to sing at the Metropolitan Opera one night. He also made a breakneck run in No. 1158 behind No. 592.

Vintage cars

The cheapest car at the auction, starting at $2,800, is a former business car that served railroad presidents. Observation platform on rear, it's the only one in poor condition.

Three early 1900 vintage coaches, like No. 1158 but with mahogany still covered with paint, will start for $8,500 each. Two "Stillwell" type cars from the 1930's, famed on the Erie Railroad, for which they were specially built, will start at $4,700 to $4,800 each.

"The Oasis," a 1900 former baggage car that Coleman bought at age 16 and turned into a concession car for food, candy and ice cream, and which served on the renowned "High Iron Steam" excursions, will start at $8,500. In good condition, it's one of three still preserved.

No. 1158 will start at $23,000.

The final car, built about 1924, was converted into a restaurant in 1970 and is ready to open as such. Rebuilt, air conditioned, tables all installed. Start at no less than $28,500.

The sale will be at Turntable Junction in Flemington. The auctioneer: Elwood Heller. All right, folks, step right over here and take a look at the grill work on that rear platform.

Postal service hearing starts

5 per cent of mail wrongly handled

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —If the law of averages was with a person who mailed 20 letters here last year, one of them got lost.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif., opened a hearing into the postal service Monday by saying that 61 million pieces of mail— nearly five per cent of the total —were missorted or otherwise wrongly handled in the metropolitan area last year.

"All the equipment they've been counting on has not been working properly," Wilson said.

"The biggest problem we seem to have has to do with labor-management communications, lack of adequate working facilities, and this reflects on the type of service the public gets."

Los Angeles Postmaster James Symbol said the Post Office needs more time to make its new systems work, and that an accuracy rate of more than 95 per cent is "pretty good."

State Assemblyman Walter Karabian said "the basic problem is that the Postal Service is trying to run, not as a service, but at a profit. Now the hallmark is economy, not service. The men just don't have it in their hearts anymore."

In an attempt to reduce the cost to the federal government, Karabian said, the service has reduced the number of letter carriers by about 40,000.

"The remaining staff must handle an increasing volume of mail, and it is demoralized and overburdened with long overtime hours and inadequate service," he said.

He said the service should make this area an experimental zone, hire more men, increase services and make use of the many systems analysts in the Los Angeles area.

Symbol replied that the Postal Service would be reluctant to have "outsiders" giving advice. "Let us sort out our own problems. What can an outsider know about how we operate?"

Science attaches are diplomats, too

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — For an electrical engineer, Donald K. Reynolds has an unusual working day.

In his office overlooking Guanabara Bay, he may spend the morning studying the major stories in the Brazilian press. Then, in fluent Portuguese, he's likely to speak by telephone to carefully cultivated Brazilian contacts for more information for his own report to Washington.

At lunch, he might talk—as he did to UPI the other day—about Brazil's role, now and in the future, in the solution of "the greatest diplomatic problem the world has ever faced," control of nuclear power.

In the afternoon, he's apt to be busy making notes for the U.S. ambassador on U.S. Brazilian affairs.

If the unusual day for an engineer sounds like a typical day for a diplomat, that's because Dr. Reynolds is both.

Science attache

A full professor of engineering on leave from the University of Washington in Seattle, he has a two-year assignment as science attache in the U.S Consulate here.

In the age of the atom, of space satellites, the energy crisis and world food shortages, the State Department employs 20 scientists as attaches in major embassies and consulates.

Reynolds, 53, says his job, like that of the science attaches in Moscow, Bonn, Tokyo or Buenos Aires, has three main functions; reporting, advising and promoting exchanges of information and ideas between Brazilian and American scientists.

A short, peppery man who walks nimbly on a game leg and talks volubly about Brazil and science, he is especially interested in nuclear development. Neither Brazil nor Argentina, both constructing nuclear reactors, has signed the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty.

First reactor

"The greatest diplomatic problem the world has ever faced is the control of the awesome nuclear stockpile we've brought into being," he said.

"The first Brazilian nuclear power reactor is now under construction 70 miles down the coast toward Santos from Rio," he said. "It is a Westinghouse design—the most recent type.

"This is the first of what will undoubtedly be a long series of reactors, because Brazil expects to reach the end of its economically developable hydro-electric power by the mid-80s, and will then increasingly turn to nuclear energy for its electrical power needs.

"Brazil is anxious to start developing an entire nuclear industry so that future reactors can be more and more constructed with local firms.' '

These reactors will generate a great deal of plutonium, "the prime ingredient in a nuclear weapon," Reynolds said. But Brazil is many years from developing the specialized manufacturing skills needed to construct such weapons, he said. Besides, Brazil shows no signs of starting and takes part in international organizations on peaceful uses of the atom.

Reynolds also "keeps an eye on" existing scientific agreements. Under one of them, Brazil receives data from the Earth Resources Technology Satellite.

WARNING
ASSEMBLY BILL 2112
Adds Sec. 976 and 977 to the
1964 Civil Rights Law

prohibits with certain exceptions, discrimination because of sex. Since some occupations are considered more attractive to persons of one sex or the other, advertisements are placed under the Male or Female columns for the convenience of readers. Such listings are not intended to exclude persons of either sex.

This newspaper strives to protect its readers against fraud, deception or injustices. Advertisements which require cash bonds or investments in stocks, samples, equipment should be investigated thoroughly. All advertising statements must be accurate. All ads pertaining to sales must carry the word sales and must relate some nature of work involved and not designed to mislead the reader. Any ad requiring a tuition for study courses is not considered a help wanted ad and should be in classification 6 "Educational."

NO HELP WANTED AD CAN STIPULATE OR INFER A DEFINITE AMOUNT WHEN starting pay is commission basis. Report any exception to this rule to Classified Advertising Manager. NA 2-1201

Central Valley-- Cal. 'Rice Bowl'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Dropping down to 20,000 feet in preparation for his first landing at Sacramento Metropolitan Airport, commercial airline pilot Ken Drake thought he had misplaced the whole state of California.

Stretched out below him on his approach to the airport on the outskirts of the state capital were acre after acre of shimmering patches of water, carved into every conceivable design by snake-like levees.

"I didn't think it was California," said Drake, a 23-year-veteran with United Air Lines. "It was strange, it looked just like a formal garden in England."

The things Drake described as "geometric patterns" were thousands of acres of rice —one of California's least noticed and publicized farm products.

High daytime temperatures and warm summer nights make rice an ideal crop for the central part of Northern California. This year, Golden State farmers, using airplanes, seeded more than 400,000 acres in Colusa, Butte, Sutter, Glenn, Yolo, Yuba, Sacramento, Placer, Fresno, San Joaquin, Merced, Stanislaus, Kern, Tulare, Madera and Kings counties.

Ranked in the top 15 of California crops in the past few years along with the state's famous citrus and fruit products, rice has come a long way since 1852.

It was that year the Legislature, noting all of California's rice had to be imported, offered $250 for the first 1,000 pounds of rice produced in the state.

But the reward went uncollected and the offer was repealed in 1870. Many persons tried to collect, notably the state's growing Chinese population, but they all failed because they limited themselves to long grain rice, which is not hardy enough for the short California growing season.

Although a short grain rice plot was planted in 1907 at the State Insane Asylum in Stockton, it was not until the next year that what is considered the first successful experiment for short grain was conducted.

W. W. Mackie, who was in charge of alkali reclamation work for the U.S. Bureau of Soils, secured 40 acres of black adobe wheat land that year, with the help of the Biggs Chamber of Commerce.

The land was southwest of Biggs and the financially plagued Sutter-Butte Canal Co., which was seeking new revenue, agreed to furnish the water.

The plot was divided between Honduras, or long grain, and Kiushu, or short grain rice. The Honduras failed to mature. But the Kiushu produced a crop of about 3,000 pounds of rough rice an acre.

California's rice growing season starts in mid-April and the seeding is done by small aircraft. During the up to 165-day growing season, the fields are submerged continuously with water up to a depth of eight inches.

During September, from two to three weeks before the rice is mature, the fields are drained so the ground will be dry enough to support heavy harvesting machinery. Harvesting continues into November.

Last year California farmers produced 19,583,000 hundredweight bags of rough rice —25 per cent of the nation's total.

Milled down to 13,211,537, it represented a $120.7 million crop.

But hardly any of the California crop ends up on the American dinner table. Americans prefer the long grain, white rice —and not the Golden State's medium and short grain.

But its popularity in other countries is quite evident —75 per cent of the California crop is exported overseas to such places as Puerto Rico, Guam, and South Korea and other Asian countries. And there is hardly any waste in the California crop. The milling produces 10 primary byproducts, ranging from rice hulls used for polishing compounds to broken rice for brewing beer.

Most of the state's rice farmers belong to three major cooperatives: Rice Growers Association of California and Farmers' Rice Cooperative, both headquartered in Sacramento, and the Butte County Rice Growers Association in Richvale. Together, it is estimated they produce about 80 per cent of the state's crop, with 20 per cent coming from independents.

The Rice Growers Association, with 2,000 members, is the world's largest rice producing, harvesting, milling and marketing cooperative.

The group owns and operates mills and warehouses in five locations in California and one in San Juan, Puerto Rico. It also operates the S.S. Rice Queen, the world's largest bulk rice carrier, for its shipments to Puerto Rico.

Robert W. Freeland, executive vice president of the group, calls the California rice grower the "most sophisticated in the world."

"Everything is mechanical," Freeland said.

"All the planting is done by airplane. Most of the fertilization, most of the spraying is all done by air."

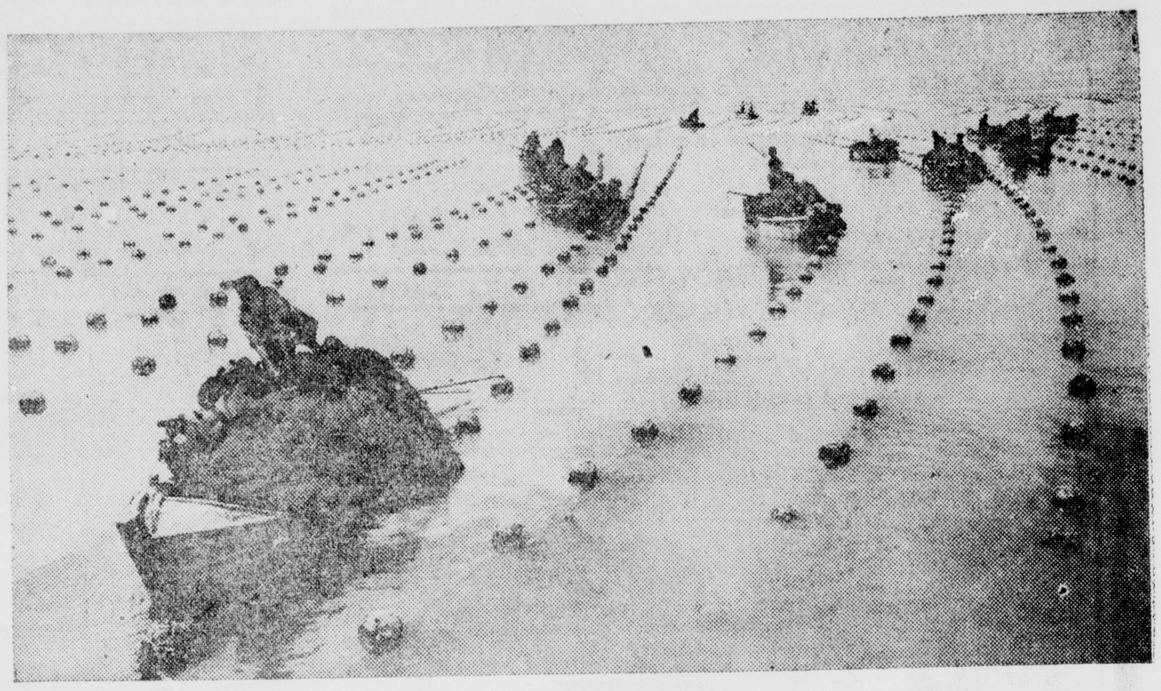
Freeland also said the California farmer spends eight man hours per acre to bring in his crop, compared to hundreds of hours in some Asian countries.

"The eight hours per acre includes all the land preparation, your taking care of the water and all your harvest time," he said.

But the California rice grower has to maintain a large investment in equipment.

"None of the rice is contract harvested, it's done by harvesters. When the rice is ready they have to get it that particular day, because the moisture is at the proper stage to get the best quality out of it."

Adv for week beginning Aug.



BUMPER HARVEST — Wheat may be in short supply in China, but the kelp harvest is of bumper proportions. This is the Tunshan Kelp Farm at the port of Lienyun in Kiangsu province.

Duke misquoted by President

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — President Nixon misquoted the Duke of Wellington during his speech before the Veterans of Foreign Wars in an effort to emphasize the horror of war.

"There is only one thing worse than losing a battle," Nixon said in quoting the "immortal words" of Wellington. "That is winning a battle."

What Wellington said following his victory over Napoleon was: "Nothing except a battle lost can be half so melancholy as a battle won."

Before fielding questions on Watergate

Nixon names Kissinger to replace resigning Rogers

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) —President Nixon said today he has never seriously considered resigning during the unfolding of the Watergate scandal and he does not think his capacity to lead the country has been affected.

At the outset of his first nationally televised meeting with reporters in almost 14 months, the President dropped a bombshell announcement — the appointment of Henry A. Kissinger as secretary of state, succeeding William P. Rogers whose resignation is effective Sept. 3.

He then answered a steady stream of tough questions on Watergate, saying among other things during the 53-minute outdoor session with reporters that:

—It was time for the nation to "move on from Watergate to the business of the people."

—He would have "blown my stack" if John N. Mitchell had told him before the 1972 election what he knew about involvement of campaign or White House figures in the scandal.

—He did not recall L. Patrick Gray saying soon after Watergate that some presidential aides were out to "mortally wound" him by refusing to cooperate in the FBI's investigation of Watergate. Gray was acting director of the FBI at the time of the conversation.

—His confidence in the integrity of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "has not been shaken," but refused to comment on allegations that Agnew accepted kickbacks from contractors while Maryland governor, and perhaps while vice president. Nixon also said it would be "totally inappropriate" for him to respond to a question whether he would ask Agnew to resign if he is indicted.

Nixon told a news conference at the Western White House he recognizes that as far as his capacity to govern is concerned, the "constant barrage" of news reports on the case "tends to raise some questions in people's minds with regard to the President."

But he said, "I was elected to do a job. Watergate is an episode that I deeply deplore. Had I been running the campaign ... it would not have happened."

He said the time had come to turn to other matters and chided reporters, well into the news conference, because they had not asked anything about "the business of the people."

"Years from now, people are going to perhaps be interested in what happened in terms of efforts of the United States to build a strong peace in the world ... efforts of this administration to have the kind of prosperity we have not had since 1955," Nixon said.

"Our goal is to move forward, then. You say, do I consider resigning? The answer is no."

Nixon said he has three and a half years left in his second term "and I intend to use every day of those three and a half years" toward carrying out his administration's goals.

Nixon defense: President has 'extra' powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A White House lawyer, defending President Nixon's refusal to disclose tape recordings bearing on Watergate, told a federal judge today that impeachment by Congress is the only remedy to abuse of presidential power.

Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, pressing for a court order to compel Nixon to surrender the tapes, claimed that a federal grand jury had to have access to the tapes to determine conclusively who should be indicted in the scandal.

"There is reason to believe that the executive offices have been corrupted, although the extent of the rot is not yet clear," Cox asserted.

Cox and White House attorney Charles Alan Wright presented their positions before U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica. A large crowd was present at a show-cause hearing preceding an expected historic battle on the issue in the Supreme Court.

Among the spectators were Samuel Dash and Fred Thompson, counsel for the Senate Watergate Committee which is suing Nixon separately for release of the White House tapes.

Wright, speaking first, maintained that the President was given extraordinary powers by the framers of the Constitution and that they wanted him to use those powers.

In the event a President abused them, Wright said, the framers provided "a remedy — the impeachment powers of Congress."

Cox rejected Wright's claim that the President has the sole power to determine what material should be made public, saying that position runs counter to "the ancient precept that no man should be the judge of his own cause."

Cox argued that Wright was asking the judge to grant Nixon "the right to withhold evidence on his own say-so that is not shared by any other citizen or other government officials."

The President, said Cox, cannot place himself above the law to protect the confidentiality of presidential conversations and papers.

Responding to that Cox contention, Wright said: "We do not contend for one moment that Richard M. Nixon is above the law, but that there is a limit to the extent of the law . . . against the office of the presidency."

Wright said at one point that sensitive national security information was involved in the tape recordings. "The President told me one tape has a national security matter so highly sensitive he didn't even feel free to hint to me what it was," he said.

Sirica, who has handled most of the Watergate-related court activities here since presiding over last January's trial of the original seven defendants indicted in the bugging affair, questioned both lawyers extensively but gave no clear hint to the way he will rule.

U.S., Cubans tangle in bloody brawl during Moscow cage tilt

MOSCOW (UPI)—American and Cuban athletes fought a bloody, 25-minute battle today before several hundred stunned Russian spectators at a World University Games basketball match.

The Cubans swung wooden folding chairs at the Americans, who fought back with their fists. One American was knocked unconscious, and blood and broken glass littered the floor when authorities finally got the situation under control.

The fight broke out just 90 seconds before the end of the game, which the Americans won 98 to 70.

An unidentified Cuban player kicked Mitchell Kupchuk of Brentwood, N.Y., and Kupchuk went down in front of the Cuban basket.

Kupchuk came up swinging, and the entire Cuban bench poured onto the floor. American players swarmed out to try to rescue Kupchuk.

Then the Cubans brought wooden folding chairs onto the floor, and started hitting the American players over the head.

U.S. trainer Wayne Woltzen of Sheboygan, Wis., was knocked unconscious.

"These . . . bastards hit me three times," Woltzen said afterward. "I put my arm up and then he hit me on the back." He had a large lump on the back of his head and had to be treated by a doctor.

At one point the Cuban coach, Ernesto Diaz, chased American coach Ed Badger of Wilbur Wright Junior College in Chicago across the court and back again, throwing punches all the way. Badger ran and did not attempt to fight back.

"We knew they were going to start trouble when they were 20 points behind, because they do it every time we play them," Badger said.

At one point a glass water bottle was thrown onto the floor and shattered.

The Russian crowd, which had cheered the Cubans all through the match, booed, jeered and whistled at the Cubans after the fight started.

When order was restored and the Cubans came out shooting baskets waiting for the game to resume, they were greeted by a deafening round of booing.

There were only about five police officers in the gymnasium when the fight broke out. They made no apparent move to restore order, but game officials finally got the players under control.

Ex-cop who threatened President to surrender

TAOS, N. M. (UPI)—A former New Orleans policeman wanted on a federal warrant for threatening the life of President Nixon agreed to surrender today to Secret Service agents.

Edwin Michael Gaudet Jr., 30, told a relative he would surrender, ending an intensive manhunt around a commune near this northern New Mexico community.

"We understand he had a meeting with his cousin last night and agreed to turn himself in today," announced Sheriff Arthur Trujillo of Taos County.

The bearded, burly Gaudet fled from agents Monday night when they tried to serve the warrant on him at the commune. A posse of agents and sheriff's officers converged on the area Tuesday but suspended the hunt after Gaudet's wife, Judy, and a cousin, Stanley Gaudet, offered to find him.

Mrs. Gaudet and his cousin then hiked into the jagged Sangre de Cristo Mountains. She told agents her husband could not have threatened the President in New Orleans because he was living with her at the commune at the time the alleged threat was made.

The federal complaint filed a week ago charged that Gaudet entered a drugstore in New Orleans and was overheard to say: "Somebody ought to kill President Nixon. If no one has the guts, I'll do it."

Gaudet, who threw a flaming flag at Nixon's limousine three years ago, could not be located before the President's visit to the city Monday to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention. The Secret Service also said it was investigating a "possible conspiracy," but emphasized that Gaudet might not be involved.

Nixon's motorcade was switched off the planned route along famed Canal Street and there were no incidents during his brief visit.

Overseas, as well as domestic

Military base cutback announced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The armed forces are preparing plans for a new round of base closings and reductions that may rival the controversial cutbacks of 259 bases ordered this spring, Pentagon sources said today.

The sources said details of the new cutback, the fourth since 1969, probably would be announced this winter. Delaying any later, they said, would put it too close to election year activities and add unnecessarily to the embarrassment cutbacks cause congressmen.

"This is just one more round in a process we will be seeing for some time to come," one source said, noting the force reductions resulting from the end of the Vietnam war and the pressures for reduced military spending.

Unlike the cutback announced April 16, however, the next round of reductions would include bases overseas as well as in the United States, the sources said.

The April cutback called for closing 40 bases and reducing activity at 219 others, eliminating a total of 21,172 civilian defense jobs and 16,640 military positions. It was expected to save the government $475 million a year. But it drew heavy criticism because it affected only domestic Army, Navy and Air Force installations.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., charged that President Nixon was "sacrificing" jobs in the United States in order to keep costly foreign bases open.

"We should be putting money to work here at home in areas that create jobs for Americans rather than jobs for Icelanders, Germans, Spaniards and countless other foreigners," Cranston said at that time.

In the wake of the massive criticism, the Pentagon ordered the armed forces May 25 to search out U.S. bases overseas, particularly in crowded urban areas, that might be closed without hurting U.S. national security.

Sources said the result of this foreign base search would be reflected in the next base closing announcement, along with new closures and reductions in the United States.

Kicks officer's hand

Police accidentally slay woman suspect

WEST COVINA — An unidentified woman burglary suspect was shot and killed accidentally early today when she kicked a policeman who had pursued the car she was in for several miles, authorities said.

The woman was hit in the chest by one round fired from the service revolver of Officer Don Eckerman as she and three male suspects were being removed from the car on the Pomona Freeway near the Long Beach Freeway interchange.

Police declined to identify her this morning because relatives had not been notified, but said she was between 18 and 21 and from Los Angeles. She was dead on arrival at County-USC Medical Center.

West Covina Police Lt. D.W. Henry gave this account:

Eckerman and other officers answered a silent burglar alarm shortly after 3 a.m. at the Chambers TV, a retail store in the commercial area of the city. When he arrived he saw a car speed away and pursued it southbound on Sunset Avenue. At about Nelson Avenue someone in the car tossed out a television set, apparently in an attempt to wreck Eckerman's radio car.

The pursued car sped westbound onto the Pomona Freeway and Eckerman was joined in the chase by cars from the sheriff's department. Near the Long Beach Freeway interchange the policemen managed to box in the suspects' car and forced the driver to stop.

The three male suspects had been taken out when Eckerman, gun in hand, tried to remove the woman from the rear seat. He said she kicked his hand holding the gun and it fired, hitting her in the chest.

Three television sets taken from Chambers TV were recovered from the car, Henry said. It was the second time the store had been burglarized in two weeks and each time the burglars entered the same way, he said.

The three male suspects were booked on suspicion of burglary and murder. They are Patrick Louis Thomas, 26, Brian Johnson, 18, and Kevin Roderick Neal, 18, all of Los Angeles.

Dead before fire

Man found burned in truck homicide victim

POMONA — Police today said they apparently have a case of homicide on their hands in Monday morning's incident of the burning pickup truck here.

An autopsy performed Tuesday afternoon at the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office failed to reveal the identity of the victim, but did show that he was killed by a blow on the head and was dead before the pickup he was in began burning.

Autopsy findings on the charred body revealed no inhalation of flames, indicating the man was dead before the fire. The body was burned so badly that no fingerprints remained and positive identification may be possible only through the comparison of dental charts.

The autopsy surgeon was able to determine only that the man was white and may have been about 30 years old. The estimate of his age was tenuous, however.

The body was in the pickup parked in a field within the city limits near Brackett Field. The blaze was reported to La Verne authorities by a passerby shortly before 5:30 a.m. The vehicle was a 1965-model blue Ford pickup. Police have declined to reveal the owner's name, but said he was not the victim and he has been unable to help them in determining who had been using the truck.

Police said they have no local missing person reports for men answering the victim's general description.

Two anti-freeze cans and a pair of shoes were found near the pickup. The cans contained gasoline which was believed to have been poured over the truck before it was set on fire.

Double-barrelled demonstration--equal rights, economy

Women plan nation-wide demonstrations

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Women across the nation plan to hold liberation fairs, conduct boycotts and collect signatures this weekend in a double-barrelled demonstration calling attention to the Equal Rights Amendment and the state of the economy.

The occasion is the 53rd anniversary of the 19th amendment to the constitution. It went into effect Aug. 26, 1920, and gave women the right to vote.

The weekend activities are being spearheaded by the National Organization for Women (NOW) and its 500 chapters but also includes other women's liberation groups.

Arlie Scott, the national coordinator for the weekend, said activities in the 21 states which have not yet ratified the Equal Rights Amendment will focus on calling attention to state legislatures to the measure.

Elsewhere, Mrs. Scott said, weekend activities will concentrate on economic issues and NOW's "action year against poverty."

"We are emphasizing economic equality this year," she said.

"There is a crisis of hunger in this country because of Nixon's economic policies," she said. "The economic disaster is as serious as any natural disaster. For women on welfare or with a limited income our economy is a real diaster."

She said NOW's 500 chapters nationwide will conduct a write-in campaign urging the President to sign the minimum wage bill recently approved by Congress.

"We have indications that he might veto the bill because it is inflationary," Mrs. Scott said, "and in case he does we're also collecting signatures to petition individual members of Congress."

Mrs. Scott said NOW expects the President to sign a bill declaring Aug. 25 "Women's Equality Day."

But, she added, "we demand he take positive action to assure equality and the first step is the minimum wage bill.

"NOW is emphasizing that Women's Eauality Day is not only a celebration but the symbol of a continuing struggle and we feel thousands of postcards to the President can make the distinction clear."

On Saturday, picket lines will be set up in Los Angeles, New York City, Austin, Tex., Detroit, Trenton, N. J., Washington, D.C., and in other cities at stores that sell pants manufactured by the Farah Co. of El Paso, Tex.

Farah, which employs mostly Mexican-Americans, more than half of them women, has been the target of a strike for more than two years in a dispute over wages and union representation.

NOW's national conference last February approved a resolution calling for a boycott of Farah products.

In St. Louis, NOW will conduct a massive parade with floats and period costumes re-enacting historical events from the suffrage marches of more than half a century ago.

In Philadelphia, a combination fair will feature ecumenism prayer and feminism while in New York, demonstrators will wear black and hold a funeral service "in memory of the unknown women who departed this life by the horrors of illegal abortion."

Mississippi Gov. Bill Waller has proclaimed Sunday as women's day and a day-long seminar is planned in Jackson Saturday with talks on such topics as the history of the women's movement, politics, and the Equal Rights Amendment.

Ayala, Brown clash over S.B. county's SCAG participation

SAN BERNARDINO — A disagreement over San Bernardino County's membership in the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) has developed betwen county Supervisor Ruben S. Ayala and Rep. George Brown, D-38th Dist.

Brown, of Colton, whose district includes portions of San Bernardino, Los Angeles and Riverside counties, said at present SCAG is a necessary regional body and expressed hope the Inland Empire, a victim of the lack of regional controls on air pollution, would not delay the move to regional solutions.

Ayala, whose fourth district includes the West End of San Bernardino County, said county supervisors do not oppose SCAG, but believe the county could better be served by readjusting the boundaries.

In a recent letter to Ayala, Brown noted that SCAG is currently considered the regional authority by the federal government.

"SCAG, as presently structured, is not in the best position to serve that function," he wrote.

"There are two basic problems. One is the non-mandatory nature of SCAG's makeup. The other is the inclusion of areas that do not have the same problems as does the Los Angeles Basin.

"The solution to the first problem is to make SCAG membershp mandatory, as outlined in AB1181 (Gonsalves). The solution to the second problem is more difficult.

"Because county lines do not follow geographical barriers, San Bernardino and Riverside counties have the bulk of their population in the Los Angeles Basin, but the bulk of their land area outside the basin.

"A truly regional agency should represent a region with a community of interests, which would have to be requested by the counties that would be divided. Until such an effort is made, however, SCAG will represent all of Southern California," said Brown.

If there is not a central organization such as SCAG, then there will be established single purpose agencies which will do some of the same things. These single purpose agencies may not have any elected officials, and therefore would be quite unresponsive, he added.

"They may also tend to aggravate one problem in the process of solving the problem for which they were established. I believe that it would be better to have a multi-purpose regional agency with a structure like SCAG's, rather than the alternative."

Brown said his purpose for the letter was not to condemn any efforts for sub-regional coordination, or to attack home rule. "Effective actions must have local governments, sub-regional councils, and regional councils working together. These super-structures do not take away local powers, but rather give a mechanism by which the larger problems might be solved.

"I believe there is a need for a sub-regional Inland Empire Mini-Council of Governments, just as there is a need for a basin-wide Council of Governments. Regional approaches are a fact of life. At present, SCAG is a necessary regional body."

Ayala reported SCAG was formed about seven years ago to serve as a clearing house for regional projects requiring state and federal funds.

In a return letter to Brown, Ayala said: "Your letter is somewhat confusing and inconsistent in that you support the Gonsalves bill, which makes SCAG a mandatory membership organization and, at the same time, you expound on your backing for home rule—you can't have both.

"Super governmental structures can and do take away local control. I am personally very vocal in support of home rule and strongly oppose any effort to erode such a system, as does the Gonsalves bill which you support."

County supervisors do not oppose SCAG, per se, but members feel it is imperative at this time a review and readjustment of SCAG's boundaries be made in order to determine which regional government best serves particular areas, he added.

"We believe that an Inland Regional Governmental structure composed of the counties of San Bernardino, Riverside, Mono, Inyo and Imperial have more commonly shared problems to resolve than does SCAG with its pesent boundaries.

"Problems that transcend counties, such as smog, rapid transit, flood control and others can be handled by a joint powers authority between SCAG and the proposed Inland Regional Governmental organization.

"The vast majority of the problems would then be resolved by officials who know the problems and their possible solutions; those who are closest to them."

Ayala said officials believe problems emanating from San Bernardino will be most difficult to be resolved by officials from Ventura and Los Angeles counties, "who at times are reluctant to admit we exist.

"I must say that, though we agree in principle on the vital need for regional government, we are miles apart on the mechanics to implement it.

"It is my firm belief that we already have too much government and I strongly feel that still another layer will hinder local officials in getting the services to the people and the job done expeditiously and properly," said Ayala.

Responds to Agnew criticism

Richardson defends Justice Department

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson says the Justice Department has taken "every reasonable step" to make sure information is not leaked to the press about the investigation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Richardson made the statement Tuesday in response to complaints from Agnew that Richardson and U.S. Attorney George Beall in Baltimore were permitting underlings to mount an "outrageous" campaign to influence the grand jury investigating allegations Agnew was involved in a kickback scheme.

"I fully share the vice president's concern about unfair and inaccurate publicity," Richardson said. "I stand by my previous statement that every reasonable step is being taken to assure that the Justice Department has not been and will not be the source of any such publicity."

In a statement, Richardson urged the news media to observe "restraint in what they report." He said this would help to insure fairness.

"I would point out, moreover, that we do not now have any firm basis for the assumption that the information which has appeared in the press has come from law enforcement officials," Richardson said. "In any case, any plausible lead implicating the Department of Justice will be pursued vigorously and appropriate disciplinary action will be taken against any department employe found to be responsible."

The attorney general declined to answer newsmen's questions, but department spokesman John W. Hushen said that Agnew's complaint to Richardson was made in a letter hand delivered to the Justice Department before Agnew went on television Tuesday.

"There is no evidence that anyone in the department is leaking information on the investigation and we will continue an admonishment to department personnel not to leak," Hushen said.

Jimmy Rodgers gets $200,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The city settled a damage suit by folk singer Jimmy Rodgers, who was severely injured in a freeway dispute with an off duty policeman, for $200,000 Tuesday. Rodgers had sued for $10.2 million.

The City Council approved the settlement after the city attorney's office warned there was "substantial risk" that Rodgers would get a larger sum from a jury.

An off duty police officer who stopped Rodgers in December, 1967, saying the singer was driving erratically, said Rodgers slipped and fell, striking his head. Rodgers, however, said he was beaten by the officer, and left in his car, bleeding from a head wound, without medical attention. He subsequently needed three operations and almost died.

Puerto Rican quits mayor race

NEW YORK (UPI) —Rep. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., has abandoned his attempt to become the first Puerto Rican mayor of the nation's largest city.

"I am convinced that an independent candidacy is not feasible. Therefore I will not be a candidate for mayor," Badillo, who lost the Democratic primary runoff to city controller Abe Beame said Tuesday.

FBI post goes to New Yorker

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Eugene W. Walsh, 55, a New York City native who joined the FBI in 1942, has been named the agency's assistant director in charge of the administrative division.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley announced the appointment Tuesday. Walsh will fill the vacancy created when Nicholas P. Callanhan was promoted to associate director, the No. 2 position in the FBI. Walsh served in the Indianapolis, Philadelphia and New York field divisions before being transferred to FBI headquarters in July, 1956.

Dr. Paul White 'doing well'

BOSTON (UPI) —Heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White showed improvement Tuesday, four days after he underwent an operation to remove a blood clot on the brain.

A spokesman at Massachusetts General Hospital said White, 87, former doctor for the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, was "doing well."

White stayed in the hospital recovery room from Friday morning until Monday. He was placed in a private room Monday.

2 experts say beef prices won't rise as freeze ends

United Press International

A Cost of Living Council official and an economist both believe beef prices will not surge upward when the freeze ends next month.

Henry Perritt, executive secretary of the council, said Tuesday that since beef producers are now withholding meat, the market may be flooded in September, keeping the price down. The worst of rising food prices is over and shoppers can look forward to a leveling off, Perritt predicted.

Dr. James O. Bray, an economist for the Stanford Research Institute, also predicted the cattle available would increase. At the same time, he said, prices for other items would start rising, giving consumers less money to spend on beef. He said beef prices may start declining by the end of the year.

Some food prices were lower at supermarkets on Tuesday.

Chicken and pork prices were down dramatically at A&P stores in the New York area. Center cut pork chops were down 40 cents a pound from the high of two weeks ago. Frying chickens were 69 cents a pound, 20 cents cheaper than they were last week.

The Safeway supermarkets in Chicago were selling uncut fryers at 59 cents, down from a peak of 83 cents.

Milton Kushins, an executive of Met Foods, a New York food chain, said "Supply and demand is entering the picture. The consumers just don't have the dollars to spend."

But Kushins predicted higher prices for rice, macaroni and oil, products purchased by those with little money.

Younger assails Demo 3-year death penalty plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger today branded as unconstitutional a Democratic plan to reinstate the death penalty for only three years to determine whether the gas chamber deters people from murder.

"We would theoretically be taking lives during this period while the state tries to decide the deterrent effect of capital punishment," said Younger. "No court, in my opinion, would authorize the taking of a human life without justification for experimental purposes only."

The assembly Criminal Justice Committee Tuesday amended a bill to provide the three-year experimental death penalty for 17 serious crimes.

A showdown vote was scheduled Thursday for the new proposal and a rival bill by Sen. George Deukmejian that is supported by Younger and Gov. Ronald Reagan. It was uncertain how the key committee would vote.

If his measure is rejected, Deukmejian said he will seek to have the full Assembly yank it from the committee next week. "The least the people deserve is a vote on the death penalty by the full legislature," he said.

Managers of gas stations plan Labor Day shutdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Many gasoline station operators plan to shut down over the Labor Day weekend to protest the government's Phase IV price controls, and some may do it as early as this weekend.

The American Automobile Association in a weekly survey of gasoline supplies said today the shutdowns probably would be "widespread."

"Although it is still uncertain how thorough area shutdowns will be if they do occur, one state retail dealers association said it was confident 60 per cent of Pennsylvania's 10,000 dealers would close on cue from the association," AAA said in the report.

AAA said its nationwide survey showed that gasoline dealer associations "in many states and cities" were organizing closings, "some as early as the coming weekend but most planned to coincide with the long Labor Day weekend."

The protest will be aimed at profit margins allowed under Phase IV price controls. Petroleum prices have been one of the chief targets of the federal anti-inflation program.

Bonita teachers gain 2nd salary increase

SAN DIMAS — The Bonita school board approved revised teachers' salary schedules Tuesday, adding an approximate 1.7 per cent to the salary guidelines approved June 12.

The increases, said Supt. James Johnson, keep the district in line with the board's stated goal of remaining at median level among school districts in the county.

Together with the increases approved in June, district teachers will receive pay hikes totaling from 4.8 to 7.4 per cent over last year. The increases raise the minimum teacher's salary to $8,263 per year.

In other business, the board approved a bid of $103,699 by the Steed Bros. Builders for the rebuilding of the Bonita High School library, which was partially destroyed by fire last March.

The bid, which came in over $15,000 below the architect's estimate, includes carpeting for the library, said Asst. Supt. James Overin.

Completion of the library repair work is expected in March 1974.

In an educational report to the board, Asst. Supt. Howard Wigell detailed the results of the district testing program during the past year.

Wigell reported that reading scores in grades 1 through 3 were "substantially" improved over last year and that growth was measured at all elementary levels.

The administration, said Wigell, was generally pleased with the testing results, especially in the area of reading and that the district goal now is to show similar growth at the intermediate and secondary levels.

Radical Berkeley councilman ousted

BERKELEY (UPI) —Radical city councilman D'Army Bailey took his ouster calmly Tuesday night after he was recalled by voters and replaced by William Rumford Jr., an official with the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

With all 189 precincts recorded, the unofficial vote was 18,569 to remove Bailey from office and 11,548 to retain him.

Bailey, 31, an attorney, termed the outcome a "sobering experience."

U.S. may begin troop pullout in Thailand

BANGKOK (UPI) —The United States may begin withdrawing some of its 45,000 troops stationed in Thailand by the end of this month, Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn said today.

Thanom said at his weekly news conference he believed that talks with American embassy and U.S. military officials concerning the troop reduction would resume on Friday.

Asked when the first troops could be withdrawn, Thanom said, "I think by the end of this month."

He said the talks had been delayed by the absence from Bangkok of Lt. Gen. Kriangsak Chamananda, deputy chief of staff of the Supreme Command.

"The two parties will consider the troop reduction step by step," Thanom said.

The American troop pullout from Thailand became feasible with the Aug. 15 U.S. bomb halt over Cambodia. Most of the air strikes had been carried out from bases in Thailand.

Thanom said the first units to depart would be those that came to Thailand from South Vietnam when the United States withdrew from that country in March under terms of the Jan. 27 Vietnam ceasefire agreement.

Along with the 45,000 servicemen—most of them Air Force personnel—stationed in Thailand, the United States maintains about 500 warplanes here including a fleet of B52 bombers.

Thanom conceded that the U.S. withdrawal would have "a great deal of impact" on the Thai economy. "They have spent a lot of money here," the prime minister said of U.S. servicemen.

But Thanom said that "not all" the Americans would be pulled out. An undetermined number will remain under the security charter of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), he said.

"There will be no total withdrawal," Thanom said. "It (troop strength) will be reduced step by step in accordance with the situation in this region and the security of Thailand."

American forces are stationed at seven airbases across Thailand.

U.S. jury files 25 charges against 4 in prison escape

SAN FRANCISCO — Conspiracy and harboring a fugitive are among 25 charges levied Tuesday by a federal grand jury here against four persons in the escape of Ronald Wayne Beaty from the California Institute for Men at Chino last Oct. 6.

Named in the indictment were Jean S. Hobson, 45, her son Bruce, 23, formerly of Mountain View, Morton Newman, 30, formerly of Menlo Park, and Robert A. Seabock, 22, formerly of Palo Alto.

Mrs. Hobson and Seabock are in custody in San Bernardino, awaiting trial on first degree murder charges in the fatal shooting of prison guard Jesus Sanchez during the escape.

Beaty, who was recaptured Dec. 11 on the San Francisco Bay Bridge in the company of Mrs. Hobson, later pleaded guilty in a San Bernardino Superior Court and turned state's evidence.

In the story he told of his escape, he named each of the persons indicted — all identified by authorities as members of the revolutionary group Venceremos, headquartered in Palo Alto. Mrs. Hobson, according to Beaty's story, was involved in the escape, and later went with him to a home in Gilroy where they linked up with her son.

He alleged that Bruce Hobson took him to a mountain cabin hideaway where the escapee stayed about one month. When he moved from the cabin, Beaty told a court May 7, he went to Seabock's home in Palo Alto, where Newman assisted with 24-hour "guard duty."

While in the Seabock residence, Beaty related, there were pistols, fragmentation grenades, smoke bombs, and what looked like a machine gun lined up on the kitchen table, ready for quick use in case police showed up.

Seabock was arrested shortly after Beaty's recapture while police were searching his home. The search itself became an object of contention, but during it Palo Alto police reported finding a partially-assembled pipe bomb, ammunition, an automatic weapon, and sulphuric acid.

In the indictment by the grand jury, the four were also charged with being accessories and aiding and abetting a felon in possession of a firearm.

During a subsequent trial for Bruce Douglas Burt and the young woman he married during the trial, Andrea Holman Burt, both convicted of participating in the escape-murder, Beaty was repeatedly attacked by the defense as an "inveterate liar." But the two were found guilty, and they now await sentencing on the second-degree murder decision.

Trial for Mrs. Hobson and Seabock is due in September, while U.S. Atty. James L. Browning said Newman and Hobson have indicated they will surrender to authorities.

Summation scheduled in murder trial

ONTARIO — Following rebuttal arguments by the prosecution Tuesday, final arguments were scheduled today in the trial of three inmates at California Institution for Men at Chino, accused of murdering a fellow convict last Dec. 17.

After final arguments in West Valley Superior Court here, the case could be sent to jury today.

In testimony during the trial it was alleged that Rudolph Cadena was killed as part of a conflict between two Mexican-American prison organizations, the Mexican Mafia and La Nuestra Familia. Defense attorneys earlier claimed that Frank Phillip Mendoza, Raymond L. Contreras, and Juan Figueroa Colon acted in self-defense and instinct after an alleged altercation between themselves and the victim.

Prosecutors have claimed there was no such altercation, and of five CIM inmates textifying in the trial, only one said he saw the victim attack one of the defendants before the slaying.

L.V. dehorns bond issue: park plans revised

LA VERNE — The City Council disposed of the last obstacles in the way of its $972,000 parks and recreation bond issue Tuesday night by unanimously approving the location of two new parks.

The two sites had been a bone of contention up to now but after a presentation by the Parks and Recreation Commission at the joint meeting, the council decided to go along with the proposal.

One of the new parks will be located on about six acres of property owned by Floyd Bunnelle north of Base Line Road and West of Wheeler Avenue, just south of a site orginally proposed in La Verne Heights.

The other location will be about 5½ acres on the corner of Wheeler Avenue and Third Street which is now vacant.

The council had objected to the La Verne Heights location mostly because it involved acquisition of a home which the owners were reluctant to sell, according to Ray Kaldenbach, director of the parks and recreation department. The realigned location leaves out that home.

Plans call for the establishment of an activity building, landscaping, a picnic and play area including a tot lot, and lighting, for a total cost of about $190,000.

The council also had second thoughts about the site proposed at Wheeler Avenue. Councilmen pointed out that the park would be only two blocks away from Kuns Park and suggested the possibility of expanding that park rather than developing a new one.

But Wayne Romanick, a Cal Poly landscape architectural student, who had drawn up the plans and made the presentation Tuesday on behalf of the commission, argued that the two parks would serve different purposes.

He said Kuns Park would remain a "passive" type of location whereas the new park would be heavy on activities. It would include a large play area, a multipurpose court, a large concrette slab for volley ball and badminton games, and a larger activity cener.

Acquisition and development cost of the Wheeler park is estimated at $240,000.

Also approved by the council as part of the bond issue were improvements for three existing parks.

These include a $250,000 community building at Los Flores park, lighting of the ball fields at Pelota Park and restrooms and other improvements at Kuns Prk.

The council and the commission agreed on the need to proceed quickly with the establishment of a citizens' committee to help explain and promote the bond issue set for Nov. 6.

This is expected to begin next month.

County fires keep firemen hopping

SAN DIMAS — County firemen Tuesday afternoon put out a three-acre brush fire north of Puddingstone Lake and then rushed to the scene of another fire near Covina Boulevard and east of the 210 Freeway overpass.

The causes of both fires are under investigation.

A total of seven engine companies and two camp crews fought the three-acre blaze which apparently started in the area south of Cannon Avenue between San Dimas and Walnut avenues.

Firemen fought the blaze for two hours before it was brought under control. The second brush fire burned less than a half an acre.

San Dimas meeting canceled

SAN DIMAS — The third week in August is apparently a bad time to schedule meetings in San Dimas.

Both the Bonelli Park Commission and the city Parks and Recreation Commission had to cancel their scheduled meetings Tuesday afternoon and evening because both commissions didn't have enough members attending for a quorum.

Chaffey College hires seven, delays project

ALTA LOMA — The Chaffey College board of trustees Tuesday hired seven teachers for the 1973-74 school year but held off on accepting a bid for remodeling of the student career counseling center because one of two bids received was too high.

Those were the only two items on the agenda.

Teachers employed are Mrs. Dorothy Bordorano and Mrs. Lillian Torres, nursing instructors; Mrs. Louise Agos, a vocational nursing instructor; Mrs. Grace Arndt, a nursing assistant instructor (a new progrom at Chaffey); John McGee, an instructor in corrections; Mrs. Beverly Benjamin, an instructor in coordinator of early childhood development; and Eddie O. Smith, an instructor in coordinator of fire science.

The student center bids will be considered at a future board meeting.

In the absence of vacationing Chaffey president, Dr. Stanley Warburton, associate superintendent Kenneth Hinrichsen represented the administration at the board meeting.

Fight leads to arrest of 3 women

ONTARIO — An argument and an ensuing altercation with police led to the arrest Tuesday of two Ontario women and another from Cucamonga on charges of battery, disturbance of the peace and resisting and interfering with arrests.

Police said an argument and a fight erupted between Zelda Rae Valentine, 30, of 1513 E. Fourth St. and Susie L. Montecino, 44, of 914 N. Calaveras Ave. at about 4 p.m. in the vicinity of the Montecino residence.

All were booked into West End Jail following the incident.

Welfare Isle to be renamed for Roosevelt

NEW YORK (UPI) —Welfare Island, a two-mile-long strip of land in the East River off Manhattan, which has had four names since the Dutch settlers first called it "Hog Island," has been renamed "Franklin D. Roosevelt Island."

At present, the 147-acre island is the site of two hospitals, but New York City planners are developing a 5,000-family town on the island, expected to cost at least $300 million. The hospitals will remain.

Dutch colonists named the land "Varriken (Hog) Island" because they used it for a swine pasture. When the English took control of New Amsterdam, they renamed it "Perkins Island." Later, a private owner changed the name to "Blackwell's Island" after his family.

It was acquired by the city in 1828 for $52,500 and became the site for the city's prison, workhouse and insane asylum. In 1921, the Board of Aldermen changed the name to Welfare Island.

Mayor John V. Lindsay made the new name official Monday, but said an official ceremony will be held in a few weeks when a memorial to President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be unveiled on the island's southern end.

Prime rate at new high

NEW YORK (UPI) —Big businesses borrowing money from some major banks will be charged 9½ per cent interest— the highest prime rate on record.

The previous record, 9¼ per cent, was set only last week.

The prime rate is the rate banks charge big corporate customers for commercial and business loans. Although the prime rate may affect other interest rates, fluctuations in rates for consumer loans usually lag far behind the prime.

Economists who favor higher interest rates say it will slow down the superheated economy and hopefully help to stabilize prices. But Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, said the rising interest rates are bad for the economy. He called on President Nixon to halt or roll them back.

"In 1969, Congress gave President Nixon the power to not only stop interest rate increases but the power to roll them back and allocate resources to credit-starved sectors of the economy," Patman said. "He has the power over the Federal Reserve and he should act now. His powers must be used immediately if we are to escape the current economic crisis."

The Federal Reserve Board last week raised its discount rate—the rate on short-term loans it makes to banks—from 7 to a record 7.5 per cent to cut down on lending as a curb on inflation.

Among the bigger banks which upped prime interest rates were Franklin National Bank of New York, Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, Union Bank of California, Bank of California and Continental International Bank & Trust Co.

Won't race against pal, quits event

Dear Walt: My father and mother are mad at me because I will not run in the Labor Day races. I have made this decision because the coach planned to put me in exactly the same races that Ethan, my best friend, will run races in. I asked him not to do this, but he said I would either run these races or nothing, so I took nothing. Do you think I was right or wrong? —Bill

Dear Bill: I think you have a right to decide whom you will compete with, and if you decided that competing with Ethan on the track might sideline friendship, I think the decision is right. (To me a true friend is of inestimably more value than the cheers of a fickle crowd or the sparkle of a cheap trophy.)

But I wonder if you gave Ethan a chance to express his own views on your withdrawal from the race before you announced it to the coach? It may be that he was less than flattered by your decision not to compete against him ("Oh, he's sure I'd lose, huh?) If you haven't discussed the situation fully yet, it's time you did. — Walt

Dear Ele: If you are pretty certain that someone is always cheating at cards where you're working, but there is no money on the game (only cokes, etc.), would you say anything or just let it go? —Pauline

Dear Pauline: Personally I would not continue to play in a game with a crooked player. Without the element of total chance, a card game is a senseless affair. I suuggest you speak privately to the culprit. Your message: "I think there's some cheating going on in the game. I'd be grateful if you'd help put a stop to it. I know some families think cheating lends spice to a no-cash game, but it just destroys the sense of it for me. How about you? . . ."—Ele

Dear Ele and Walt: How often should a couple kiss in an evening after they have been going for over one year? —Rationed

Dear Rationed: After dating for a year, the couple should be able to discuss how far they intend to let their love-making progress. If they don't want to permit full sexual relations, then each needs to indicate the point at which her-his self-control wavers. This knowledge can then guide the couple in deciding how prolonged and frequent their kisses should be. —Ele and Walt

Dear Ele and Walt: My friend is always criticizing his family to me. I listen to him because I think it's probably good for him to let off his steam. If he asks my opinion, I try to turn things back so he thinks more about it himself. When I think he is being unfair, I tell him so but don't push it.

The other day my mom overheard us talking, and she told me later that I am taking a big chance letting him involve me in family secrets, and that an outsider almost always ends up in trouble in this sort of case. I haven't noticed any bad vibes when I got to his house, but do you think my mom is right?—Kit

Dear Kit: You seem to have two pluses going for you. (1) You are bright enough to ask questions that encourage thought, rather than make snap judgments. (2) Apparently he is not using your rap as support in home arguments. As long as these two guidelines hold, we think you can safely continue to counsel your pal. He's fortunate to have a chum like you!—Ele and Walt

Dear Walt: If you had to introduce two people of about the same sex and same age who tend to be jealous of anyone else you knew, how would you pick the one to mention first? — Heard Bells Once

Dear HBO: I' smile at my two prima donas and say, "I'll give you alphabetical billing. "Alex, I'd like you to meet Jamie. Jamie, this is Alex." — Walt.

Minister says Englishmen poor lovers

LEEK, England (UPI) — Englishmen should be given lessons in love to make up for their amazing ignorance in sexual techniques, the Rev. Michael Pollitt, dean of Leek, said recently in his parish magazine.

"This selfishness in lovemaking is demonstrated partly in an unwillingness to listen and an inability to cope with problems, and partly in the Englishman's ignorance about sexual techniques in marriage," he said.

Obituaries

Helen Budd

CLAREMONT — Graveside services were held Monday at Forest Lawn Glendale for Miss Helen Budd of Claremont Manor. She died Aug. 14 at the age of 91.

A World War I army nurse, she served in France at Bagoilles Sur Meuse, Base Hospital, Unit 46. Upon return to the United States, she attended Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., earning a degree in religious education.

Miss Budd worked as a director of religious education serving various churches in Illinois, North Dakota and Washington. Later she became principal of the Weekday School of Religious Education in Covington, Ky., where she served for 11 years.

Miss Budd moved to California upon retirement, settling in Claremont, where she was an active member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Republican Women's Club and the Claremont Women's Club.

She is survived by a sister, Miss Beulah Budd of Claremont Manor, and by another sister in Oregon.

Mae S. Unangst

POMONA — Miss Mae S. Unangst of 29B Calle Aragon, Leisure World, Laguna Hills, died Monday morning at her home following a one-month illness.

Miss Unangst was born in Nazareth, Pa. She moved to Claremont from that city in 1960 and lived in Claremont until April of 1972 when she moved to Leisure World.

She is survived by a brother, Elwood J. of Nazareth, Pa.

Private entombment was made today in the Pomona Mausoleum.

Memorial services will be announced later.

Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona was in charge of arrangements.

Letter bombs arrive five days in a row

LONDON (UPI) —A letter bomb disguised as a packaged book was delivered by a postman today to headquarters of the ruling Conservative Party but was discovered and plunged into a pail of water to await bomb disposal men.

It was the fifth day of a bombing campaign involving letter bombs and small incendiary bombs in London's big department stores. Today the scare extended to Luton, 32 miles north of London, where police found six bulky suspected letter bombs mailed from the Republic of Ireland.

Police said they believed the bombs to be the work of either Irish extremists involved with the Irish Republican Army (IRA) or anarchists trying to launch an urban guerrilla war in Britain.

London police today defused a new incendiary device planted this morning in a major London department store, the 15th found since Saturday. This one was found in the fabric department of Dickins and Jones department store on Regent Street.

The nation's most popular state tree is the pine — state tree of 10 states.

Nearly under control

Firefighters gain upper hand in wilderness blazes

By United Press International

Aided by overcast skies and higher humidity, firefighters gained an upper hand today in curbing the West's worst wilderness blazes in history.

They have charred nearly 200,000 acres of timber and grassland and caused losses of timber easily surpassing $70 million.

Sleeping and eating in shifts, more than 10,000 Forest Service personnel and volunteers from across the nation manned lines at 13 big fires in California, Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Utah and Nevada.

Most of the blazes have been controlled or contained today. However, a few are still blazing out of control.

Cool Temperature

Forest Rangers said temperatures have started to cool and clouds formed over the northwest to help firemen. Showers and thundershowers were forecast for eastern Idaho and central Montana.

Half of the 10,000 firefighters were battling six blazes in Northern California forests.

At Red Bluff in Tehama County, the Inskip Grade fire blackened 16,000 acres. It was declared contained at midday Tuesday but jumped out of control across the south fork of Battle Creek. Residents living south and west of the town of Manton were asked to evacuate their homes.

Near Susanville in Lassen County, winds up to 30 miles an hour whipped flames over 20,000 acres before being contained.

In the Eldorado National Forest east of Placerville, containment of the forest fire which has consumed 9,000 acres is expected.

U.S. Highway 50, closed Saturday when the blaze erupted, was expected to reopen today. It is a scenic major artery between Sacramento, the state capital, and South Lake Tahoe.

Women firefighters were pressed into service at the Eldorado blaze.

"It's exciting and strange," said Sherri Hunter, 23, a firefighter from Klamath Falls, Ore., "one minute the fire is roaring after you. The next minute, you go to wash your face and people start whistling at you."

Another big fire burned out of control in the deepest river gorge in the United States—Hell's Canyon on the Oregon-Idaho border — where winds fanned flames toward the lowest spot in the 5,500-foot deep canyon.

Six major fires blazed unchecked in Montana including the Tri Creek blaze and Caribou Mountain fire near the Canadian border. However, the blazes which blackened 33,000 acres around Miles City, Mont., are nearly controlled.

Hurricane kills 2 children, ruins hundreds of homes

CAMPECHE, Mexico (UPI) —Hurricane Brenda churned through southeast Mexico Tuesday with winds up to 112 miles an hour, unleashing powerful rains and floods that killed two children and washed away hundreds of homes.

The fierce winds later fell off sharply and the storm appeared to be blowing itself out.

The greatest damage from Brenda's heavy rains and winds appeared to be centered around this capital city just below the Yucatan peninsula.

Flood waters cascaded through the streets of Campeche and collapsed straw shacks. About 2,000 people were reported homeless after the storm passed.

Children killed

Authorities said two children in the city were swept away and carried to their deaths in the churning flood waters as Brenda approached.

The winds and rain also knocked out all communications with Ciudad del Carmen, an island city of about 10,000.

Brenda, the season's second hurricane, lost strength late in the afternoon. By 6 p.m., the U.S. National Hurricane Center in Miami reported the winds had fallen to 40 mph or below and announced there would be no futher advisories on the storm.

Headed South

Meterorlogical experts in Mexico City said the storm was headed south toward the jungle state of Chiapas, on the border with Guatemala.

Merger of 2 teacher groups asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States' three million elementary and high school teachers will be asked to support a merger of the National Education Association and the American Federal of Teachers, the co-chairman of a teacher's group said Tuesday.

"Teachers cannot tolerate much longer this fighting among teachers," said Marge Beach, Oakland, of the National Coalition for Teacher Unity.

Her group, which claims credit for bringing the two national organizations to the negotiating table, is composed of officers and members of both groups and of their affiliates at state and local levels.

The 1.4 million-member NEA and the 400,000-member AFT have agreed to talks sometime after Sept. 1 to pave the way toward a single teacher organization. Not all teachers are members of the two groups.

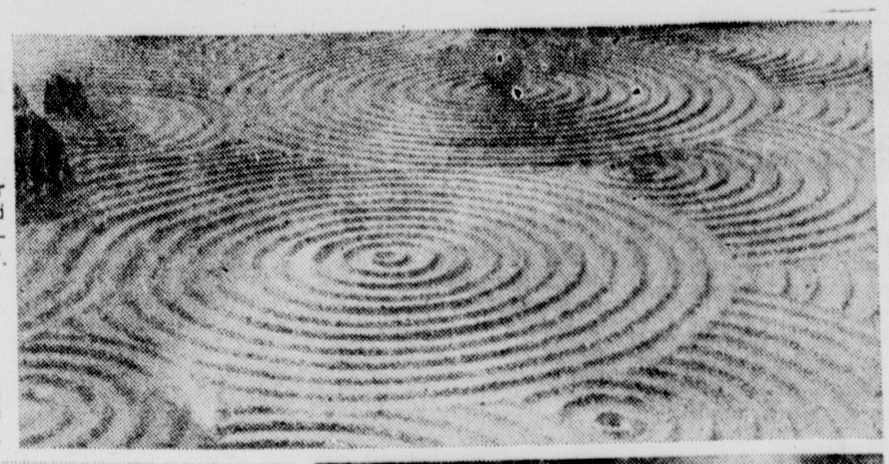
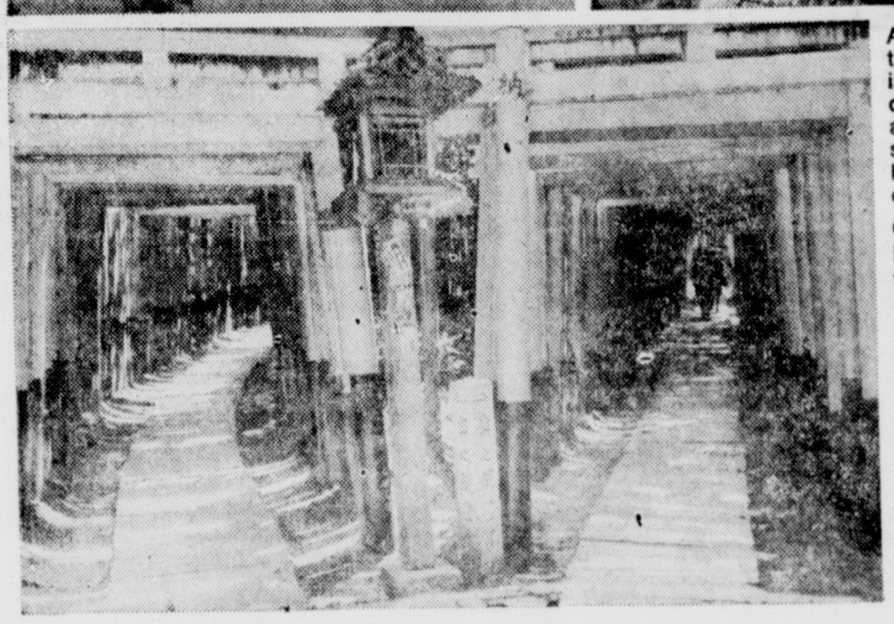
Tranquil Patterns of an earlier and quieter time are still to be found in the industrialized, fast-paced Japan of today.



Raked gravel, right, in the Zen rock garden of Kyoto's Tofukuji Temple suggests ripples to symbolize the vast bodies of water of the universe.



A place of exile in feudal times, the history of the island of Sado in the Sea of Japan and of the ancient exiles is the subject of dances, above left, performed to ballads called "Okesa."

Graceful arches of Kintai Bridge, above right, span the Nishiki River in the ancient castle town of Iwakuni. The 17th-century structure contains no nails.

Clustered Torri gates donated over many years by faithful worshipers form an arcade of shadowed beauty, left, over paths leading to the Fushimi Inari Shrine in Kyoto.

Australia, Japan are seeking more flexible foreign policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Australia and Japan, two of America's staunchest allies in Asia, both have advised President Nixon that they want to remain close friends but that the United States no longer is the dominant superpower in their national lives.

In separate meetings, Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka made it clear to Nixon their governments are pursuing a more independent foreign policy than Canberra or Tokyo have done in the past.

"What we wish to do, what we are doing, is to see that the official United States view is not the only view ever considered by an Australian government," Whitlam said after conferring in Washington with Nixon.

If Tanaka said it a bit softer, his message was just as clear.

After citing major political, financial and trade problems confronting the world, Tanaka said, "In enterprises of this scope, not even the United States, with all its might, can unilaterally solve the problems, nor should we expect it to do so."

American officials directly involved with Japanese affairs interpreted that as a blunt declaration that the United States should no longer expect automatic Japanese support for any future made-in-Washington solutions to international problems.

Both Whitlam and Tanaka went out of their way to emphasize they still value highly their relations with the United States. But Whitlam pointedly noted that if U.S. officials did not like the changes occurring in Asia, they had no one to blame but themselves.

"The initiative for these changes came not, of course, from Australia but from the United States," Whitlam said. "These initiatives —President Nixon's initiatives —have created a new reality for our region. Part of Australia's task has been to ratify the new reality."

The United States publicly supports decisions of Australia and Japan to establish diplomatic relations with Peking.

The U.S. position is that those developments were in tandem with Washington policy since Washington and Peking recently established liaison offices in each other's capital. But American officials feel that Whitlam and Tanaka granted diplomatic recognition to Peking much quicker than necessary.

"We do not wish to grandstand or thumb our noses at the United States," Whitlam told a National Press Club audience. "When our interests do not coincide and when we disagree with the United States we shall, as a good friend should, say so firmly and frankly, usually — and preferably —in private."

Whitlam stressed that while Australia is interested in improving relations with China, it does not wish to do so at the expense of U.S. friendship.

U.S. presence has Thais in dilemma

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When the last American B52 exploded its last bomb over Cambodia, the result in neighboring Thailand was a sort of vacuum.

There are 45,000 American troops at seven bases in Thailand, and the Thais want to know more about their intentions for the future, or rather the intentions of the American government in Washington which they feel has not always taken them into its confidence.

Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn, the head of Thailand's military government, has declared the U.S. forces must remain so long as there is doubt that North Vietnam will live up to its cease-fire pledges in South Vietnam.

If, in the meantime, there should be a communist takeover in Cambodia and Laos, then he believes the U.S. should remain in Thailand indefinitely.

Against the government view are the dissenters who believe the American presence creates a threat to the peace of Thailand and believe it should be reduced as quickly as possible.

Among them is Thanat Khoman, the former foreign minister, who declares that eventually Thailand must make its accomodation with North Vietnam and with China and that the continuing presence of the American bases only makes Thailand a target for new communist aggression.

Thai university students, who are proving themselves an unexpectedly powerful political force, also are demanding quick removal of the American forces.

Between those who want the U.S. forces to leave and those who want them to stay are others who suspect that a U.S. doublecross is in the making. They fear that Thailand, after serving for years as the United States' most faithful southeast Asian ally, is about to be cut loose by the United States in the interests of its own global strategy.

In preparation for possible new external threats Thanom has strengthened Thailand's borders and has asked the United States for new assurances of continued military aid.

He also has new worries at home.

Thailand along with Burma used to be a primary exporter of rice to other nations of southeast Asia.

Burma no longer exports and Thailand is in the grip of a three-year drought. She has been forced to turn down orders from Cambodia, the Philippines and others for whom she has been a traditional supplier.

The drought has had an accompanying effect on the nation's farmers. Many have had to borrow, putting up their small land holdings as collateral. The result has been that many poor farmers have now become impoverished tenants.

Communist-led insurgency in the northeast and along the border with Cambodia and Malya continues to be a problem. The insurgents are not believed to number more than about 6,000 but they are insistent. China has toned down its broadcast support for the insurgents but has been vague about cutting off material support.

Whether they are led from China or from North Vietnam is a matter of debate.

These problems, plus the activities of Thailand's 100,000 students, plus new union activity among the nation's workers contribute to the uncertainty of the leaders in Bangkok.

Alioto urges controls over grain exports

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco Mayor Joseph N. Alioto Monday predicted food shortages and inflation would result from the unrestrained selling of American grain crops overseas.

The Democratic mayor urged Senator John Tunney, D-Calif., to relay to Congress, "the urgent need to provide some protection for the American consumer in the form of export licensing controls or some other device for equitably allocating available grain supplies.

Tunney held a day-long hearing for the Sub-committee on Consumer Affairs, the third such hearing to be held in California.

Alioto, former head of the California Rice Growers Association said that aggressive foreign buyers are "plundering" American grain crops with the active encouragement of the federal government.

This will result in "a new wave of rising prices, increased food shortages, and fierce inflation in the coming months," Alioto predicted.

Foreign buyers have bought up almost 3 billion bushels of wheat, corn and soy beans, Alioto said, and "the amount left for American consumers has plunged to a dangerous new low."

The San Francisco mayor, noted that some export controls and licensing would be in the best interest of the American farmer. "The farmer has a great deal at stake with rising inflation," he said.

"It strongly impacts on him through spiraling wage costs which he is often forced to absorb."

Alioto said export controls would help restrain domestic prices, but the return to farmers would be "healthy, but no runaway."

Says Russ scientist

Friendship with Reds 'dangerous'

MOSCOW (UPI) —Physicist Andrei D. Sakharov, under pressure from Soviet authorities to halt his dissident activities, called foreign newsmen to his home today and warned that Western friendship with the Soviet Union could be "dangerous."

Sakharov, one of the fathers of the Soviet hydrogen bomb and leader of the small dissident movement here, was called in last Thursday by a Soviet prosecutor and warned that his activities had assumed an "anti-Soviet character."

His unusual news conference at his home clearly was intended as Sakharov's response to the warning.

Friends of the balding, 52-year-old scientist have expressed concern recently that authorities may be preparing to place him in prison or an insane asylum.

In a relaxed, 90-minute conversation with the newsmen, Sakharov spoke out against what he termed the anti-democratic nature of the Soviet system and talked of pressure brought against his family because of his activities.

At one point in the conversation, Sakharov said Western reapproachment with the Soviet Union could be dangerous if the West acquiesces in the lack of democratization in the Soviet Union.

"It wouldn't solve any world problem," he said. "It would mean simply capitulation in front of our real or exaggerated strength, or it would mean an attempt to get from us gas and oil, neglecting all other aspects of the problem."

This was an indirect reference to American, Japanese and other foreign business interest in striking deals with the Soviets for development of oil and gas resources here.

Sakharo is founder of the unofficial Committee for Human Rights, a small group of intellectuals who have sought to defend the rights of dissidents put on trial or sent to asylums.

Barrier urged to foil Bay Area suicides

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A University of California researcher who has conducted an extensive study of Golden Gate Bridge suicides says there is a compelling need for a barrier to prevent people from jumping.

Dr. Richard H. Selden, of the university's School of Public Health, said it is a "myth" to believe that people prevented from jumping off the bridge will find another way to commit suicide.

"That simply isn't so," he said. "Of the officially confirmed number of suicide attempters who have been prevented from leaping from the bridge, less than four per cent have gone on to commit suicide."

A controversial "suicide barrier" has been proposed to stop the practice which has taken at least 482 known lives since the bridge was completed in 1937. The figure is more than for any other structure in the world.

Seiden pointed to the success of several other barriers built to cut down on suicides.

"The Empire State Building in New York City was the location of an outbreak of suicides in which 16 persons killed themselves by jumping from the tower during the period 1931-1947," he said.

An observation tower fence was constructed that "prevented further suicides from the tower."

Seiden feels the most relevant example of a successful barrier is the Arroyo Seco Bridght in Pasadena, which spans a ravine near the Rose Bowl. Eighty people jumped to their deaths from the Arroyo Seco Bridge during 1933-1936.

The barrier was constructed after "considerable public and journalistic criticism," Seiden said. "In the ensuing years there has been only one suicide from that location."

Seiden feels the Golden Gate has become a suicide landmark "with a fatal mystique that draws the suicide-prone."

The nature of suicidal fantasies seem highly specific and tied to a particular method," he said.

Seiden considers the "final source" and "true authorities" on bridge suicides to be the handful of persons who have jumped and lived to tell about it.

Dr. David Rosen, a psychiatrist, interviewed the survivors and all recommended the construction of a suicide barrier.

"If there had been a barrier on the bridge, I would have gone home and forgotten about it," said one.

The four survivors were indeed lucky. The jump into the icy water 220 feet below is almost always fatal.

Seiden and Kathy Tomlinson, who helped in the study, both feel the suicide figure is much greater than the official count.

U.S. panel lifts ban on inmate interviews

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A three-judge federal panel has ordered a reversal of a 1971 ban on inmate interviews and ruled that California prisoners have the constitutional right to ask for and obtain interviews by newsmen.

The panel ordered the state Department of Corrections to propose a new regulation to replace the present one that bans interviews by reporters. The decision did say, however, that if prison officials felt an interview with a certain inmate posed "a clear and present danger to prison security, it may be denied."

The court also said reporters do not have the right to get an interview with a specific inmate.

The court cited a U.S. Supreme Court ruling which said "the press enjoys no greater right to access to news sources than the average citizen."

The ban on interviews became effective Aug. 23, 1971, two days after an alleged escape attempt at San Quentin prison left two inmates, including George Jackson, and three prison guards dead.

In their ruling, the judges said inmates lose some of their rights when imprisoned, but "face to face interviews with media representatives are a vital element in prisoners' rights under the First Amendment."

The decision was made by U.S. District Judges Spencer Williams and William East and U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Oliver D. Hamlin, Jr.

Four bills aimed at air polluters okayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly has passed a package of four bills imposing tougher penalties on polluters in the South Coast Air Basin.

One bill by Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, would consolidate the six local air pollution districts in the Los Angeles area into a new regional commission with sweeping powers to crack down on smog makers. The bill was sent to the Senate on a 60-0 vote.

The other three measures cleared the Assembly by similar margins Monday.

Another Moretti bill would increase fines which can be levied against industries fouling the air from the current $500 maximum per day to a $10,000 maximum for repeated violators.

Two bills by Assemblyman Walter Ingalls, D-Riverside, would make public the names of the ten worst polluters in smog-ridden districts and require inspection of antismog devices on 1966-70 motor vehicles.

Might have been sticky situation

UNITY, Wis. (UPI) — A rubber container fell off a truck, burst and spilled 37,000 pounds of liquid glue on Wisconsin Route 13 near Unity Thursday.

The road was closed for several hours while workers cleaned up the glue before it reached the Eau Pleine River nearby.

Cost of Vietnam War only tip of iceberg

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although the Indochina War is sputtering to a halt after eight years and $110 billion, the hidden and greater part of the full costs of the war have only just begun.

Those who anticipate war for social welfare uses should note the debt interest and veterans benefits stemming from the Civil War came to more than four times the actual cost of the fighting.

In fact, the books on the Civil War are not closed yet. Although the last veteran, a 117-year-old Confederate, died in 1959, 545 widows and children of both Confederate and Union soldiers are still receiving pensions from the Veterans Administration.

The cost of those pensions is now a paltry sum compared to that for veterans of recent wars. These older pensions amounted to $618,000 last year, according to the VA.

The last veteran of the Vietnam War, however, will undoubtedly still be alive in the 2050s and the last dependent might survive into the 22nd Century if, as in the past, some aged veterans take teenage brides.

The books on the American Revolution were not closed until the last dependent, Phoebe M. Palmeter of Brookfield, N.Y., died at the age of 90 in 1911 — 130 years after Lord Cornwallis surrendered his Redcoats to George Washington at Yorktown, Va. The total cost of that war came to $235 million of which 60 per cent was interest on the debt and pensions for veterans.

Of the 14.4 billion total cost of the Civil War (not including sums spent on those ubiquitous monuments) 78 per cent was debt interest and veterans benefits.

The veterans really got organized after the Spanish-American War. The total cost was $5.9 billion of which only 5 per cent was for the fighting and 1.4 per cent for debt interest, since that 13-week war came cheap and was quickly paid off. But veterans' benefits took up the remainder, or almost 20 times more than the military costs of the war.

Some 3,000 veterans and 31,000 widows and children of Spanish-American War veterans still draw VA checks at a cost of 35.8 million last year.

The books on the more recent wars are still wide open, of course. To date World War II veterans benefits and debt interest have cost about $160 billion — less so far than the $315 billion spent to fight the war but considerably more than the $110 billion military cost of the Vietnam War.

Altogether the VA mails pension and compensation checks each month to 5 million persons, or one in every 40 Americans.

While the Indochina War fades into American history, the Veterans Administration thrives with $12.2 billion budgeted for the fiscal year that began July 1 — half for pension payments, one-quarter for medical care and the remaining quarter for college payments and other educational costs of veterans.

While the Indochina WQAR FADES INTO American history, the Veterans Administration thives with 12.2 billion budgeted for the fiscal year that began July 1 —half for pension payments, one-quarter sor medical care and the remaining quarter for college payments and other educational costs of veterans.

Retirement home names new director

CLAREMONT — Norman R. Bottom has been elected to the board of directors at Pilgrim Place.

Bottom is a retired U.S. Army lieutenant colonel whose service has ranged from intelligence and language assignments in Germany, Japan, and Korea to that of a senior instructor in the joint ROTC program at the Claremont Colleges in military and national security and intelligence.

Bottom and his wife have been living in Claremont since his retirement. They have a son, Norman Jr. of Huntington Beach, and a daughter, Mrs. Sidney Pelston of Pacific Palisades.

Jury system ruled illegal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A Municipal Court judge ruled Tuesday that the method of selecting juries in his jurisdiction is unconstitutional because Mexican-Americans are systematically excluded.

The decision by Judge Irwin J. Nebron affected only the five criminal cases which were consolidated for the challenge to the jury selection system in the central city area.

"No matter how you slice it, there's just not the slightest question in this judge's mind (that) the way the system works, the end result is that Mexican-Americans are being systematically excluded, perhaps unintentionally."

But in another facet of the case, the judge said there was no evidence that blacks were similarly excluded from the panels from which juries are picked.

The ruling—if upheld on appeal—meant that the five defendants cannot be tried by Municipal Court juries in the central district as presently constituted.

Nebron said he did not know why Mexican-Americans were excluded under the present system.

Pomona council appoints stand-in for bandmaster

POMONA — A muscian from Tujunga, who started playing with the Pomona Concert Band 18 years ago at the age of 13, will serve as acting band conductor Oct. 1 to next June 30.

The City Council appointed James D. Lytthans, 31, as a temporary replacement for G. Stanton Selby.

Selby, conductor since the band was organized in 1948, will be on a sabbatical leave from his teaching post at Mt. San Antonio College to research Portuguese folk music in Portugal and southern Spain.

The appointment will pay Lytthans $100 a month. The regular salary during the summer concert season is $750 a month.

Lytthans, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Lytthans, 199 E. La Verne Ave., is first clarinetist with the Claremont Symphony Orchestra.

He is a graduate of Ganesha High School, MSAC and in 1965 received a bachelor of music education degree with honors from USC.

Lytthans also holds a master's degree and this summer is working at the Idyllwild School of Music and Arts. He also is a Ph.D. candidate at USC.

He played with the Pomona band from 1955 on a regular basis until his graduation from USC. He was solo clarinetist with the group for a number of years and several times was guest conductor.

Lytthans for a number of years was director of instrumental music at Mount Gleason Junior High School in Sunland.

Woman ruled guilty in plot to kill mate

POMONA — A Superior Court jury, deliberating less than a day, found Mrs. Ann Marie Eaton, 37, of Valinda guilty of murder for hire Tuesday afternoon.

Judge Glenn M. Pfau set probation hearing and sentencing for Mrs. Eaton for 9 a.m. Sept. 14.

Mrs. Eaton was accused by Deputy Dist. Atty. John Anderson of attempting to hire a professional killer for $1,500 last January to kill her husband so that she could collect the insurance money on his life.

The "killer" who contacted her turned out to be an undercover deputy sheriff who taped her offer, and then arranged for her arrest.

Mrs. Eaton, in her defense contended that the entire story was a hoax. She said she had made it all up to frighten away another woman who was interested in her husband.

Soliciting commission of murder carries a maximum of five years in the state prison and a $5,000 fine.

Planners get request for house moves

POMONA — Requests to move two houses into Pomona will be considered by the Pomona Planning Commission when it meets tonight at 8 in the City Council chambers.

Edward Reese, the applicant, proposes to move single-family structures onto adjoining lots at 1368 and 1372 S. Main St.

In another item, planners will consider a request by James H. Jackson to operate an upholstery business at 1712 Manor Circle.

Prior to the meeting, commissioners will be taken on a field trip around the city.

Foothill players to stage 'Oliver!' for four nights

POMONA — Tonight at 8, a small boy led astray will return to decency, his debaucher will suffer justice, and the world will sing in joy at the happy outcome of high drama when the county-sponsored Foothill Productions' presentation of the musical play "Oliver!" opens here for a four-day run.

Playing through Saturday night, the show will be presented in the Pomona Unified School District Auditorium, 800 S. Garey Ave. The box office fronts on Ninth Street at the south side of the building.

Directing the Lionel Bart adaptation of the Charles Dickens classic is Ross Clark, who played in the original Broadway production as well as in the touring company version. Clark held the role of youthful criminal Artful Dodger. He is assisted in the production staff by Fred Graff, directing the orchestra, Rey O'Day, choreographer, and Carlice Moultrie, vocal director.

Cast members for the production are drawn principally from San Dimas and La Verne. Leading characters from the San Dimas area include Gary Hand as villain Fagin, Gabrielle Rampick, Artful Dodger, Kim Parks as hero Oliver, and Millicewy Smith as sweet heroine Nancy.

Supporting cast members are La Verne residents Julie Mishles as Mrs. Bedwin, Ellen Brister as Mrs. Sowerbert, Jan Marie Love as Bet, and Fagin's gang members Lori Swank and Mathew Snyder.

Set in London slums in the 1850s, the tale follows Oliver's progress from a boys' workhouse through his accidental membership in Fagin's gang, arrest, and eventual adoption by a kindly old gentiman. Each experience is punctuated by song.

Ticket prices are $2 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under. This is the second season for Foothill Productions, a joint project by the cities of Pomona, La Verne, and San Dimas under the sponsorship of the Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation Department.

Child's match causes $7,000 house damage

POMONA — A 3-year-old child placed a lighted match on a bed at the home of Mary Moore, 564 Edwin St., Tuesday night and the result was a blaze which gutted the bedroom, causing $7,000 damage.

Most of the fire damage was to the south bedroom of the house but extensive heat and smoke damage was reported throughout the structure. Firemen arrived and put the fire out before it spread to other areas of the house.

The fire alarm was called in by a neighbor at 9:31 and firemen stayed at the scene until 11:40 p.m. with a crew of 15 men.

Psychiatrist's trial under way

POMONA — The trial of David G. Zappella, a former Pomona psychiatrist charged with 17 counts of Medi-Cal frauds here three years ago, got under way today with the selection of a jury.

Attorneys estimated the trial before Superior Court Judge Glenn M. Pfau will last about two weeks.

Zappella, who was executive director of the Tri-City Mental Health Authority here from 1961 to 1968, was accused of the violations in 1970. He now lives in San Diego.

ACTION LINE

To ask help in solving problems with which you have been unsuccessful, write to Action Line, The Progress-Bulletin, P. O. Box 2708, Pomona, Calif. 91766. Sign your full name, address and phone number and include copies (not the original) of receipts or other documentation possible. If your letter is published, only your initials will be used.

Heirs receive settlement after Action Line inquiry

My two grandchildren were left $500 each in a will made by a friend of mine who passed away Feb. 11, 1970.

Each time we contact the attorney who is handling the estate to ask why the children haven't received their money, we always get the answer, "Next week," or the call is not returned.

I am enclosing a letter dated Aug. 13, 1970 in which the attorney states that "after the middle of September, we should be in a position to close out the estate." — H. I., Chino

Although we wrote to your attorney immediately upon receiving your letter to ask why the children hadn't received their money after three years, he didn't deign to reply.

You have informed us, though, that your grandchildren got their $500 each about a month later.

I had a back injury in February 1972 for which surgery was performed in March of the same year. I have not been able to do any work since. I applied for Social Security disability funds and was denied again. I asked for reconsideration and was denied again. Each application was answered in three or four months.

I have now had an application in for an appeal hearing since Feb. 9, 1973, and cannot find out when my hearing will be held, even after long distance calls to the hearing office in San Bernardino.

My question is, how long can they continue to deny me a hearing? It seems five months is long enough to gather information needed.

This has been an awful strain on my nerves. I have already had three ulcer surgeries. — H. H., Pomona.

The administration law judge in charge of Social Security's bureau of hearings and appeals in San Bernardino informs us that a hearing of your case will be scheduled shortly. To expedite matters, he will hear the case himself.

He wrote that part of your previous hearing file had been retired and you had been so informed. However, in his opinion, there is now sufficient information available to schedule another hearing.

Two months ago I ordered two pocket camera outfits and enclosed a check for $40.90. It was done through a sales promotion offer I received from the place where I send my film for developing.

Some time later I received and signed for one camera. I wonder why I received only one but thought perhaps it was shipped separately so waited a week or so before writing about it to the firm. I have received no reply.

To make matters worse, the camera I received and presented to my daughter on her 21st birthday did not work. I had to send it to Rivera to be taken care of under the warranty and still have not heard about it.

I am out $40.90 so far with no camera! — D. H., Claremont.

We focused on your problem by contacting the firm which does your developing in Santa Ana.

Our reply came from Pennsylvania. We were told that the import records in the firm's computer were incorrect with the result that you received one camera instead of two. You have since been mailed the second one.

You confirmed receipt of the second camera. We hope by now the first has been repaired and you and your daughter are having a snappy summer.

Four area families enter twins in county fair event

POMONA—Any contest judge with a tendency to double vision will be in deep trouble Sept. 16 when the Los Angeles County Fair holds its Twins Contest.

To date, four area families have entered their look-alikes and not-so-look-alikes in the Southland competition. The contest is an annual feature of the fair, which opens its 46th season Sept. 14 and continues through Sept. 30.

Tanya and James Agapay, 3, will be first-time entries in the most-alike, fraternal male-female division. They are the children of Terri Agapay, 1437 E. Seventh St., Ontario.

Twins Gail Ruth and Gaye Rebecca, 8, will be vying for top honors in the most-alike identical girls contest. They are the children of Richard and Lois Willimas, 5404 El Morado St., Montclair.

Another pair of first-time entrants are Michael Lance and Michele Dineen, 7, competing in the most-alike fraternal boy and girl division. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Porter, 15050 Monte Vista, Chino.

Another pair of twins competing in the most-alike girls contest are repeat entrants Tami Jo and Traci Anne Wheeler, 8. Their parents, Charles and Joanne Wheeler, 2112 Bloom Lane, La Verne, are entering the girls for the second time.

Completing each day's activities during the fair will be the Grandstand show, featuring—at no extra admission charge—the performers of the Polack Bros. Circus, and the championship cowboys and cowgirls of the Rodeo Cowboys Association Rodeo.

Nursery will hold school demonstration

CHINO — Staff members of the Pomona Community Co-Op Nursery School will conduct a demonstration nursery school at Value Fair, 12516 Central Ave., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Those with preschool children interested in nursery school participation are invited.

Applications for the fall term of the Pomona nursery school will be accepted. It offers a two-day or a three-day program, depending on the ages of the children. It will accept children up to kindergarten age.

International law vehicle for peace

At least two events in recent days have underscored — if any underscoring were needed — how close the world still is to the jungle.

At one extreme was the indiscriminate slaughter of airline passengers at the Athens airport by Arab terrorists.

At the other was the interception of a Lebanese airliner — "on the high seas," as it were — by Israeli jets in hopes of capturing Palestinian guerrilla leaders.

These are extremes, of course, and they are not the worst atrocities spawned by the Arab-Israel conflict, nor will they be the last. Yet between these extremes is a vast gray area of nonexistent or ill-defined or unenforceable international law.

It is in this area that a sovereign nation like France, for example, placing her own perceived security above any other consideration, can conduct a series of atmospheric atom bomb tests despite the strongest protests from the world community.

"Humankind's most ancient, most constant, most universal desire has been for peaceful order with justice among peoples and among nations," says Charles S. Rhyne. "Translating this desire from dream to reality is indeed humankind's greatest need."

Rhyne has done, more than probably any other person, jurist or otherwise, to realize that dream and fill that need.

In 1958, while president of the American Bar Association, he established the World Peace Through Law effort as a special committee of the association.

This evolved into the World Peace Through Law Center, created at an international conference of the world legal profession in Athens in 1963.

There have been four more conferences since then and the Center, of which Rhyne is president, now includes judges and members of the legal profession, as well as nonlawyers, from 155 countries. Included are the high court judges from almost every nation and in some cases the entire memberships of supreme courts.

During the week of August 25-31, thousands of these world law leaders will meet in Abidjan, Ivory Coast, for the Sixth World Conference on World Peace Through Law — the first such summit conference on the law of the world to be held on the African continent.

In the most ambitious program ever to go before a conference, the delegates will examine such areas as: Controlling dangerous drugs; international terrorism — kidnaping, extortion, skyjacking (with a "demonstration trial" involving an actual skyjacking case); refugee rights; environmental protection; United Nations reforms; making the World Court more used and useful; law of the sea.

"International law grows only by voluntary acceptance of treaties, conventions and other forms of transnational law and law agencies," says Ryhne. "There is no world legislature."

Through its unique position and the prestige it has acquired in the past decade, the World Peace Through Law Center continues to work toward building and strengthening the world law system through acceptance and use by nations of more international law.

Don't try Laird's way on tax form

One of the more original end runs around the truth by a member of the beleaguered Nixon administration, to borrow a term from the game favored by that same administration, has to be that of Melvin R. Laird the other day.

Far from pleading lapse of memory as others have done, the former Secretary of Defense, who is now the President's counselor for domestic affairs, forthrightly stated that he had recommended secret bombing operations in Cambodia in 1969 and 1970 in order to hit Viet Cong and North Vietnamese sanctuaries and to save American lives in South Vietnam.

When asked at a news conference about the method by which the raids were kept secret, he confirmed that a "separate channel of reporting was established for these particular attacks." The press was told only of the bomber targeting in South Vietnam, which provided a credible cover story for the secret strikes.

But while admitting that "I did approve the separate reporting procedure on the Cambodian strikes," Laird went on to say that "I did not approve at any time the falsification of any Air Force, Navy or Defense Department records."

In other words, the truth about the Cambodian raids existed all the time and was available to those in the government with a "need to know." Though the press, and the public, were fed a lot of baloney, the secret records were never falsified.

Imagine a court hearing the same kind of defense from, say, a man charged with tax evasion.

"Yes, it's true that I did use a 'separate reporting procedure' in reporting only part of my income to the Internal Revenue Service. But I did not at any time falsify a second set of records I kept for my own use."

It would be a strange jury that would buy that argument. It would be a strange public that would buy the same kind of reasoning from one of its alleged servants.

Artful dodgers' traits revealed

WASHINGTON — Last summer, when the Watergate culprits plotted their cover-up, their first thoughts were to destroy all incriminating documents. They shredded some documents and burned some more. One White House disposal crew even unblushingly planned to "deep six" a file in the malodorous waters of the Potomac.

Yet, one batch of documents escaped: the records of the National Gallery of Art which list the big shots who borrow copies of famous paintings to decorate their offices. Clues to the hidden personalities of the artful dodgers of Watergate are unexpectedly revealed by their choices.

Boyish presidential counsel John Dean, whose enigmatic wife Maureen sat behind him all those long days in the Senate hearings, has the same taste for lovely women on his office walls.

Mysterious Maureen's expression is reflected in "La Mousme," a dark-complexioned young woman captured by Van Gogh, which hung in Dean's old office at the Justice Department.

Dean could also muse over the pensive "Young Girl Reading" by Fragonard—ironically, a painter who fell from grace during the French Revolution because he had shown fawning loyalty to the corrupt French Kings.

Egil "Bud" Krogh, the White House's tough law and order adviser, as chief of the "plumbers," ran the antilaw and order break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office. But he exhibited a surprisingly delicate taste in art.

When he was transferred to the Transportation Department, his choice was the mystic "Wildflowers" of Redon, one of the most peculiar stylists of the past century. A Krogh aide told our reporter Bob Owens that the plumbers' chief eyed it several times each day.

In the White House quarters of Tom Charles Huston, the controversial young lawyer who drafted dark, ugly plans for clandestine burglaries and wiretaps on his fellow Americans, there were by contrast two brilliant, open scenes of outdoor beauty, one of the Lackawanna Valley, the other of Venice.

Kleindienst's 'High Road'

Another outdoor scene, the "View of a High Road" — perhaps the same "high road" he tried to take before the Senate Watergate Committee—graced the Justice Department office of former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst.

A White House talent seeker and hatchet man, Fred Malek, borrowed a print called "End of the Hunt." Whether "End of the Hunt" marks the end of Malek's talent hunt, or the end of Waterbugger Howard Hunt's tenure as a White House aide may be cause to ponder.

Selections from the National Gallery portfolio also give curious insights into bigwigs beside the Watergate bunch.

Discharged Interior Secretary Wally Hickel's office prophetically borrowed Rembrandt's "The Philosopher," while the House Immigration Subcommittee decorated its office with a dreamy picture of Faraway Italy. Usually upbeat Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, surprisingly picked ..Picasso's somber "The Tragedy."

By coincidence, the Senate's handsome Peter Dominick, R-Colo., and House Administration Chairman Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who has an irrepressible eye for the ladies, both exhibit the same picture — "The Lovers," by Picasso.

SAFE PASSAGE — Back when he was engineering head for the Army in the Panama Canal Zone, Col. Robert Clark got $3,000 worth of unauthorized improvements on his quarters at taxpayers' expense, including glass sliding doors in his living room.

Despite his taste for federally-funded extravagance, he was promoted to lieutenant governor of the Canal Zone. But his wasteful ways were too much for even the U.S.-run Canal authorities, and according to a letter from the Army, he was admonished. Clark retired, but we recently found him right back in the Zone holding down a plush job in the Canal Administration.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Bragging becoming lost art in Texas

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In the course of a recent vacation trip, I paid a visit to my old home town to see my 89-yearold father, who likes to boast that he is "the world's most humble Texan." I found him sorely agitated.

Inquiry revealed the source of his concern was the younger generation, which he affirmed was going to the bow-wows.

"How so?" said I. "In what way have the youth of this great state failed to measure up to their glorious heritage? My father replied that about half of the young Texans of today —the figure he gave was 48.6 per cent -are almost totally devoid of braggadocio.

"Bragging is fast becoming a lost art in Texas," he said sadly.

"The ancient tradition of Texas Hyperbole, which has been handed down from father to son, is dying out. Nowadays when an old master braggart hangs up his superlatives and goes into retirement, there's nobody to carry on. These modern kids have no feel for jingoism.

"You may find this hard to believe but out on the range the other day I heard no less than six discouraging words, all from the mouths of teenagers."

Being a natural-born Texan myself, and one who came to manhood during the golden age of vainglory, I did find that hard to believe.

But during a subsequent conversation with one of my teen-age nephews, I realized my father was telling it like it is.

While regaling this lad with some of my boyhood adventures, I chanced to mention that my old home town once had more windmills within its city limits than any other town of its size west of Fort Worth..

"I don't see where that's anything to brag about," the boy remarked.

Those were his exact words and they precipitated a family crisis. Finally his mother asked me to have a talk with the boy and see if I could straighten him out.

"Seymour," I said, "there are two kinds of bigness. Some is obvious, some obscure. If you are only going to brag about the obvious bigness, you might as well live in New Hampshire or some place like that.

"The mark of a true braggart is his ability to boast about something that the average blowhard overlooks. Our family has had a braggart for six generations. I hope you won't let us down."

A couple of days after I left Texas I noticed in the paper that the discovery of two additional bodies near Houston had broken the mass murder record previously held by California.

For Seymour, that may be the acid test.

More on Puddingstone

In the Aug. 11 edition of Scan magazine you had an article about "The Lake With the Funny Name" — an article well done and with good pictures—however the "funny name" needs further explanation.

The Pomona doctor who claimed that the rock formation looked like a raisin pudding, hence the name Puddingstone may have known his rocks as well as gallstones for the definition of the conglomerate of this type is: "a kind of conglomerate rock in which pebbles are embedded like plums in a pudding." Geogolists know it as pudding stone.

I have found many fossils at Puddingstone including sharks teeth and fish. It is interesting that we have these sedimentary rock formations only just a little west of the remains of ancient volcanic activity and a large amount of igneous rocks that can be found ajacent to the airport.

I can well remember several "frog leg feasts" at the home of Berry Epperson in La Verne after we had caught the frogs along the little creek now at the bottom of Puddingstone Lake. —Dee Dellenbach, Pomona.

Protests Dr. Brothers story

I am writing this in protest to the article about Dr. Joyce Brothers in the Aug. 12 Progress-Bulletin. I have talked to several people, both young and old, and we are all of the opinion that while she may be a brilliant scholar she has a warped mind.

I am fed up with the ideas that everything from the urge to shoplift to the way men wear their ties has a sex implication. I just can't understand why the news media believes decent people are interested in such trash. I have read my last article by or about Dr. Brothers and my TV set will not be turned on anytime she is on the schedule. I hope more will do likewise. —D.M., La Verne. INSIDE REPORT

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — A confidential telephone call from t White House aide Melviin R. Laird to a Republican co gressional leader, warning him not to go all-out in defense Vice President Spiro Agnew is new and harsh evidence t party professionals of the depth of the crisis that threaten Ted Agnew.

In his Aug. 7 telephone call to Rep. John B. Anderson Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Conference, Lair carefully specified that he was talking not as a White Hous aide.

His message: don't get on a limb in the Agnew affair, par ticularly with an all-out defense of the Vice President. Stay awa from the Agnew affair as far as possible.

Agnew is under intense federal investigation on charges o possible criminal violations of various federal statutes involvin bribery, extortion, tax fraud and conspiracy.

Republicans who know about the Laird call to Anderson (de scribed as "astonished" by the warning) assume that Lair and possible other party grandees have contacted other senior Republicans with similar warnings.

Moreover, the Laird telephone call to Anderson fits a patter that has infuriated the Agnew camp. For example:

Haig gets briefing

1. Before Agnew himself received formal notice from the Justice Department that he was under investigation, Atty Gen. Elliot Richardson reported (in late July) to White House staff chief Alexander M. Haig, Jr., with a briefing on all a pects of the case. On Aug. 2, Agnew's attorneys received their letter from the prosecutors.

2. A prominent television commentator was privately cau tioned by an official of the Justice Department 10 days ago i words similar to those used by Laird to Anderson: don't g overboard for Agnew; you may wind up with egg on your face

3. The White House has gone to embarrassing length not t put the President on record as to his Vice President's inno cence. White House spokesman Gerald Warren will only say that Mr. Nixon's confidence in Agnew has not changed.

4. The New York Times front-page dispatch of Aug. 15, ou lining charges against Agnew in vivid detail, is believed by furious Agnew allies to have emanated from high levels of the Justice Department (who flatly deny it), not from Maryland sources also implicated in the charges against Agnew.

It is not surprising that allies of Agnew, whose talents have sometimes been grossly used by the President to advance Mr Nixon's interests, would be filled with dark suspicion over these incidents. They regard them as proof of nefarious underground administration warfare against Agnew, partly to ease the President's immense Watergate burdens.

Thus, in this conspiratorial view — so understandable on the part of Agnew intimates—Mr. Nixon or Republicans close to him are greasing the skids for the hapless Vice President. Under the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, they are quietly preparing to nominate a successor—most likely John B. Connally.

Connally Might Get Call

It was Connally who saved Mr. Nixon from disaster in the inflationary crisis of August 1971. Perhaps Connally, the former Democratic governor of Texas who turned Republican at a moment of maximum help to the Watergate-beleaguered President last spring, can help again.

To Agnewites, that fits the known fact that Connally recently cancelled his plans for a long trip abroad and the lesser-known fact that some Connally friends predict he will be back in the administration in October.

But in fact the Laird warnings may spring from something far less conspiratorial. They may be a flashing signal of caution based not on any desire to do in Agnew but on a rational and informed judgment that Agnew is a goner.

Likewise, Richardson's July briefing of Haig, before Agnew himself had formal notification, may also be explainable as a rational act based on the President's prior right to know. "Is that normal?" a Justice Department official repeated in answer to our question. "Hell, nothing's normal in this case. We're playing it by ear."

But such quiet and rational explanation is understandably difficult for Agnewites. The mood in the Agnew camp has grown isolated and embittered. Now, with word being secretly passed to "keep clear" of the Agnew affair, that mood will intensify, with dangerous implications for the Republican future no matter how the investigation finally ends.

Chino firms up date for vote on Civic Center tax

By MATE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — The City Council has reaffirmed Oct. 23 as the target date for a special election and established that the city will ask residents to approve a 25 cents tax increase for the new Civic Center.

The council took action Tuesday night in three resolutions recommended for adoption by City Manager Bob Fast.

Reading from his written report, Fast said "preliminary studies reveal that revenue for the Civic Center must come from several sources, since the overall magnitude of the project exceeds that which can reasonably be expected to be approved as a tax rate increase. These other sources should include revenue sharing and redevelopment."

The manager estimated the cost of the Civic Center ranging from a starting point of $1 million to an overall $3 million for long range needs.

The increase of 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation would provide about $100,000 in annual income. This, combined with funds from revenue sharing and redevelopment, should provide the necessary funds, said Fast, for a "reasonably adequate flexible base to plan the comprehensive and complete Civic Center program."

He explained the three resolutions to councilmen.

"The first resolution calls for the election on Oct. 23 and sets the measure, including the requested tax rate increase, for the election. The second resolution petitions the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors to permit the county registrar of voters to render certain services. The third resolution authorizes specified members of the council to file a written argument for the city measure," he read.

The council unanimously passed the three resolutions. Mayor Bob McLeod ask for and received a motion that the entire council would prepare the written argument for the measure.

In another matter on the Civic Center, the council accepted the final presentation of the master plan given by Norm Cates of VTN Architects, San Bernardino.

Fast prefaced Cates' report with the statement that Cates would "bring together and summarize those actions taken since the last presentation."

He also noted that since the board of supervisors had not yet accepted the final master plan, the council's approval should be contingent upon the supervisors' approval of the plan.

A master plan, began Cates, "is a dynamic planning tool, not a means to an end, but merely an indictor of future planning. The plan attempts to develop assurances that whatever future planing you do has been included in the master plan."

The 10-year master plan calls for the closing of 7th Street between D Street and Chino Avenue; and of D between 7th and Central Avenue. The closing of these two street sections would be made "at such time that the city makes its move to construct its facilities," said Cates.

The county library completed in June represents the first step of the complex. The second step "is anticipated to include the county facilities and site development," Cates commented.

"The third step would include the city hall, council chambers, police department, parking and site development," he continued. "Expansion of the library would come in six to seven years . . . Additional county and city space being added would be the final stage."

All phases would look at both the process of building and the occupation of facilities as space is needed, the architect noted.

Councilman Ralph Preciado voiced concern over the possible problem of the main artery of Central Avenue and separating the old and new civic center areas. He mentioned the possibility of extensive pedestrian traffic complicating the vehicular flow and asked Cates what allowances could be made for such.

"There is no need for excessive pedestrian traffic between the two units," replied Cates. He suggested that the old civic center on the east side of Central and D could be used for fire and recreation departments.

"The fire department is a fairly contained area, usually separated from other city activities. The recreation department also is not involved in the day-to-day activities of other city offices.

"The civic center will be the future emphasis for growth of business and the commercial area downtown," he concluded.

Upland council gives nod to city hall plan

UPLAND — In a departure from previous discussions on the matter, the City Council this week quickly and quietly approved the preliminary blueprints for a new city hall building.

The rare unanimous vote also authorized the architectural firm of Edward Durrell Stone of Los Angeles to proceed with the final plans for the single-story building which will feature a new council chamber and offices for 10 city departments and the city clerk.

In a brief presentation architect John Adams described the design with its central, sunken council chamber as the "best of two worlds."

The council chamber, he said, will provide seating for 112 persons and the use of draperies instead of walls will provide great flexibility in its use.

Councilman Harold Bailin, an outspoken foe of the entire project and the way it is being funded, cast his affirmative vote with no comment. He later quipped that his vote only indicated he was "satisfied with the design."

The new Civic Center has been under study for a number of years, but the move to build it got under way only after the city received some $500,000 in federal revenue sharing funds last year.

Bailin has consistently questioned the need for the facility and has lambasted the council and City Manager Elwin Alder over the way public funds are being appropriated to finance the over $700,000 cost of the building, which he believes is "unjustifiable."

Upland loses attempt to block plant

UPLAND — A San Bernardino County Superior Court has ruled against the city in its attempt to force resubmission of a conditional use permit for the construction of a hot asphalt plant in northwest Upland.

The ruling, announced by City Atty. Donald Maroney this week, requires the city to honor the conditional use permit currently held by new owners of the property in question and to issue them a building permit for the new plant to be located near Benson Avenue and 16th Street.

The suit, brought by Flintkote Corp., had sought to test the legality of a city ordinance which does not allow the transfer of conditional use permits from property owner to property owner.

Flintkote had purchased Associated Rock Co., which had held a permit for a new plant since 1967.

The ruling, Maroney said, means the permits are transferable and run with the land rather than with the person holding it. He planned no appeal of the decision at present.

Airport impact study is translated into Spanish

ONTARIO — A language barrier has been removed from an environmental impact report prepared for the Ontario International Airport.

An executive summary of the report, needed for construction of a second main runway, has been translated into the Spanish language.

"This is just an effort to see that citizens have as much information about this as possible," said A. J. Dubiel, the airport's public relations officer.

"We thought since there are Spanish speaking people in the area who may have trouble reading the English version, it would be easier for them to read a report written in Spanish."

A member of the Los Angeles public relations office made the translation. Several hundred copies have been printed, which are being distributed to South Ontario residents and to libraries in Ontario, Montclair, Chino, Upland and Fontana.

The 20-page executive summary contains all the essential elements of the full six-volume, 600 page environmental study.

Copies of the full study, released last month by the Los Angeles Department of Airports, have been distributed to government agencies, libraries and to citizens groups.

No public hearing on the report has been set. This will be determined by the Los Angeles Airport Commission, said Dubiel.

Chaffey High to enroll students on Sept. 5, 6

ONTARIO — Student registration for the fall semester at Chaffey High School will be held in the campus cafeteria Sept. 5-6.

Principal Fred C. Adams said that all registration materials have been mailed to students who preregistered last year. He said the packet contains everything that is necessary for the self-registration program.

Students who did not receive a registration packet must go to the North Hall Administration Center, any day Monday through Friday from 7:30-4:30 p.m., where counselors will be available for assistance.

Registration will be from 12:30-3 p.m. on Spet. 5, and 7:30p3 p.m. the following day.

The opening day of school is Sept. 11.

Savings and loan company marks Montclair opening

MONTCLAIR — American Savings and Loan Association is now celebrating the grand opening of its new branch at the corner of Moreno Street and Central Avenue.

The celebration will continue for the next month, said Scott Greenwalt, assistant vice president-manager, with refreshments and gifts for the public.

Located at 9133 Central Ave., the new American Savings building is a two-story pavilion-like structure comprising over 9,000 square feet with exterior finishes of marblecrete, travertine and bronze glass.

The building's architects, Maxwell Starkman and Associates, describe the structure as a "contemporary rendition of classic simplicity."

Montclair Mayor Harold Hayes called the building a compliment to the environment of the city in a proclamation presented at a special reception held last week for federal, state and local officials.

More than 700 guests attended the reception led by S. Mark Taper, president of the $4.2 billion association.

The reception included a tour of the new vault which includes over 5,000 safety deposit boxes which will be offered as one of the association's free services to customers with accounts of $1,000 or over.

College is adding program for hospital nurses' aides

ALTA LOMA — To help fill the need for hospital workers in San Bernardino County, Chaffey College is launching a new nursing assistant course this fall.

The 13-unit, two-quarter course, "Principles of Basic Nursing," will train up to 30 students per year in skills required for patient care in general and convalescent hospitals.

Classes, taught by the college nursing staff, will be held on campus with practical exercises conducted at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Successful students in the course will receive certificates in the specialty and, according to Mary E. Boul, allied health coordinator, will be fully prepared for state licensing examinations.

Miss Boul noted that over 400 nursing assistants, both men and women, will be needed in San Bernardino County hospitals each year.

The new program will be offered for both full-and part-time students. Interested persons may obtain additional information on the course by calling the college at 987-1737.

County buys site to ease office jam

SAN BERNARDINO — County supervisors have voted to purchase the vacant Aerospace buildings at Tippecanoe Avenue and Mill Street here to reduce crowded conditions in county offices.

The county will acquire the 78-acre, three-building complex for $4 million. The purchase will involve federal revenue sharing funds, rather than property tax revenue, officials said.

Robert Covington, county administrative officer, recommended the new facilities be used initially to house the county's new environmental improvement agency, the registrar of voters, superintendent of schools and data processing.

These operations receive little if any public traffic, and all the more frequently visited departments will remain in the downtown area, he added.

Kaiser planning price increases

FONTANA — Kaiser Steel Corp. has announced that it has filed prenotification for price increases on sheet, strip and certain tubular products with the Cost of Living Council.

West End briefs

Federal gas tax distribution hit

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) —Supervisor Daniel D. Mikesell received approval from the Board of Supervisors of his request for the drafting of a resolution, strongly worded, asking that the federal government get out of the busness of collecting gas tax monies and then distributing it to the various states as it sees fit.

"Over 11 per cent of all gas tax monies are derived from the State of California," Mikesell stated, "'and only 6.6 per cent of that money comes back here for the improvement of our roads systems.

"This unequal transmission of funds must stop. We can do better with our own money in this state, and the government should let other areas take care of their own transportation problems and systems through collection and handling of their own funds," the supervisor stated.

The resolution, when drafted, will be sent to federal legislators, state legislators, the Sierra Club, the California Automobile Club and other interested agencies.

Garden lecture at Ontario library

ONTARIO — George P. Fee of the Armstrong Nursery will lecture on planning, improving and redesigning lawns and gardens at the Ontario Library Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Fee's presentation is the first in a four-week series sponsored by the library concerning garden and lawn care. Other topics that will be featured in the series are color schemes for the garden and yard; soil preparation; and rose care and cultivation.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 984-2785.

Stroke aid group will conduct sale

POMONA — The Organization for After-Stroke Resocialization will hold a rummage sale Sept. 7 and 8, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 215 Pomona Mall West.

The volunteer organization, which serves the East San Gabriel and Pomona valleys, assists stroke victims and their families.

Funds raised from the rummage sale will provide activities for stroke members, officials said. Persons wanting to donate clothing, toys, jewelry, household goods, books or furniture may phone 624-2163 or 622-6872 for pickup.

Supervisors approve new rates for hospital

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) — Recommended rate schedule for patients at the county General Hospital has been approved by the Board of Supervisors after hospital administrator Clifford M. Tahyer stated the rates became effective Aug. 1, reflecting anticipated costs.

"The recommended schedule," Thayer said, "represents the continuing effort to relate charges to costs as nearly as possible and, at the same time, provide for itemized patient charges for the various ancillary services.

"The schedule reflects the strong influence of the patient occupancy level on the various hospital units. Rate increases for daily service charges are recommended for five patient care units, a decrease in daily service charges is recommended on two units, and no change is recommended for three patient care units.

Following are the charges as presented by Thayer: Increases: pediatrics, $88 to $90; surgical, $79 to $93; premie nursery, $63 to $75; intensive care unit, $192 to $200; and extended care, $60 to $65;

Decreases: in the burn unit, $288 to $206, and in respiratory care, $259 to $242. No rate changes in obstetrics, $90; newborn nursery, $73; and medical, $95.

Montclair awards trophies at recreation review

MONTCLAIR — The Montclair Recreation Department has awarded trophies to the top finishers at each playground in the city's summer program.

The trophies were presented at the annual recreation review at Montclair High School. Winners were selected on the basis of total points for the entire summer's activities.

The winners at each playground were Kelly Nikolaus, Judy Demasi, Gwen Staten, Bobby Donley, Ron Partin, David Lupo and Terry Jones at Kingsley School; Linda Lobo, Shirley Slakeld, Hanna Butler, Tim Zombic, Randy Fremming and Doug Kirby at Lehigh School.

Beatrice Huete, Holly Conway, Lisa Robinson, Mike Van Noorden, Rusty Gray and Chris Conway at Margarita School; Cindy Ortiz, Melody Abrego, Paula Campbell, Mitchell Brown, David Ortiz and Larry Ortiz at Monte Vista School.

Mary Ann O'Beso, Kim Voght, Tracy Perez, Abel Ortiz, Michael Ingels, and Russel Miva at Moreno School; Michelle Flynn, Mercy Barela, Ontencia Barela, Sylvia Barela, Mark Shannon, Johnny Barela and Robert Molderat Vernon School.

The Championship Playground Trophy, which is awarded to the playground compiling the most points, was awarded to Lehigh School playground.

Re-stating the nation

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Nobody is named G. Etzel Pearcy, but if he were, he would be a geography professor at Cal State Los Angeles who has suggested a realignment and renaming of the United States of America. (Or is it United?)

Etzel (no relation to the car of the same name) was once the State Department's top geographer. He has just issued a monograph urging the reshaping of the states of the nation. Also renaming. Also reducing the number to 38, from its present 48. (I flunked geography in high school.)

I am all for eliminating some of the states, starting with Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. No one would miss Tennessee and Arkansas, either.

The Pearcy Pipe Dream would provide a better balance in size and population of the surviving states and bring improved government efficiency (any change would be an improvement) and would save the nation's taxpayers $4.6 billion a year in administrative expenses. Not bad for openers. I will say.

The names of the new states are great. Vermont would vanish into a northern New England conglomerate called Kennebec, and New Jersey and southern New York would combine in Hudson. Southern Texas would be Alamo, and the northern part, with most of Oklahoma and part of Kansas would be Shawnee. Perhaps we'd better just give Texas back to Mexico and start all over again.

Indiana, under the Pearcy Proposal, would link with parts of Illinois and Kentucky to become Wabash. Washington and Oregon would be Cascade. Florida and southern Georgia would make up Biscayne.

Bighorn, Cochise, Shawnee, Mohawk—the names of some of the states makes the new country sound like a bunch of Indian tribes. Bury my heart at Watergate.

C. Etzel suggests that Northern California take in part of Nevada and become El Dorado, presumably because it encompasses Reno and Las Vegas. Southern California, from San Luis Obispo down would nip off a little of Nevada and Arizona and be called San Gabriel. I'd call Southern California the State of Chaos.

Brave new world, though. "The Soverign State of Wabash casts 43 votes for. . . ."

"Does the Senator from Bayou yield to the Senator from Cascade?" Or "As go Kennebec and Mohawk, so goes the nation."

I frankly don't think the mere saving of $4.6 billion annually is enough to sway the millions of citizens of the proposed Bitterroot, Albemarle (mostly North Carolina), Erie, and Osage to the new state-ment.

The doctor comments

Hysterectomy isn't same as tied tubes

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — There are several girls in our office who are curious about certain issues of birth control. We often hear of women having complete hysterectomies instead of tubal ligations. This seems rather senseless to us. Why would they choose a hysterectomy over a tubal ligation?

When a woman has her tubes tied are there any side effects? What actually happens? Does the ovary stop producing eggs, or does the tie prevent the eggs from reaching the womb. If the eggs are still produced, does this not cause some damage from the eggs backing up in the woman's system.

How easy is it to obtain a tubal ligation? Is it a matter between patient and doctor, or are some hospitals opposed to it?

Dear Reader — Some women have a hysterectomy because they have problems with their uterus, such as a tumor or excessive bleeding. This, of course, also results in their being sterile. The body of the uterus and the cervix are frequent sites of cancer in the female. The complete removal of the uterus and cervix eliminates the likelihood of this problem in the future. Tying the tubes does not.

When the tubes are tied this removes the ability of the ova to pass down the tube into the uterus for implantation and pregnancy. This has no effect whatsoever on the ovaries. The ovaries are anatomically separated from the mouth or opening of the tubes. The egg is released by the ovary, passes a very short distance, in the open space, and enters the mouth of the tube. This means after the tubes are tied, ovulation continues as it did before. The eggs, however, cannot pass down the tubes, so they are absorbed by the body. They are not blocked up in the ovary, since they are released as they always have been, into the free space.

This actually is somewhat different than the vasectomy in the male where there is a connecting tube between the body of the testicle to the prostate and point of exit of sperm cells. Tying off the vas does block the emission of sperm cells, but tying off the tube in a woman does not block the emission of ova.

Not all doctors are willing to do tubal ligations. It is against some doctors' religious code, and the same can be said about some hospitals. The only real way to find out is to discuss it with your own doctor, if one has reason to seriously consider such an operation.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Moderate drinking, what is moderate drinking? How many drinks a day?

Dear Reader — A small amount of liquor for a person with underlying brain damage can cause uncontrollable rages or abnormal behavior. In a severe case of ulcers it may cause bleeding. Even in a healthy person, the accumulated affects can cause liver damage, brain damage and other medical problems.

No one should form a habit of having even one drink a day, and it's inadvisable to drink more than four drinks for any occasion. These should be drunk no more rapidly than one drink per hour and you should wait at least an hour after the last drink before driving. Drinks should be limited to one jigger of whiskey or a similar beverage in making a cocktail, or one bottle of beer, or a half a glass of wine.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Press-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on the menopause, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "The Menopause" booklet.

Tipping: obnoxious practice from West

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Singapore is officially discouraging tipping as an "obnoxious" practice imported from the West."

Deputy Labor Minister Sia Kah Hui opened a courtesy campaign among hotel employees with a denunciation of tipping as "obnoxious and embarrassing for both the giver and the receiver."

He said employers use it as an excuse to pay lower wages and it is "a root cause for discrimination in service between locals and foreigners, for many foreigners are accustomed to giving higher tips in their countries."

Erma Bombeck

No sooner did environmentalists start pushing the see-through garbage bags than the government decided to come out with Phase IV.

If you do not see the connection between the two, then maybe your garbage sitting on the curb for all the world to see has more class than mine.

There was a time when I was proud of my garbage. There were empty Sara Lee Boxes, champagne corks, mushroom tins and sometimes just for garnish, I'd sprinkle a few empty cans of lobster bisque on top and leave the lid ajar.

The other day I drove by the Wagners' and their garbage bags were lousy with brand Xs. Where has pride gone?

During the past year, not only has the quality of garbage deteriorated, but the quantity.

At the dinner table the other night, one of my youngsters asked for thirds.

"Save something for the garbage," I warned.

"Why?" they asked innocently.

"Why, indeed!" I said. "Do you realize that we used to be a five-can garbage family and now we are down to two measly plastic bags?"

"The Traxlers have six!" said my son.

"I don't know how they do it on his salary," I pondered.

"And besides that, they have a dog!" said another child.

"You're kidding."

"And a disposal," said my husband.

"They probably don't take vacations," I rationalized. "All I know is our garbage is so tacky it doesn't even attract stray dogs anymore."

"You're just depressed because you are tired and it has been a long day. Why don't you come in and relax and watch TV?"

"I'll be along in just a minute," I said.

Later he came out to the kitchen to check. "I think I've got it figured out. Friday, I'll have frozen fish and chips. Saturday, I'll go for the chicken, and Sunday, we'll have a cookout with spareribs, corn on the cob and watermelon. That should be filling."

"You planning the menus for next week?" he smiled.

"Don't be ridiculous. I'm planning my garbage!"

Sterilized turtles available for sale

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: A year ago Mother made us give up our baby turtles because she had heard they carry dangerous germs. But now I have heard they have sterilized baby turtles that are safe. Mother is not convinced. Can you help us? —K.R.

Dear K.R.: It's true. Certified baby green turtles ARE available in many areas now. They are certified free from salmonella and Arizona bacterium organisms known to cause potentially serious intestinal infections in humans. These baby turtles are not actually sterile, bacterially or otherwise, but they are considered free — when tested — of the organisms likely to cause human problems. (Germ-free animals of various kinds do exist under very specialized conditons in laboratories but all other animals of any species carry many organisms within their bodies. Most of these, normally, are harmless.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: What was your recommendation about clipping a parakeet's wings so it can't fly? —S.M.

Dear S.M: By all means have an expert do the wing clipping the first time. You might botch the job and it could end up painful, bloody and dangerous for the bird. Although clipping the feathers of only one wing, primarily the primaries, does effectively prevent flight, the bird will become so unbalanced in the air that it will often fall. This is the very reason it is inadvisable to clip just one wing; the poor bird can severely injure or even kill himself trying to fly. It's preferable to clip both wings evenly. The bird, in this case, can fly, but without his primary feathers he has to work so hard to keep aloft that he will quickly tire and come down. He will at least have control over his maneuvers will be able to make a comparatively crash-less landing.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We have two boxers, Beans who is two years old, and Bingo, going on eight. They're within two pounds of each other in weight. Bingo is the boss and this is what I wanted to ask about. Is he top dog because he is stronger or because he is smarter? —C.M.

Dear C.M.: Probably because he is more determined and certainly more experienced. Beans would undoubtedly have the edge in strength. I have no figures available here for canines; but in homo sapiens, for example, a comparable 65-year-old human, on an over-all basis, would only be 75 per cent as strong as a 20-year-older.

Bandits ran, loot--twice but forgot

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Take the money and run" is considered sound advice for most stickup men.

Police said Thursday two bandits remembered to run, but they forgot the money—twice.

Police said two men—one with a toy pistol, the other carrying a sawed-off shotgun —entered an auto goods store Wednesday and ordered the owner and an employe to put their valuables in a paper bag. The victims were then led into the restroom and tied up. The holdup men fled, but they left the paper bag behind.

Two hours later, police said, the same holdup team walked up to the owner of another auto supply store. One began pulling the sawed-off shotgun out of the bag and the owner screamed, "You can have the store!" and ran away.

The robbers stood in the store for a moment, and then, police said, they ran away too. Again, empty-handed.

A police spokesman said an eyewitness saw the bungling duo get into a car and drive off, and copied part of the license plate number.

Detectives arrested two suspects in the holdups, James Trappier, 22, and Jerome Water, 23, and booked them on charges of robbery—for getting the loot in the first holdup as far as the paper bag—and possession of a deadly weapon.

Con scheming break killed by explosion

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UPI) —A life term convict believed to have been involved in a scheme to break out of the Indiana State Prison was killed Monday night when an arsenal of weapons and ammunition exploded in his cell.

The victim was identified by prison officials as James Lee Collins, 25, who was sentenced to life as an accessory before and after the fact in the slaying of an Indiana state police trooper more than six years ago.

Officials said the blast set his clothing afire and he apparently burned to death. An autopsy was ordered.

Numerous weapons were found in the cell, all apparently homemade. They included five bombs, several pistols and 29 homemade shotgun shells.

Discovery of the weapons resulted in a complete shakedown of the prison population during the night, according to Warden Russell Lash. Authorities said the shakedown yielded ropes and various other contraband, including weapons.

Food costs held down during July

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced today that the month of July—when Phase 3 price controls were still in effect—was the only month in the last 11 that Los Angeles and Orange County supermarket prices remain unchanged.

The federal agency also said July's 0.5 per cent general price increase was down 0.4 per cent from June. But it marked the 18th consecutive month that living costs have gone up.

Southern California Bureau chief Suzanne Sadowsky said there was an 0.4 per cent rise in food costs, but "virtually all of the increase was for restaurant meals and snacks eaten away from home." The category of "food purchased for consumption at home" showed no increase, she said.

Since last June, supermarket prices have climbed 13.3 per cent, meaning that a cart of groceries costing $30 last year would cost $33.99 last month.

The consumer price index for the two counties has climbed to 129.1. A purchase which would have cost $10 in 1967, the index base year, now costs 12.91, according to the statistics.

Restaurant meal prices, which previously rose at a slower rate than supermarket prices, jumped 1.7 per cent during July to reach a level 12.2 per cent higher than July of 1972.

Meat, fish and poultry prices in the two counties rose 0.5 per cent but were offset by 1.0 per cent decline in the prices of fruits and vegetables. Coffee prices dropped slightly, while cereals, bakery and dairy products remained unchanged.

Other price fluctuations reported by the bureau included:

—Housing costs, up 0.5 per cent, chiefly due to higher mortgage interest rates and increases in maintenance and repair prices. Up 2.6 per cent since last year.

—Transportation costs, up 0.8 per cent to a level 6.0 per cent above last year. Car prices, gasoline prices, parking fees and repair work prices all increased.

—Health and recreation costs, up 0.6 per cent due mainly to increased dental fees and higher medicine prices.

Newscasting fairness to be studied

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —In an effort to fight "one-sided" and "anti-Nixon" radio and television newscasts, the county Republican central committee has organized a volunteer group which will monitor and report on the fairness of newscasters.

Organizers of the Fair News Committee said some broadcasters have "found the President guilty already" of involvement in the Watergate scandal and express their bias on the air.

"When incorrect or slanted statements are broadcast to millions of people," said central committee chairman Tom Malatesta, "they soon become facts. Our job is to combat these statements made toward Republican policies and to provide speakers who will set the issues straight."

"What we're trying to identify and stop is the blatantly one-sided newscaster or communicator who is anti-Nixon the other side," he said.

A similar program operated last year under the name "Nixon Watch," but no complaints were filed with the Federal Communications Commission. Malatesta acknowledges however that the FCC is "deep into an investigation of its own fairness doctrine at the present time."

The print media is excluded from the monitoring project as it was last year. Former newspaperman Lyn Nofziger, now the Nixon campaign director for California, said, "I don't need a bunch of volunteers reading the newspapers every day to tell me who the President's enemies or friends were among the press."

SEEKS NEW TRIAL — Juan Corona, convicted slayer of 25 persons, looks up from typing in his Vacaville cell, while listening to the radio on earphone. Corona wants a new trial to vindicate himself.

'I never killed those people,' Corona insists; new trial sought

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Eight months after he was convicted of hacking to death 25 migrant farm laborers, Juan V. Corona looks you hard in the eye, insists "I never killed those people" and asks for a new trial so he can testify in his own defense.

He will take a lie dectector test or even "truth serum" to prove he is innocent of what until a few days ago was the biggest known mass murder spree in U.S. history.

"How can a man, one man, do all those things," he asks, excitedly pointing a finger at a newsman questioning him about the grisly crimes that shook that quiet Sacramento Valley communities of Yuba City and neighboring Marysville in mid-1970.

People who testified against him were "a bunch of liars," the district attorney was "dumb" and his own attorney, Corona says, was "crazy" for implying that his late brother, Natividad, actually murdered all those drifters and buried their bodies in shallow orchard graves along the Feather River.

The 25 mostly Caucasian victims, the Mexican-born Corona says, were "winos" he never came in contact with as a farm labor contractor "because these people are not worth a penny" as field hands. "Five or six of them, they equal one person, one good worker."

The prison guards at the California Medical Facility here "treat me real nice," he reports, and physically "I'm very well."

He is characterized as a model prisoner by the superintendent.

Sometimes calmly, sometimes emotionally, sometimes articulately, sometimes almost incoherently—but always emphatically—Corona for more than an hour Monday discussed in broken English his celebrated case with two reporters.

Was he aware of the current Texas case, where 27 boys were the victims of sex-torture slayings? 'Yeah," he replied, "somebody told me they find some bodies down there (but) they bother me too much already, those kind of problems, so I'm not interested."

It was the first interview for newspaper distribution since his conviction Feb. 18 and subsequent sentence to 25 consecutive life terms.

Corona, 39, has trimmed off 30 pounds, shed his outspoken trial lawyer and picked up two Mexican-American civil rights attorneys: Louis Garcia and Mario Obledo, both of San Francisco.

According to district attorney David Teja, "perhaps the most significant evidence" was a green ledger found in Corona's home which contained the names of some victims. Among the other evidence was blood found in Corona's truck and alleged weapons splattered with blood discovered at his home and labor camp.

Corona insisted Monday it wasn't his handwriting in the ledger, thus disputing a prosecution witness, but he wasn't sure whether the ledger belonged to him "because I had so many." He noted there was conflicting trial testimony about the blood.

He wished his trial attorney, Richard Hawk, had called him to the witness stand, or at least offered some defense. The jury listened to nearly 200 prosecution witnesses for three months. But Hawk called no witnesses of his own, contending the DA had "botched" the case and no defense was necessary.

This week the savings are on the house.

No export controls on grains foreseen

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — An administration farm official promised flatly today the United States will not impose export controls on grains and soybeans in the 1973-74 marketing season unless some unexpected disaster hits the 1973 crop.

Despite pressure from bakers and others who want export controls invoked to assure bigger domestic supplies at prices below current boom levels, Assistant Agriculture Secretary Caroll G. Brunthaver said the United States would lose more than it could gain by limiting exports.

"The United States has been suffering from a severe balance of payments problem," Brunthaver said. "We have not been able to pay for all the things we have been importing, and we need to import even more things like fuels and raw materials in the future. The one major area where we can significantly increase exports is in farm products.

"We are not going to impose export controls short of some unforeseen disaster to this year's growing crops." Brunthaver also told the American Soybean Association he thinks the current wave of booming demand and peak prices for American crops "seems certain to endure at least through 1974, and probably through 1975."

"Even after the big wave recedes, we are likely to find the water much warmer and more pleasant in world markets than we've found it in the past," he predicted.

Noting that the Agriculture Department has removed all restraints on farm production for 1974, Brunthaver said the action would release a potential 19 million acres for crop use, but he warned that no one expects all of the acreage to actually be planted. He said his own personal belief is that almost all land which can be brought back into crops easily was returned to production this year.

"Further increases in crop acres will come harder," Brunthaver warned. He said the United States can increase production by farming "good" land more intensively and by bringing marginal, rough and brushy land into production. But crop prices will have to be good enough to induce farmers to make necessary heavy investments on the additional acreage, the official added.

Brunthaver's flat rebuff to demands for export control came as wheat and other commodity futures prices, after sagging last week, scored new recoveries Monday and moved back toward the record levels of last week. September wheat futures at Chicago moved up again to over $5 a bushel.

But the United States would "pay a very high price" in the long run for adopting export controls to lower domestic food prices, Brunthaver warned. He said the controls imposed in June to limit soybean exports in the waning months of the 1972-73 marketing year have "severely damaged our position."

Reporter looks at Prague five years after invasion

By THADDEUS C. KOPINSKI

PRAGUE (UPI) —The unmarked grave was covered with mounds of fresh flowers. A dozen candles flickered in the wind under gloomy skies.

An elderly woman with a small blond child stopped, crossed herself, and stood with head bowed for a few minutes, then disappeared along the labyrinth paths of Olsanske Cemetery.

In the course of fifteen minutes, half a dozen people Monday paid similar homage. Some walked away hurriedly when two policemen made their rounds.

The grave is that of Jan Palach, who burned himself to death on Prague's Wenceslas Square to protest the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia five years ago. The unmarked grave remains the most poignant memorial to the liberal reforms of former Communist party First Secretary Alexander Dubcek, which were crushed when Warsaw Pact troops occupied Prague on the night of Aug. 20, 1968.

But aside from the token homage evident at the cemetery—and a few more policemen than usual on the streets of Prague wearing billy clubs, not a usual part of their uniforms—the city reflected the "normalization" repeatedly invoked by the government of Dubcek's successor, Gustav Husak.

"The forecast of false prophets after August 1968 that the new Czechoslovak Communist party leadership of Gustav Husak will not be able to normalize and consolidate life in the country even in decades have not come true," the Slovak Communist party newspaper Pravda said in one of the strongest editorial comments on the anniversary.

The Czechoslovak Communist party daily Rude Pravo said "we must duly appreciate that it was thanks to this joint action (the invasion by Warsaw Pact troops) that favorable conditions have been created, for instance, for settling the arrangement of relations between Czechoslovakia and the Federal Republic of (West) Germany."

Today's Czechoslovak authorities, in addition to signing the West German treaty, have launched an extensive diplomatic offensive that has expanded to consular facilities with the United States and increased diplomatic ties with other Western countries.

Normalization, and the desire to forget the dramatic event of five years ago, is being stressed not only by the authorities, but can also be observed in the apathy and acquiescence of most of the population—with the possible exception of a few dissidents.

This has been helped along to a large extent by the government's policy of notably raising the standard of living and providing more consumer goods, many of them imported from the West.

Diplomatic observers have also noted in the past months that although Soviet troops still remain—albeit out of sight— and party members closely identified with Dubcek have had to leave their jobs as professors, economists or journalists to do menial work, authorities have shown considerable moderation with the remaining dissidents.

Logical move

City drops property taxes

MARION, Ill. (UPI) —The government of this southern Illinois town of 13,000 is making man-bites-dog-type news. Instead of raising its property taxes it is dropping them completely.

The city council has resolved simply not to pass a tax levy ordinance this year, in effect wiping out the city property tax.

To Mayor Robert L. Butler, the move seems only logical. Since he came to office in 1964, property taxes in Marion have been cut in seven of the past nine years.

Marion's last property tax rate is just 31 cents per $100 assessed valuation, or $31 on assessments of $10,000. In Chicago, 300 miles to the north, it runs about $800 for every $10,000 of assessed valuation, but that helps support schools and other services not financed in Marion by city taxes.

Marion has hardly suffered as it relinquished its property taxes.

During these years, the city built a $122,000 brick clock tower in its downtown square and a $130,000 fire station, bought a $50,000 fire truck to put in it, and installed $24,000 worth of public toilets.

Most of the time it paid cash —including $200,000 for improvements that tripled the capacity of its city reservoir. With all this, the city currently enjoys a $250,000 surplus.

Butler's cash down policy is the same way he handles his own finances.

"Never in my life have I ever bought a car or a suit of clothes or even my home on credit," the 46-year-old attorney said in an interview. "I figured that if I couldn't afford to pay cash for it, I didn't need it."

Back in 1964, he said, Marion was $80,000 in the red and the property tax on a home assessed at $10,000 was $112.

"The city council determined that if the city could ever get out of the red, an effort must be made to reduce property taxes," Butler said. "It was a direct result of that determination that taxes were reduced seven out of nine years.

"Each year, the council has budgeted for expenditures less than the amount of anticipated revenue. We have adopted this as a way of being reasonably sure sufficient funds would be avaiable to meet expenses in case the revenue didn't reach the expected level. More often than not, the revenue reached or surpassed the anticipated figure."

Surpluses began building up. Annexations were pushed to broaden the city's sales tax base.

Now, Marion's yearly income includes $565,000 from the state sales tax, $300,000 from water department operations, $196,000 from federal revenue sharing, $130,000 from sewer department operations, $76,000 from the state income tax and just $47,000 from the property tax.

Marion residents won't be getting off tax free. Aside from state and federal taxes, there will still be levies for county government, schools and parks.

But the taxes will be lighter.

English villagers nix nude bathing

PERRANZABULOE, England (UPI) —The village council of this little Cornish holiday resort turned down a request for nude bathing on its beach Monday.

Chairman Len Leah said 99 per cent of the letters received by the council had been against nude bathing. The council also received a petition signed by 1,187 residents against the idea, he said. Two were in favor, both men.

Bridegroom had handcuffs

LONDON (UPI) — The bridegroom wore handcuffs when he got married Recently and is back in prison today.

The groom, Gerard Kelly, an inmate of Brixton jail awaiting trial on charges he plotted to plant bombs in London, married 17-year-old Isabel Quinn of Belfast.

Kelly, 20, had time only to hug his bride and give her one kiss before being led to a prison van for the short drive back to the jail.

Kelly applied for permission to marry about two months ago, prison officials said.

Dumped in Mississippi

Chloroform threat watched

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)— Louisiana's chief environmentalist says it will be two more days before he can determine if 64,000 gallons of toxic chloroform dumped into the Mississippi River at Baton Rouge will by-pass New Orleans without threatening the city's water supply.

John Trygg, assistant state health officer for environment, said small traces of chloroform were detected Monday at a Dow Chemical plant 15 miles south of where the chemical was dumped into the river.

Dow officials found the chloroform traces at their water intake plant and determined concentration of the chemical to be 83 parts per billion at its strongest level. The concentration dropped steadily through most of the day.

"There is very little specific information available on chloroform as a pollutant on water. But based on the toxicity of similar materials, we have determined that that level at Dow is well within the safe level," Trygg said.

He said earlier estimates the chloroform would reach New Orleans Monday morning were wrong. The chemical, which is 150 per cent heavier than water, will probably reach New Orleans Thursday morning, he said.

"We have determined that it will take probably in excess of 80 hours to reach New Orleans and considerably longer to reach the Gulf of Mexico," he said.

Trygg said he did not expect the chemical to threaten any water supplies, but "that doesn't mean we're not watching."

A barge carrying the chloroform from Freeport, Tex. to Louisville, Ky., sank Sunday while being repaired at a dock a few miles south of Baton Rouge.

One of three compartments of the barge split and leaked 64,000 gallons of the toxic chemical into the Mississippi.

Salvage operations were underway to recover the chloroform from the other two barge compartments.

Baton Rouge does not draw any water from the Mississippi River, but 34 communities and industries, including New Orleans, do use the river as a source of drinking water.

Our status at this point is that we've got all of the water plants on the stream (Mississippi) operating with the requirement that they continue this quantititive analysis, that they continue heating the water and testing for ether odor," Trygg said.

Any community or industry recording a strong concentration of chloroform entering its water system would immediately shut all intake valves and warn other downstream system of the danger, Trygg said.

Chloroform is widely used in hospitals as an anesthetic.

MRS. CHRISTOPHER WEISKE

The bride wore an empire gown of lace designed with a sailor-styled collar, long, fitted sleeves and a slim skirt edged in ruffles of lace.

Pearled orange blossoms held the bride's lace-edged, fingertip veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and small red roses.

Miss Susan Lynne Howe was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Patti Waldron, Miss Julie Higgins, Mrs. Marcie Lefebure and Mrs. Debbie Burwell.

Lisa Lefebure was flower girl and Steven Gurney was ring bearer.

Best man was Albert Valdespino. Ushers were Javier Chavarin, James Brodet, Bill Nieves, Michael Weiske and Jerry Bierly.

The couple greeted guests at a reception at the Monterey Manor Mobile Home Clubhouse.

Dancers set luau Saturday

Wheels and Chains Square Dance Club of Walnut has planned its annual luau dance at the Suzanne School, Suzanne and La Puente Road, Walnut, Saturday, at 8 p.m.

Caller will be Ray McMillan.

Recently elected officers are: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nahmeas, presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Weiss, vice presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Melendres, secretary; and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Corder, treasurer.

The club dances on the first Saturday of each month with George Caudill calling, with round dancing cued and round of the month taught by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shawver; and on the fourth Saturday to the calling of Ray McMillan.

All square dancers are invited to participate.

Let's Ask The Cook

Questions are coming in about the use of soy meal as an extender for ground beef. We bought some the day it landed in our area so we could do a kitchen taste test.

Those were the best hamburgers in a long time, surprisingly good with excellent flavor, no shrinkage, no excess grease in the pan. In fact, you had better grease the pan and cook on no more than medium heat. True, some of the grease is retained by the soy meal but, as the meat manager pointed out when we discussed the matter, you are getting 25 per cent fat per pound.

Later I checked with him to see what response the product was getting. He shook his head. "The minute women see that necessary labeling of 'imitation ground beef' they toss it back, pick up our higher priced all-meat product. I can't understand it."

The same day regular hamburger meat was selling for 10 cents a pound more if — a big if — you bought a minimum of four pounds. Otherwise it was 20 cents more per pound. In all probability those who rejected it had insufficient knowledge of what "imitation" meant.

Soy meal is high in protein content so you aren't getting gypped on nourishment. Consider, my friends, with the food situation what it is we may all be darned glad to get items anywhere near what we were accustomed to buying.

One thing I had to learn about the beef and soy mixture was not to make hamburgers as large as I used to. Since there is no shrinkage, as with so much ground beef, I wound up with more than I could get in bun or bread slices. We have also tried all-chicken wieners and liked them. If anything they are less spicy. I like that.

We did not like the raw ground turkey even when I tried turkeyburgers, turkey loaf or whatever. I could not overcome the greasy taste no matter what other ingredients I added. I wonder if they ground the turkey skin along with the meat.

Did you know that rice contains 70 per cent protein? According to Jean Myer (pronounced My-ay) professor of nutrition at Harvard University, mothers milk is the perfect protein, almost 100 per cent, whole eggs are 94 per cent. Cows milk, meat and fish range from 76 per cent to 86 per cent. Chicken, nuts and beans are all good protein sources so it isn't a matter of all beefsteak.

However, it is extremely unwise to try to eliminate all carbohydrates from your diet. In time body balance gets upset. You need some of those carbos for necessary minerals and other items. That is why Jean Myer says he wishes women in particular would stop eliminating all bread and potatoes (also high in minerals) when they set out to lose weight. It isn't so much what you eat for a balanced diet as how much.

TODAY'S Women

Popka and Waggoner vows are exchanged

Miss Aylene Waggoner and Dennis George Popka were united in marriage in a Nuptial Mass at St. Madeleine's Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Byron H. Waggoner of Long Beach and Mrs. Rosie Waggoner, also of Long Beach. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Popka of Pomona.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin designed with a circular train and accented with lace medallions and seed pearls.

A crown of lace and seed pearls held the bride's elbow-length veil. She carried shasta daisies and baby's breath.

Debbie Waggoner was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Marilyn Popka, Mrs. Barbara Sirney and Mrs. Lois Ingham. Tracy Souter was flower girl.

Serving as best man was John W. Popka. Ushers were Bill Waggoner, Bill Garlock and Pat Hennigan.

A reception at The Arbor followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Popka will honeymoon in San Diego and San Francisco before making their home in Riverside. The bride is an elementary school teacher in Riverside and the groom is a claims adjuster supervisor for Allstate Insurance.

Miss Junior Teen

Coronation Thursday

A "Miss Junior Teen" will be chosen during a contest on Thursday at Montgomery Ward's, Covina, as part of an annual "Back-to-School Show."

The event will begin at 7 p.m in the front parking lot of the store. The theme for the evening will be "Flashback" featuring sweaters, coats, shirtdresses and coordinated outfits.

Competing for the "Miss Junior Teen" title are 11 finalists, Mary Woore of Pomona, Kimberly Green of Claremont, Sandra Ieal of Azusa, Shiela Perry of West Covina, Janice Coalson of Baldwin Park, Lori Stark of West Covina, Melinda McKee of West Covina, Peggy Tams of Covina, Kathy Taylor of West Covina, Peggy Cunningham of Glendora and Marylynn Pace of La Verne.

Crowning the new Miss Junior Teen will be Miss Julie Lobosky of San Dimas, this year's Montgomery Ward's Girl of the Year. Julie is the former Miss Pre Teen California and Miss Los Angeles County to the Miss Teenage America Pageant, in which she was sponsored by Montgomery Ward's. She was the youngest girl in the history of the national pageant to be one of eight semi-finalists.

Special guest stars to judge the contest will be Charlie Tuna, local disc jockey; Miss Cindy Brown, Miss Teen California; Ken Russell, City Administrator of Covina; Mrs. Connie Keenan, District Wendy Ward; Mrs. Helen Parkinson of Parkinson Promotions; Maggie Morris, beauty editor of "Teen" Magazine; Nancy Crowell, women's editor for the San Gabriel Valley Tribune; and the store manager of Montgomery Ward's Covina.

JULIE LOBOSKY

MRS. DAVID GONZALES

Gonzales, White vows said

Miss Elizabeth Nerene White and David Jacob Gonzales exchanged wedding vows in an afternoon ceremony at Trinity United Methodist Church.

Dr. John Black performed the double-ring rites.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward P. White of Pomona was given in marriage by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gonzales of Los Angeles.

The bride's gown, created by her mother, was of satin-finished crepe. Her floor-length veil flowed to a chapel train.

White daisies and yellow roses were carried by the bride.

Mrs. Julia Wright, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

Cheryl Wright was flower girl and Bobby Wright was ring bearer.

Serving as best man was Jim Gunther. Ushers were Dick Friedman and Raymond Tasco.

A reception at the church followed the rites.

After a honeymoon in San Diego, the newlyweds will make their home in Glendale.

All about tipping

DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: We always spend one weekend during the winter at Grossinger's for the Barbershoppers' Harmony Holiday Convention. We have a question about tipping.

"The fee includes all gratuities for the waitresses and chambermaids and is clearly stated on the bill. Three meals are served each day, and the food is more than ample and delicious.

"How much do the waitresses and busboys and chambermaids get as gratuities from a convention such as this? If we feel the service is outstanding, should we tip both busboy and waitress? How much? Should each couple tip, or as a group?

"We feel we do not want to tip twice, and yet we do not want to feel we have not tipped enough. — Mrs. E. W., Maple Shade, N. J."

Grossinger's tells me that, when gratuities are built into the overall rate for a convention group, the fixed charge is now $3,75 a day, which breaks down in this fashion (for three meals on weekends): waitress or waiter — $1.70, busboy — 85 cents, captain — 50 cents and chambermaid — 70 cents. Guests are free, however, to add to this amount if they feel they have had exceptional service. The employee will still receive the basic tip.

It is advisable for each couple to give this additonal tip separately (if they wish to do so) when they are part of a group.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I have discovered an excellent travel help (even if the trip is just down the road to Aunt Martha's). The two brands of non-woven cloths (HandiWipes and Wonder Cloths) are excellent for washing anything from floors to faces. They come 10 to a package and retail here for about 59 cents. They dry quickly and rinse clean with little effort.

"Half of one is just the right size for a face cloth, so for travel they are inexpensive enough to discard. And perfect for children's hands and faces. I have been so pleased with them I thought I'd like to share the fact with your other readers. — M. F., Alameda, Calif."

A very good idea, too.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: My parents gave me a large going-away party for a planned extensive European tour. Almost all the gifts were monetary. Unfortunately, my trip has been canceled. Should I return the money to the donors? — S. M., Arcadia, Calif."

I'm sure your friends would expect you to keep the money. Had you been given other things, you would not have been expected to return them because the trip was canceled.

(Miss Amy Vanderbilt welcomes your letters and strives to answer all those of general interest in her column. Send your questions and comments to Miss Vanderbilt in care of the Progress-Bulletin.

Knit fall bulky beauty

BY JUDY LOVE

This fall is going to be the biggest season ever for sweaters. Sweaters are everywhere, in every version. You'll see sweater dresses, coat-sweaters, long, short, big and bulky. It's a fashion heyday for all you knitters. You'll never be more in style!

So, put your knitting cap on, and start making some big knitting plans for your fall wardrobe. One of the newest and hottest looks for fall is the big sweater. Big, bulky and beautiful, the big sweaters will travel in great syle this fall — to the shopping center, to school, out for a day of fun, even to the P.T.A. at night. Wear your big sweater jacket over pants, with skirts and belted over a dress.

One of the season's sure winners sports a country-classic knit feeling, but in fact much trimmer and slimmer.

This versatile sweater-topper could be the most important addition to your entire wardrobe. You'll work in Bernat Shakerspun or Big Berella Bulky, using No. 11 needles. Depending upon the kind of yarn and the size sweater you knit, you'll use from eight 4-oz. balls to 21 2-oz. skeins. Either way, you'll whip up a smart custom bargain in no time. It's beautifully finished with raglan sleeves, ribbed trim, self buttons.

The unusual, squared-off pattern is surprisingly easy to work — a simple series of K sts with a sl. 1 on the odd rows. You P the first six even rows, Knit, then repeat the 8 to 12 rows for the handsome pattern stitch. (Depending on the yarn you choose.)

THE SWEATER topper is the big hit in knits this fall.

This terrific sweater topper will spark up your fall wardrobe in a big way. You can obtain easy-to-follow directions by simply sending 50 cents to Stichin' Time, c/o this paper, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet S376 and be sure to include your name and address.

KNIT KNACKS

Dear Judy Love: My daughter has shown interest in my knitting, and I would like to encourage her to try her hand at it. What would be a good item for her to begin with? —C.A., Chicago, Ill.

Dear C.A.: A scarf would be a perfect thing for your daughter because they go quickly and she can make something that she can actually wear and show her friends this winter. This scarf is knitted on the bias, and will be fun for both of you to try! You will need two ounces of four-ply fingering yarn and a pair of No. 9 knitting needles. Cast on 45 sts. 1st row: Knit. 2nd row: Kl. Inc. 1 st. in next st. Knit to last 4 sts. K 2 tog. K 2. As you have inc. 1 st at the beginning of the row, you should still have 45 sts on the needle. Repeat 1st and 2nd rows until the edge where the decreasings were made measures 34 inches. Cast off and block.

The directions are easy, and although you may need to help your daughter at first, she should catch on quickly and be on her own. Making something on your own is very rewarding, as we knitters know, and I'm sure that after her first success (and this scarf will be!) she will be eager to try other things as well. These scarfs also make wonderful Christmas gifts for friends and relatives — and what is more appreciated than a gift that was hand made just for you!

Happy knitting. — Judy Love.

Sex bias seen in 3 fields

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Three of the areas where the public can easily see the adverse effects of sex bias in schools are textbooks, physical education courses, and the lack of women school administrators," says Katherine Cole.

The director of the new Resource Center on Sex Roles in Education said also that minority students have concern for these issues as well as other ways women and minorities are "tracked" or restricted into narrow stereotyped roles.

WHAT A WONDERFUL WAY TO LOSE FAT!
THE "MODEL-ETTS" WAY HELPS CURB YOUR APPETITE
HELPS YOU LOSE THAT EXTRA WEIGHT
■ NO CALORIE COUNTING! ■ NO EXERCISES!
■ NO SPECIAL DIETS!

Thanks to a group of New York doctors, you can now lose pounds of ugly fat without going on any special diet, without cutting out any special foods.
HELPS REDUCE HUNGRY MOMENTS.
These New York doctors discovered a food adjuvant called "MODEL-ETTS."
"Model-etts" does remarkable things. It helps you cut down your caloric intake by a natural automatic curbing of the appetite and of the desire for foods, resulting automatically in a reduced intake of food.
Before "Model-etts" was offered to you, it was tested clinically by the doctors on a large group of non-glandular overweight men and women.
The doctors carefully checked results, and here is what they found:
1. Weight losses of 6 to 20 pounds without any ill effects whatsoever.
2. 96% of the men and women who used "Model-etts" lost weight.
"Model-etts" is absolutely safe. It is a food adjuvant - not a drug.

Change in eating habits protects against disease

As heart attacks continue to be the number 1 health problem in America, we are all becoming aware of the need to change our eating habits to guard against this dread disease. The American diet is very rich in cholesterol and saturated fat, both of which are believed to increase cholesterol levels in the blood and lead to atherosclerosis.

Many doctors recommend that we eat less meat, eggs, dairy products and shell fish, and increase our consumption of foods which are low in cholesterol and rich in polyunsaturates, such as, poultry, fish, skim milk diary products, vegetables, fruits and a corn oil margarine.

It is not difficult to adjust to this low-fat diet, and you will find many recipes can be adapted with simple substitutions (i.e. chicken for beef, margarine for butter etc.) For example, here are two informal party dishes, tacos and dessert fondue, which have been modified for sensible eating.

These unique Chicken Tacos eliminate the traditional fat-filled ground beef. The savory taco sauce combines tomatoes, onions, garlic, chili powder, ripe olives and parsley for robust flavor with just the right amount of spice.

Chocolate fondue has become a popular dessert for casual entertaining. Chocolate, however, is high in saturated fat; make butterscotch fondue instead.

It is equally delicious and because it is made with margarine it is low in cholesterol and high in polyunsaturates. Serve with a variety of fruits, marshmallows and cubes of pound cake.

CHICKEN TACOS
3 tablespoons margarine
2 whole chicken breasts, boned, skinned and cut into thin strips
1 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (1-pound) whole tomatoes, chopped
½ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce
1 tablespoon cornstarch dissolved in 2 tablespoons water
½ cup sliced ripe olives
¼ cup chopped parsley
10 taco shells, heated
Shredded lettuce

Melt margarine in large skillet over medium heat and brown chicken.

Add onion and garlic; cook until tender. Stir in tomatoes, chili powder, salt, pepper and hot pepper sauce. Simmer for 2 to 3 minutes. Add dissolved cornstarch and heat until mixture thickens; stir frequently. Stir in olives and parsley. Heat for 2 to 3 minutes.

To serve, fill taco shell with about ½ cup chicken mixture and top with shredded lettuce. Makes 10 tacos.

BUTTERSCOTCH FONDUE
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine
1½ cups firmly packed dark brown sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 and 1-3rd cups light cream
4 teaspoons cornstarch
3 tablespoons water
Apple wedges
Banana chunks
Pitted dates
Pound cake cubes
Marshmallows

Melt margarine in fondue pot. Stir in brown sugar, salt and cream. Cook over medium heat, stirring until brown sugar is dissolved and mixture is bubbly. Combine cornstarch and water. Add to brown sugar mixture. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Keep warm. Dip fruit pieces, pound cake, and marshmallows into dip. Makes 2½ cups dip. To keep apple and banana chunks from discoloring, brush cut surface with lemon juice.

Nonfattening chicken dish is delicious

"Everything I like is fattening", laments the serious or not so serious dieter. Not so. Diet foods can be as enjoyable as fattening ones. The secret is in the flavor.

According to the food chemists, flavoring is a science as well as an art. Each food has a distinct taste of its own, but certain foods are really laden with flavor. To name a few: onions, garlic, green pepper, herbs, spices, citrus fruits. All are low or no-caloried. They add zest and sparkle to many an ordinary dish. Lemon juice and rind, particularly, freshen and contribute a piquant taste to bland foods that might otherwise fall by the wayside in the "taste good" department. Seasoning and broth granules, with less than six calories per packet, pep up and add flavor to dishes too.

We've combined these three flavor-enhancers to create a chicken gelatin salad, high in protein, low in calories, that easily falls into the gourmet diet food class. Cool, perky, colorful and delicious with a total calorie count of 969 for the whole recipe, 121 each for the eight portions. With a taste like this, who wants calories. Serve this salad with buttermilk, which also is both thirst-quenching and low-calorie.

CUCUMBER BOATS WITH JELLIED CHICKEN
4 packets golden seasoning and broth
2 packages (4 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
3 cups boiling water
½ cup minced green onion
½ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped pimento
2 cups cubed cooked turkey
6 to 8 medium-sized cucumbers

Combine gelatin, golden broth, lemon juice, lemon rind and boiling water. Stir until both gelatin and broth mix are dissolved. Chill until slightly firm. Add remaining ingredients.

Pour into medium-sized muffin tins or custard cups. Chill until firm. Hollow out cucumbers with teaspoon. Unmold gelatin by running knife around edge of pan. Arrange in cumcumber boats. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Do-it-yourself cooks can save their food dollars

These are make-it-yourself days. There is real saving in buying fewer convenience foods and, instead, doing more cooking and baking in your home kitchen. Such creativity is rewarding, too and will serve to add variety to menus.

Take pies, for example. It's fun to bake pies and to serve some of the less familiar ones now and then. For the finale of a company meal, make Mint Refrigerator Pie. It's dessert and after dinner liqueur all in one, for the refreshing chocolate-mint flavor comes from creme de cacao and creme de menthe. Add shavings of semi-sweet chocolate to give a professional dessert chef flourish.

Cranberry Chiffon Pie is delicious after a meal of poultry or pork. The recipe given here uses canned whole cranberry sauce. The pleasantly spiced Sweet Potato Pie may be prepared from either mashed cooked or mashed canned sweet potatoes. Dark corn syrup adds extra goodness.

Because only a little sweetening is needed in these chiffon pies, light corn syrup, which sweetens delicately without masking flavors, is used. It has the added advantage of making for smoother texture and, in the case of chiffon type pies, it helps whip them up cloud light.

MINT REFRIGERATOR PIE
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¼ cup creme de cacao
¼ cup creme de menthe
1 pint heavy cream
1 egg white
Dash salt
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
Shaved semi-sweet chocolate

Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat creme de cacao and creme de menthe together over low heat until mixture comes to boil. Remove from heat; stir in gelatin until completely dissolved. Cool to lukewarm. (Do not chill.) Whip cream until stiff. Fold in gelatin mixture. Chill in refrigerator while preparing egg white mixture.

Beat egg white and salt until soft peaks form when beater is raised. Gradually add sugar, beating until mixture is smooth and glossy. Beat in corn syrup, a little at a time; continue beating until mixture holds firm peaks. Fold this mixture into whipped cream mixture. Pile lightly into pastry shell. Chill several hours or until set. Decorate with chocolate. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CRANBERRY CHIFFON PIE
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
1 package (3 ounces) lemon flavored gelatin
½ cup boiling water
1 can (1 pound) whole berry cranberry sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 egg whites
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water in large bowl. Mix together cranberry sauce, lemon juice and salt in 2-quart saucepan. Cook over medium heat just until mixture comes to boil. Remove from heat and stir in gelatin mixture, stirring until well mixed. Chill about 2 hours or until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon.

Beat egg whites until soft peaks form when beater is raised. Gradually beat in sugar, then corn syrup, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold in gelatin mixture. Fold in whipped cream. Chill 1 hour or until mixture is firm enough to mound. Pile lightly into pastry shell. Chill about 2 hours or until set. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SWEET POTATO PIE
1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
1½ cups mashed cooked sweet potatoes or 1 can (1 pound) water packed sweet potatoes, drained and mashed
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup evaporated milk
½ cup dark corn syrup
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons margarine, melted
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground ginger

Beat together sweet potatoes, eggs, evaporated milk, corn syrup, brown sugar, margarine, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger until smooth and frothy. Pour into pastry shell. Bake at 425 degrees 15 minutes; reduce to 350 degrees and continue baking about 45 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Makes 8-inch pie.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Chameleon in us all

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My wife gets very upset with me because she says I'm a phony. She can't seem to understand that if I were totally honest, especially with my collegaues, I'd be out of a job tomorrow. It doesn't seem odd to me to be many different people in the course of a day. Perhaps this is because I really feel different with different individuals. My wife sees this as being deceptive, and, in a sense, that I'm cheating others and myself.

Since this comes naturally to me, I don't see how it can be dishonest. My secretary makes me feel one way, my wife another, by boss another, and the people in my car pool bring out other parts of me. Does this mean that I have a split personality or that I'm unhealthy in some way? —A..B

Dear A.B.: I think your wife may be taking "To thine own self be true." too literally. Social psychologist Kenneth Gergen has pointed out that we all wear many masks in an average day. This does not mean that we're being untrue to ourselves. I'm certain that your wife, too, changes when she is with different people, but she may not be aware of this in herself, though she sees it quite clearly in your.

Your wife may during any one day be an educator to your children, an arbitrater, a helpful neighbor, a responsible driver for a group of adults or children; she may also hold down a full-time outside job, and when she comes home, she is part lover, part friend, part parent, part child.

The same is true of any man. He plays various roles at his place of employment and in transit. He plays different roles with his children if he is a good father. He is a companion, a teacher, a provider, and a counselor.

We have as many different social selves as there are distinct groups of persons whose opinion we care about. Studies reveal that our identity changes even when we are with strangers. If we didn't react and change according to the needs and feelings of others, we would be insensitive, and we would certainly be unpopular. You might start off a day in an exceptionally happy mood, but if you appear at the office and discover your secretary is ill or her mother has just died, your exuberance is naturally tempered. You're not apt to launch into your favorite jokes. This is not being dishonest, nor is it being a phony. To do otherwise would be inhuman and extremely immature. Only a very small child could get away with pursuing his own problems and interest with total disregard for those around him.

Each person's self is much larger than he or she realizes. When we try to analyze ourselves or look inward, we see only a small part of our self. The German philosopher Schopenhauer made a distinction between the character people pretend to be, the character they think they are, and the character they are in reality. Each of us is several people and each of us plays many roles during any 24-hour period.

How we behave, or what particular role we play often depends on what we expect or want from others. If we want a favor, we may behave in one way and if we are in a position to grant favors, we behave in another way.

We are not being superficial, in wearing these masks. They provide a way to realize our own potential and to gain insight into others.

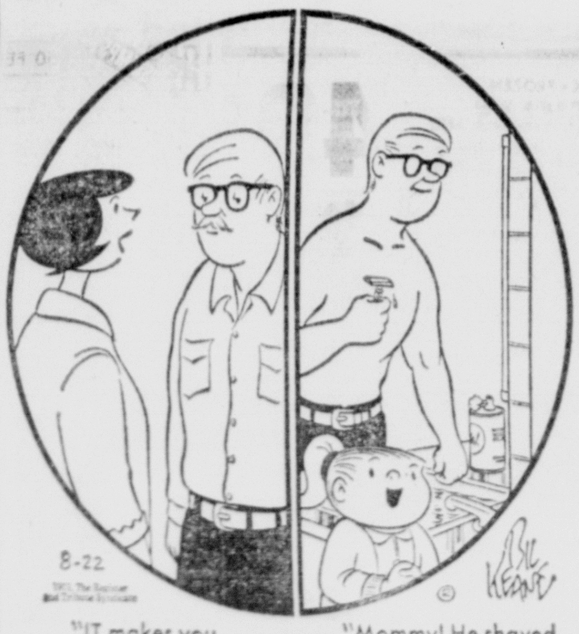
Mr. Jones is employed at Pneu Draulics, Inc., of Montclair.

Damaged goods save money

Slightly damaged canned goods can save you money at the market, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Cans with small dents generally are marked down in price, and the dents will not harm the contents unless the metal has been pierced or the can seems loosened, the USDA added. Cans to avoid are those that are leaking or bulging or swelling at the ends.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS



Violinist sits on top of musical world

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — At 25, violinist Kyung-Wha Chung sits on top of the word of classical music. All the great concert halls are her stage.

In an interview, she had some words for boys and girls struggling with music lessons and practice sessions. She also had a few asides for parents of same.

The elf-like violinist—she's a seven—has been likened to two great fiddlers, Heifetz and Oistrakh. But this teeny-tiny musical giant could pass for somebody's teen-age kid sister. She also leaves the impression she couldn't put on an air if her life depended on it.

The Korean miss started piano when four, violin when seven. Brothers and sisters also were introduced to music early.

"Not because my parents were musicians," she said. "They were not. But they were wise. They had an intuitive sense about how wonderful it would be to start their children on piano."

At 11 she won two prizes from Seoul University and at 12 her government sent Kyung-Wha on a concert tour of Japan.

Soon after she was studying in America and came to the attention of Ivan Galamian, teacher of many of the foremost concertizing violinists of the day. He arranged a full scholarship for her at Juilliard n New York.

An award in an international competition incuded an engagement with the Pittsburgh Symphony in 1967. The next year she made her debut with the New York Philharmonic. She was called a major artist, extraordinary and a lot of nice things—all the way to sensational! Well, that turned out to be the word for her debut in Europe in 1970. At London's Royal Festival Hall with the London Symphony Orchestra under Andre Previn she made her mark. It included an invitation from Previn to be his soloist on an 11-concert Far Eastern tour.

She's been going around the world ever since but keeps her schedule loose enough to allow free time either in her New York or London apartment. To extend the relaxed feeling Miss Chung travels in blue jeans.

Strawberries are grown in almost all of the 50 states, but only 31 produce them on a commercial scale. California berries are on the market six months of the year, but other states grow enough to make this fruit a year-round item.

Coal riches may change face and life of Wyoming

BUFFALO, Wyo. (UPI) — The hunger of an energy-starved nation may bring to an end the life Wyoming people know in the coal-rice Powder River Basin. It appears there's no stopping the change.

Reynolds Metals is the biggest of the many mining companies and giant utilities eyeing the vast, low-sufur coal field that waints under parts of Northeast Wyoming, Montana, and the Dakotas.

The area contains 40 per cent of the nation's remaining coal reserves, with 35 billion tons readily recoverable. Most of it can be strip-mined.

"The major portion of the people in Johnson County are opposed to it," says William Holland, 64-year-old Buffalo attorney and state legislator. "They feel the great influx of population would be detrimental to their way of life in the community, and would bring greater problems than it would benefit."

Although mining has already taken pace, the massive development anticipated by most and feared by others is down the road. Reynolds probably has the biggest plan, a $2.2 billion uranium enrichment plant near here, and also in the discussion stages are coal gasification projects, coalburning power pants and more strip mines.

Agricultural area

The Powder River Basin, lying east of the snow-capped Big Horn Mountains, is largely an agricultural area, with small towns, clean air and water. Life is different than in the big cities of the east, and some came here just for that reason.

One of Wyoming's most outspoken environmentalists, Tom Bell, an editor of the High Country News, has warned that the basin may become "the Ruhr Valley of the nation," but "people polution" seems the abiding fear of some.

Although estimates of population growth are a dime-a-dozen in this town of 3,394, one forecast sees an increase of 10,000 people in a few years if Reynolds goes through with its plans.

"Undoubtedly the coal development will bring a substantial increase in population, and then the problems of air polution from the power plants may come about. There is also a hazard to the water supply," Holland said.

Lack of water has been the major delay in coal development in this grassland, used largely as cattle and sheep graze. Plans have been discussed to pipe water in for industrial use from miles away.

Like it or not

All is not opposition in the basin, however, although residents are demanding environmental safeguards along with the new life that seems to be coming, like it or not.

At nearby Gillette, a town of 7,194, Mayor Cliff Davis says the Campbell County population may jump from about 12,597 now to 18,000 by 1980, although some estimates forecast a growth to 23,000 by that date.

"I think people here are interested in the rehabilitation of the land, and they have been given assurances of that. I think our laws are adequate on this, and I have no fear," the 65-year-old car dealer and legislator said.

Robert Wallick, operator of a 13,000-acre cattle ranch near the Montana border, fears that Wyoming's updated strip mine reclamation laws still won't be sufficient to prevent the land from being harmed.

"I'm appalled they're not spending money on alternative energy sources in the amounts they did on sending a man to the moon. What about energy sources like the moon and the sun?" the 52-year-od rancher asks.

Some are selling

Some ranchers are selling their land, if the price is right, for coal stripping. "Some of them are looking to it for the dollar value to them right now, and that's all," Wallick says.

Wyoming last year produced more coal than any of its neighbors, and there appears no stopping its growth. The total output was 10,920,000 tons, the largest production in three decades.

Reynolds has not started construction of its facilities near Lake De Smet. It is attempting to organize a consortium to finance the uranium enrichment plant and coal-burning power plant.

"We have given adsolute assurance that we will protect the environment," says Joseph N. Moffatt, of Reynolds. He says there is "actually very little polution involved."

Moffatt says Reynolds would probably bring in 1,600 to 2,100 permanent employes for the facility to produce enriched uranium for nuclear power plants, many of them in the East.

Coal, however, is the reason for Reynolds' interest in Wyoming, because it would be the power. Reynolds has one of the largest coal holdings in the state, estimated at two billion tons.

L.A. police accused of discrimination

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A suit filed in U.S. District Court Monday accused the Los Angeles Police Academy of discriminating against women in recruiting for police officers.

The suit, filed on behalf of policewoman Sgt. Fanchon Blake and Michael Wendier, a woman who applied for a police officer position, comes two days after the police recruiting department began interviewing its first woman applicants for police officer positions.

The suit said that although some 4,500 women have applied, none has been hired by the Los Angeles Police Department in three years.

Last week the department began implementing a new "unisex" program proposed by Chief Edward M. Davis which opens a police officer position for both men and women.

Trainee classes at the Academy for 70 new recruits were all male in July and August, the suit said. Both classes were conducted after the "unisex" program to hire more women was passed by the city council.

The class action suit entered by the Center for Law in the Public Interest and the American Civil Liberties Union of Southern California suggested that the next trainee class be composed of 35 men and 35 women. An all-male class could only be held if the following class was all-female.

The suit named as defendants the city of Los Angeles, Chief Davis, and the city Civil Service Commission which approved the qualifications required of candidates for the "unisex" program.

Japanese retirement bill okayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill granting four years of retirement credit to teachers of Japanese ancestry confined in relocation camps during World War II has won the endorsement of the Assembly Retirement Committee.

The bill (SB173) by Sen. Ralph C. Dills, D-Gardena, was sent to the Revenue and Taxation Committee.

Dills said the measure presently would apply to only one teacher, Mrs. Inez Nagai of San Mateo County, who was sent to a Fresno County camp in 1942.

The lawmaker expressed hope that other teachers of Japanese ancestry who suffered a similar fate will "come forward to take advantage of this law."

BRIDGE

A basic play that few use

By Owald & James Jacoby

The obligatory finesse should be classed among elementary plays, but it is doubtful if very many bridge players know it.

South is in a pretty sound four-spade contract. He has to lose a trick to the ace of clubs and barring a very bad trump break will only lose two trump tricks.

However, there is no harm making an extra trick if it can be scored and the obligatory finesse will bring it in this time.

	NORTH 22 ♠Q8 ♥AK974 ♦Q3 ♣Q852
WEST ♠A4 ♥652 ♦J10985 ♣1094		EAST ♠J109 ♥QJ108 ♦762 ♣AJ3
	SOUTH (D) ♠K76532 ♥3 ♦AK4 ♣K76

North-South vulnerable

West	North	East	South
			1♠
Pass	2♥	Pass	2♠
Pass	3♦	Pass	4♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♦J

South wins the diamond in his own hand and leads a spade toward dummy's queen. It holds the trick and he leads a spade back. East plays either the 10 or jack. It doesn't matter which because South simply plays a low spade.

He has nothing to lose with this play. If West holds both missing trumps he is sure of two trump tricks. If East held the trump ace he would have used it to capture the queen.

Against the actual holding West must play the ace willnilly. Later on South picks up East's last trump; discards one club on a high heart and concedes a trick to the club ace.

What about three no-trump? Declarer would still try the obligatory finesse, but against a heart lead would have trouble collecting more than nine tricks and no chance to score 11.

Man carries sign in appeal to unknown girl

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Bob Hopkins is a walking valentine.

Around his neck as he pounds the pavement of this University City is a huge sign that droops almost to the ground, an appeal for a girl he met in August to contact him.

"Is this face familiar?" the sign reads. "You would have met me Thursday, August 9, as I was picketing in front of A&P. You caught a bus. I didn't catch your name..."

Hopkins, 23, admitted today that he feels "a wee bit foolish," but he decided it was the only way to meet the girl again.

"Only middle aged ladies talk with me," he said. "Women of the relevant age ignore me."

Progress-Bulletin Food and Recipes

BEACH PARTY POPCORN

Add 1 teaspoon soy sauce and 2 drops hot pepper sauce to 1-3rd cup melted butter. Put two quarts popped corn and 2 cups assorted seasoned snacks in large bowl. Pour the butter mixture over the popcorn mixture and toss well. Sprinkle with package bacon-onion dip mix and toss again. Spread mixture on a jelly roll pan and bake 8 or 10 minutes in a 350-degree oven, stirring only once. Makes 2½ quarts.

Simple hot dish is summer break

A nice simple hot dish often is welcome as a break from a constant diet of cold cuts and salads that make up many summer menus. A cheese-broccoli strata is a winning combination of flavors. Serve it with a hearty lettuce - tomato - onion - cucumber salad and lots of iced tea. There are a few tricks to making a good iced tea using either loose tea or teabags and the techniques are worth learning because tea is a true thirst-quencher.

CHEESE-BROCCOLI STRATA

(Makes 4 to 6 servings)

- 8 slices day-old bread
- ½ pound sliced process American Cheddar cheese
- 1 (10 ounce) package frozen chopped broccoli, thawed and drained
- 4 eggs
- 2 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard

Remove crusts from bread and cut each slice diagonally. Arrange 4 slices in a buttered 10 x 10 x 2-inch baking dish. Cover bread with one layer of cheese. Spread broccoli over this layer and cover with remaining cheese and bread. Beat eggs until foamy. Beat in remaining ingredients. Pour over bread in baking dish and refrigerate 1 hour. Bake in 325 degree oven for about 50 minutes or until puffed and golden brown. Serve at once. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

PERFECT ICED TEA
The 2-Quart Formula

Bring 1 quart of freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil in a saucepan. Remove from the heat and immediately add 15 teabags or one-third cup loose tea. Stir, cover and let stand 5 minutes. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding another quart of cold water. Keep at room temperature. When ready to serve pour into ice-filled glasses.

The Cold Water Method (for teabags). Fill a quart pitcher or container with cold tap water. Add 8 to 10 teabags (remove tags). Cover.

Tomato and fruit in barbecue glaze

Succulent grilled pork chops can be the new star in your barbecue repertoire. With an eye on economy, choose rib or shoulder chops, rather than loin chops.

The basting sauce is crucial for all barbecues — source of rich flavor and a beautiful golden-brown glaze. Now, you can try a new one. Here, tomato flavor, fine with pork, combines with the light touch of fruit ideal for summer. And, hurried home-makers please note: this sauce is quick and easy to concoct, as well.

All you need is an envelope of spaghetti sauce mix; then you add apricot nectar or pineapple juice. Brush the chops with the sauce, baste them repeatedly and turn them often, so they don't get too brown. Remember, all pork must be cooked thoroughly — no less then 30 to 40 minutes for these chops, over hot coals.

A new Golden Potato Salad with unusual cheesy flavor is perfect with grilled pork chops. Again, this recipe is easy and quick, using a package of potatoes au gratin. These come all peeled and sliced, with their own zesty cheese seasoning right in the package. Add the other ingredients for a new version of an old favorite, bound to rate A for appetite appeal.

Add sliced fresh tomatoes on the side for flavor and color; then, with iced tea and fresh peach shortcake, your satisfying summer repast is complete.

FRUITY GRILLED PORK CHOPS

- 1 envelope (1½ ounces) spaghetti sauce mix
- ½ cup apricot nectar or pineapple juice
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 4 to 6 pork chops

Stir together contents of sauce mix envelope, nectar or juice, and brown sugar; brush over pork chops. Grill over hot coals for 30 to 40 minutes, turning occasionally and brushing with apricot mixture, until tender and well done. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

GOLDEN POTATO SALAD

- 1 package (5 ½ ounces) potatoes au gratin
- 3 cups water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- ½ cup milk
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons vinegar

Combine potato slices from package of potatoes au gratin with water and salt in covered saucepan. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes, until tender. Drain and chill. Add celery and pepper. Combine contents of seasoning mix envelope from package of potatoes au gratin, milk, mayonnaise and vinegar; stir until smooth. Add to potato slices; toss gently. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Frankfurter is the link to economical nutrition

A woman dedicated to balancing the food budget without spending all day in the kitchen can look to the frankfurter for a helping hand. Frankfurters rate high as nourishing and satisfying assistants to hurried homemakers who want to provide quick, easy and economical entrees. The versatile frank, popular as a snack, can be combined with many other foods to achieve status at the dinner table.

Frankfurters require minimum preparation since they're fully cooked prior to packaging. Just heating through will bring them to full-bodied flavor, and with the addition of a bun, they're table ready. However, frankfurters easily can be converted into more exciting entrees.

For a tasty example, try Baked Frank and Bean Wrapups. This three-part harmony of texture and taste provides a trio to everyone's liking. Dad as well as the kids will go for the flavor of frankfurters split, filled with pork and beans and wrapped with bacon.

This is a nutritious entree as well as a tasty one. A hearty serving of two Frank and Bean Wrapups provides 19 to 22 grams of body building protein, well over a third of the recommended daily dietary allowance for most family members. They also contribute iron and the important B vitamins.

Fortunately this is a recipe that doesn't wear out its welcome with repetition. So keep it on file for some of those many times you want to provide a satisfying dish with good flavor at modest cost.

Also remember Baked Frank and Bean Wrapups when you need to solve an emergency meal problem. There's no preliminary procedure to go through. It's a convenient and quick route from easy preparation, to oven, to table.

Cole slaw, tomato slices and relishes provide accompaniments that are quick and peasing. Cornbread from a mix can bake with the wrapups to complete the main course while an ambrosia of slices of peaches and bananas makes a simple and delightful dessert.

BAKED FRANK AND BEAN WRAPUPS

- 1 pound (8 to 10) frankfurters
- 8 to 10 slices bacon
- 1 can (8 ounces) pork and beans
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons instant minced onion
- ½ teaspoon prepared horseradish

Slit franfurters lengthwise, but don't cut through. Combine pork and beans, prepared mustard, brown sugar, minced onion and horseradish. Place a heaping tablespoonful of bean mixture in slit of each frankfurter and wrap a bacon strip around each, securing with small wooden picks. Place frankfurters on rack in roasting pan and bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 18 to 20 minutes. Makes 4 to 5 servings of two frankfurters each.

New fish recipes are a lucky catch

If you're casting about for some interesting new company dishes, this catch of two choice fish recipes is a lucky catch indeed. Each dish has dinner party distinction yet both are remarkaby simple to prepare. They also boast a budget bonus—on a cost per serving basis, no-waste fillets and scallops are less expensive than many meats.

A smooth golden sauce, subtly seasoned with prepared yellow mustard, distinguishes the Baked Sauced Scallops, Wreathed with crunchy bleu cheese-flavored croutons, the dish presents an interesting contrast in tastes and textures. And remember, thaw frozen scallops before adding to the sauce and be sure not to overcook.

In the Baked Sole Florentine, smooth mashed potatoes quickly stirred together using instant mashed potato granules are combined with spinch to make a bed for the fillets. A sprinkling of cheese complements this exciting meal in one.

Either dish served with hot biscuits, glazed carrots and fresh vegetable relishes and topped off with cherry cobbler and coffee, is a balanced, festive and colorful meal.

BAKED SAUCED SCALLOPS

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1¼ cups milk
- ¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
- 2 tablespoons cocktail sherry, if desired
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1½ to 2 pounds scallops
- Cheese croutons or buttered bread crumbs

Melt butter in small saucepan; add flour and stir until smooth. Gradually add milk, sitrring constantly. Add mustard, sherry, and salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until mixture comes to a boil. Combine with scallops. Spoon into shallow 2-quart casserole; sprinkle croutons or bread crumbs around edge. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes, until bubbling hot. Makes 6 servings.

BAKED SOLE FLORENTINE

- 1 envelope instant mashed potato granules
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 package (10 ounce) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
- ½ teaspoon dill weed, if desired
- 1 pound fillet of sole or haddock, thawed
- Salt and black pepper
- ¼ cup shredded Swiss cheese
- Paprika

Prepare mashed potatoes following directions on package except increase salt to 1 teaspoon. Stir in egg, spinach, and dill weed. Spoon into greased shallow baking dish; arrange fish fillets on top of potatoes. Season with salt and pepper; sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until fish flakes easily when pierced with fork. Garnish with paprika. Makes 4 servings.

Dieters' spirits rise when this bread is served

There is nothing as special as the fragrant aroma of home-baked bread—especially to a low-sodium dieter when he knows it's being made especially for him. This delicious herb bread (and its many exciting variations) is guaranteed to perk up that dieter's spirits and add zest to his bland, routine low-sodium diet.

Nondieters will like it just as much as sodium-restricted diners, so make several loaves at a time, freezing for future meals. There's so little sodium in a slice of herb bread—only 4 milligrams—that this recipe fits into even a severely restricted sodium diet. And seasoned salt substitute is rich in potassium—an extra bonus to the dieter, since it eliminates the need for supplemental potassium compounds, so necessary for the low-sodium dieter.

LOW SODIUM HERB BREAD

(Makes 2 loaves, about 20 slices each.)

- 1 cup scalded nonfat milk
- 6 tablespoons soft shortening
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 2½ teaspoons seasoned salt substitute
- 1 package active dry yeast OR 1 cake compressed yeast
- 1 cup very warm (105-115 degrees) or lukewarm water
- 1-3rd cup chopped fresh parsley, chives or green onion tops
- ⅛ teaspoon crumbled rosemary
- 6 cups all-purpose flour (approximately)

Into scalded milk, stir shortening, sugar and seasoned salt substitute. Cool until lukewarm. Sprinkle or crumble yeast into very warm water in large bowl (for compressed yeast, use lukewarm water—80 to 85 degrees); stir until dissolved. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, parsley and rosemary. Add 3 cups flour; beat with spoon until smooth. Stir in remaining 3 cups flour. If dough is still too moist to handle, work in a little more flour.

Turn onto lightly floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl; brush lightly with salad oil. Cover with towel; let rise in warm place (about 85 degrees) until double in bulk, about 1½ hours. Punch down; turn rounded side up; cover; let rise in warm place a second time for about 30 minutes (the second rising is not necessary, but produces a better textured, finer loaf).

Knead well again; divide dough into 2 portions; mold into a loaf. Place in two greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pans.

Brush with salad oil if you wish a soft crust (and can afford the extra calories).

Cover with towel. Set in warm place (about 85 degrees); let rise until sides of dough have reached top of pan and center is well rounded above pan. Bake at 400 degrees about 30 minutes or until done. Remove from pans to rack at once. (If soft crust is desired and you can't afford the calories, cover bread with damp towel for 5 minutes. Wrap when cooled, so loaves won't dry out).

The sodium content will be reduced even more if distilled water is used in place of ordinary water. The sodium content will be increased if sweet butter or unsalted margarine is used in place of

FOR WHITE BREAD: Use salt substitute instead of seasoned variety. Omit parsley and rosemary.

Make these rolls and variety shapes with either the herb or white bread doughs:

SWIRL BREAD: Divide dough into 3 portions. Cut one portion in half; roll each half into a 24-inch strip. Twist strip; wind into a coil in center of an 8 or 9-inch round layer pan, well greased with shortening. Twist second strip and coil around first strip. Use remaining portions of dough for 2 more swirl breads. Let rise to double its bulk; bake at 350 degrees 35 to 45 minutes.

FRENCH BRAID BREAD: Use ½ or 1-3rd dough, depending on size braid you wish. Roll into rectangle ½" thick. Cut into 4 strips about 12 inches long; place on greased baking sheet or in shallow greased baking dish. Braid strips together, sealing ends. Sprinkle lightly with sesame seeds. Let rise and bake at 375 degrees about 25 minutes.

COCKTAIL LOAF: Using about ¼ dough, shape into long, slender roll about 15 inches long. Slash top at 3-inch intervals with sharp knife; sprinkle top with Seasoned Salt Substitute. Place seam side down on greased cookie sheet. Curve ends in to form crescent or make "snail" shape if you wish variety. Let rise and bake at 375 degrees about 20 minutes.

QUICK CLOVERLEAFS: Shape dough into 2-inch balls. Place in greased muffin cups; brush with oil. Let rise and bake 400 degrees about 15 to 20 minutes.

PARKER HOUSE: Roll out dough on floured surface to about ¼-inch thickness. Cut into 3-inch rounds, with biscuit cutter. Brush with melted shortening. Mark a crease with dull edge of knife to one side of center of each round. Fold so top half slightly overlaps; press edges together at crease. Place close together on greased baking sheet. Let rise and bake at 400 degrees about 15 to 20 minutes.

HERB STICKS: Roll herb bread dough ½-inch thick. Cut into 6 x ½-inch strips. Pinch each strip into pencil-like shape. Then place fingers on ends of each strip; gently roll strip back and forth, moving fingers to center, then out to ends again, to form evenly shaped 10 x ⅜-inch stick. Place sticks 1 inch apart on greased cookie sheet. Slash tops in 2 places; sprinkle tops with seasoned salt substitute. Let rise and bake at 400 degrees about 15 to 20 minutes.

DINNER BRAIDS: Roll out dough to ½-inch thickness. Cut into 5 x ½-inch strips. Braid strips together in groups of 3, sealing ends. Place on greased baking sheets; sprinkle with sesame, caraway or poppy seeds, if desired. Let rise and bake at 400 degrees about 12 to 15 minutes.

Rice dish is versatile

Those who enjoy eating find good recipes turning up in many places. For example, a delicious orange-raisin rice was whipped up by the chef of the Lakeland Yacht Club in Lakeland, Fla., as a special treat for members of the Florida Citrus Commission and their guests. The chef and FCC members generously shared the recipe with those who later also enjoyed the refreshing and different rice dish. Orange-raisin rice goes well with fish and meats and Chinese dishes.

ORANGE - RAISIN RICE

- 1 tablespoon shredded orange rind
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1½ cups water
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ½ cup seedless white raisins
- 1 cup raw rice

To shred orange rind, remove very thin orange-colored rind from orange with potato peeler; cut into thin strips. Melt butter in saucepan. Add orange juice, water, salt, sugar, raisins and orange rind. Bring to a boil. Add rice slowly. Cover; reduce heat and cook 25 minutes until rice is tender and liquid has been absorbed. Makes 6 servings.

Crunchy topping for your sundae

Add a little crazy crunch to the top of those summer ice cream sundaes. Just sprinkle a couple of spoonfuls of granola over each dairy delight!

Make salads fun for the small fry

Salads seem to bore small children and it often is difficult to slow the youngsters down long enough to feed them a nutritious meal during summer playtime. Quick dunking foods served on decorated plates and in cups help lure them to eat. Most children enjoy embellishing their fare with sprinkle-ons or like to dunk them. Added fun comes when the young ones can laugh at cartoons and riddles while eating. Cut up bananas, for example, into bitesize chunks or serve fresh pineapple, raw carrot and celery strips to dunk in a variety of dressings served in paper cups.

Bitesize banana, carrot and celery strips make fun dunking salad.

SALAD FUN

ROSY MAYONNAISE

1 cup mayonnaise
1-3rd cup pineapple juice
3 tablespoons finely chopped maraschino cherries

Combine all ingredients in a bowl and beat until smooth and well blended. Chill until ready to serve. Makes one and one-half cups.

CHEESECAKE DRESSING

1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, at room temperature
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
¼ cup milk or cream

Mash cream cheese and sugar until soft and fluffy. Stir in lemon rind. Gradually beat in milk until mixture is smooth. Chill until ready to serve. Makes about 1 cup.

PEANUT BUTTER DRESSING

1-3rd cup peanut butter
1-3rd cup mayonnaise
1-3rd cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Combine all ingredients and beat until smooth and well blended. Chill until ready to serve. Makes 1 cup.

Sandwiches can be frozen to be safe

Brown baggers and picnic goers taking sandwiches on outings must fight summertime heat. Without refrigeration, sandwich fillings wilt and chance undesirable growth of bacteria causing foodborne illness.

For safety's sake, freeze sandwiches that must travel in summer heat for more than three or four hours. Sandwiches are put in the freezer the night before; then in the morning, sandwiches are put in the picnic cooler or lunch box. Within a couple of hours, they'll be thawed and ready to eat.

To prevent soggy fillings, spread a thin layer of margarine to cover filling side of bread. Use filling of cold meat or poultry, peanut butter or cream cheese.

Avoid cooked egg white which becomes tough, also mayonnaise and some salad dressings which separate. Raw vegetables can lose their crispness.

Wrap sandwiches in plastic bags, excluding as much air as possible, and fasten tightly.

Or, place sandwich in center of square of freezer paper, foil, or plastic wrap. Bring edges of paper together. Fold two edges together, overlapping several times, until they fold flat on sandwich. Turn package over and fold corners back. Fold ends back several times until they fold flat on sandwich.

Put sandwiches in the freezer. They may be frozen up to two weeks. Two sandwich suggestions by Mrs. Higgins that keep best when refrigeration is impossible are peanut butter and jelly or cheese.

Thompson grape harvest under way

Thompson Seedless grapes are now being harvested full blast in the Delano area. The next two to three weeks should be the best time to buy them.

From Delano to Fresno harvest of the seedless grape crop should supply markets through September. Storage houses will continue to furnish retailers with Thompsons through October.

The quality of Delano grapes is considered average to good, easily meeting the minimum requirement for sugar content. Berry sizes generally are medium to large, and very desirable for consumers.

A little hint on buying Thompson Seedless grapes — those berries with an amber blush indicate maximum flavor and sweetness. However, marketing of such grapes is difficult. Maximum ripeness of Thompson causes "shattering," or grapes falling off the bunch. The lighter the straw-like color and the closer to amber the color of the berry, the sweeter the treat.

Warm weather several months ago contributed to a heavier harvest of Thompsons this year, as compared to last year. Delano has the largest acreage of all California districts, and should reach peak production by the end of this month. It will be followed by the Fresno-Dinuba-Reedley district about the first of September.

Prices at present are reasonable, and the fruit plentiful. Thompsons are sellling from 43 to 69 cents per pound at retail, and this is not expected to increase because of the labor situation unless supplies are drastically curtailed.

A little less than half of the total Thompsons produced in California are sent to the fresh market. The remainder of the berries are processed, either dried as raisins, crushed for wine or brandy or canned in fruit cocktail.

Here is a healthy and nutritious salad using canned fruit cocktail for a summer treat.

BANANA SPLIT SALAD

For each salad line banana split dish with lettuce and top with shredded lettuce that has been tossed with oil and vinegar dressing. Split 1 banana lengthwise and moisten with ascorbic acid.

Roll banana in granola cereal and place each half along side of dish. Using a scoop, place 3 balls of cottage cheese down center of dish. Sprinkle ¼ cup fruit cocktail over cottage cheese. Serve with honey lemon yogurt dressing.

For honey lemon yogurt dressing, blend 1 quart yogurt with ½ cup honey and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Garnish each serving with poppy seeds, if desired.

Safety tips for barbecuing

Going to barbecue on your balcony, out in the backyard or at the beach this summer season? If so, the National Safety Council has these suggestions for safer summer cookouts.

To start a charcoal fire, use wood chips or shavings, or an electric starter. If a liquid is used, make sure its for that purpose only. Never use gasoline or lighter fluid. Also, never add starter fluid once the charcoal is lighted due to the danger of flare ups. And, never use a charcoal grill indoors!

Prices high everywhere

If you think America's food prices are too high, be happy you don't live in Japan. Tokyo retailers were charging $2.25 to $2.65 for a single peach. Prices are 50 per cent higher than in 1972.

As a meat substitute

Catfish is gaining status

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The ugly, whiskered catfish, introduced into California waters in 1874, has reached a new peak of popularity.

Beef shortages and threats of soaring prices have turned the consumer to possible new meat substitutes and leading the list, according to the state Department of Fish and Game, is the catfish.

Ralph "Catfish" Young, spokesman for the department who works out of Long Beach, attributes the new, surging interest in catfish to its easy catchability and wide availability across the state.

The state spent about $275,000 in catfish programs last year, stocking Southern California waters with half a million, yearling fish. Smaller ones also were planted throughout Northern and Central California.

"There is a tremendous interest in catfish," Young said. "We've had quite a few inquiries about where to catch them and requests for a free catfish recipe booklet are running about 300 a day."

Young advises that the catfish, distinguished from other fish by its smooth, scaleless body and eight long whiskers, can be taken on ordinary or even the crudest of tackle. He suggests such baits as mackerel, live bluegills, minnows, crayfish, clams, "in fact they seem to like something that smells a bit. They really go for odors."

The catfish, Young adds, is "very sensitive to vibrations and that type of thing. They seem to hear noises. You've got to be very, very quiet and very, very patient. Patience is the essence."

Young, who has tried most of the 21 recipes he helped compile in the booklet (available by writing the department at 350 Golden Shore Long Beach, Calif. 90802), calls the catfish "one of the best tasting I've ever eaten. It has a chickenish texture and it's rather delicate. I think it's very delicious. I like fish and I think it's one of the best."

Two of Young's favorite recipes are Mother Hubbard's Secret and The Colonel's Favorite.

The ingredients for Mother Hubbard's Secret are: 3 pounds skinned catfish fillets, 1 gallon water, 1 cup salt, ½ cup beer or ale, ½ cup prepared mustard, 2 cloves finely minded garlic, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce, ½ cup toasted sesame seeds and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley and paprika.

To put it all together add salt to water and stir until dissolved. Pour brine over fish and let stand for 30 minutes. Remove fish from brine and dry. Combine beer, mustard, garlic, Worcestershire sauce, liquid hot pepper sauce, ¼ cup sesame seeds and parsley. Dip fish in mustard mixture and sprinkle with remaining ¼ cup sesame seeds and paprika. Place on well greased grill inside smoke oven. Cook in a very slow oven at 250 degrees for one hour or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve with hot biscuits. Serves six or more.

The ingredients for the Colonel's Favorite are:

2 pounds catfish steaks, ½ teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 2 cups cooked rice, 2 tablespoons grated onion, ½ teaspoon curry powder, 5 thin lemon slices, ¼ cup butter or margarine and chopped parsley.

To put it all together cut the fish into serving size portions place in a well greased baking dish 13-by-9 by 2 inches. Sprinkle fish with salt and pepper. Combine rice, onion, and curry powder and spread over fish. Top with lemon slices and dot with butter. Cover. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees for 25 to 35 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove cover the last few minutes of cooking to allow for slight browning. Sprinkle with parsley. Serves six.

Save energy as you cook

When it comes to cooking, the power companies offer a few tips to conserve energy during the latest crisis: use a portable grill or fry pan instead of the oven. When the oven is used, cook as many dishes as you can at the same time. And, avoid using a large unit for a little pan.

However, the dairy industry suggests ways to avoid cooking altogether: Use your imagination and dairy products right from the refrigerator for some super summer meals. Fresh fruits and vegetables complement such dairy products as cottage cheese, yogurt, sour cream, natural cheese, or ice cream and sherbet for tasty snacks, salads, main dishes or desserts.

WE BAKE ENOUGH SWEET ROLLS AND COFFEE CAKES FOR A MONTH OF SUNDAYS.

Rise and shine! At Van de Kamp's, we bake over 20 "good morning" things like Cinnamon Rolls and Danish, Bear Claws and Butterhorns, Dutch Rings, Walnut Swirls, Rosettes...it just goes on and on. And whether you eat them nestled next to scrambled eggs and sausage or just heaped with melty butter, you'll find every one's worth getting up for.

Mostly, that's because we still bake our sweet rolls and coffee cakes like we've been baking them for over half a century—with real eggs and plenty of just-churned butter and fresh fruits.

Even our rolling pin's still in use. So c'mon. This Sunday, or any day of the week, treat yourself and the whole family to a deliciously old-fashioned good morning. From Van de Kamp's.

Organization is key to feeding crowd

Whenever there's a beach house, a cabin on a lake or a backyard pool, there are certain to be frequent and large gatherings of guests. Fixing meals for a crowd can be child's play if you let the guests participate in the preparation and take advantage of convenience foods, time-saving recipes and toss-away serving accessories.

Let the main course be a cook-it-yourself barbecue favorite such as hamburgers, frankfurters, chicken, steak or fish. Accompany it with a hearty tossed salad or a marinated vegetable platter and an assortment of relishes, cheeses, breads and rolls.

For an effortless dessert with great appeal, serve ice cream with a selection of toppings made with bright, colorful jams, jellies and preserves. Guests will enjoy assembling their own sundaes if you set out the fixings including disposable serving pieces such as paper cups and foil tart pans.

Recipes are unnecessary but, for those who prefer to follow listings of ingredients, here are some suggestions:

TEMPTING SUNDAE TARTS

- 1 cup orange marmalade
- ¾ cup drained canned mandarin orange slices
- 12 supermarket 3-inch tart shells in foil pans
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream

Combine marmalade and orange slices. Stir until well mixed. Refrigerate or serve immediately. For each serving, place a tablespoon of marmalade fruit sauce in each tart shell. Top each with a scoop of ice cream and additional sauce.

For other flavor combinations, substitute equal amounts of fruit preserves and fresh, canned or frozen and thawed fruit which has been cut into small pieces and drained thoroughly. Suggested combinations: apricot preserves and crushed pineapple; blueberry preserves and blueberries; pineapple preserves and peaches; raspberry preserves and strawberries. Makes 12 servings.

FRUITED BANANA BOATS

- 1 cup raspberry preserves
- ½ cup canned mixed fruits for salads, drained
- 12 bananas
- 1 quart strawberry ice cream
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream
- Whipped topping
- Chopped nuts

Combine raspberry preserves and mixed fruits. Stir until well mixed. Refrigerate or serve immediately. For each serving, arrange a quartered banana in a paper boat- or bowl-shaped dish. Top with a scoop of strawberry ice cream, a scoop of vanilla ice cream and spoonfuls of raspberry-fruit sauce, garnish with whipped topping and chopped nuts. Makes 12 servings.

PISTACHIO MINT CUPS

- 2 cups mint jelly
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- 1 quart chocolate chip mint ice cream
- Whipped topping
- 1 cup chopped pistachio nuts

Combine jelly and water in mixer bowl; beat at low speed until blended (about 1 minute). Refrigerate or serve immediately. For each serving, place a scoop of ice cream in a paper cup. Top with mint sauce, whipped topping and chopped nuts. Makes 12 servings.

How to lose your customers

Buyers are getting bugged! According to a survey conducted by the Council of Better Business Bureaus to which approximately 70,000 people responded, poor product performance, advertising that misleads or claims too much, and poor personal service in store, really bothers shoppers these days.

To Our Customers
We are short of beef in our display cases because we are unable to purchase beef at the packers beef price ceilings which were set at the time our retail ceiling prices were set during phase three.
Thriftimart is unable to pay in excess of a suppliers legal ceiling price or resort to any other practice which would circumvent the intent of the price ceiling regulations.
In our opinion, not only is it illegal, but also unwise for any retail store to absorb any costs above a packers ceiling price. This practice only helps to increase the already high cost of live cattle, which in turn, will eventually reflect in higher prices to the consumer.

Teen-agers will take to fun cooking

The teen-agers at your house could pe persuaded to take on cooking, once they learn that preparing good food can be fun and imaginative.

Here's an easy way to get a boy or girl started. The new skillet-type dinners take the drudgery out of preparation. They allow the inexperienced cook—as well as the expert—plenty of scope for creativity. Oriental dinners are newest in the skillet-quick dinner category, and a good introduction to Far East cuisines.

For a young cook's first try, home economists suggest a skillet-quick Japanese specialty — sukiyaki. Sukiyaki starts with a packaged combination of sauce mix and Oriental vegetables. You'll need to add one pound of beef—sirloin, round, or flank steak—to complete it. The packaged ingredients plus the meat will make four one-cup servings or five ¾-cup servings.

Once your youngster has mastered the basic technique, other ingredients can be added to give sukiyaki a personal touch.

Stir the sauce mix (from the package) into 1 cup cold water; set aside. Cut the beef into very thin strips—it's easier if the meat is partially frozen.

In a large skillet, brown the beef in two tablespoons oil. Add the sauce mixture. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Reduce heat, and add the well-drained Oriental vegetables, mixing gently. Simmer until hot, stirring occasionally. Serve over rice, with hearts of lettuce salad, rice pudding, and tea.

Your budding cook can try sukiyaki over hot cooked fine egg noodles or shredded Chinese celery cabbage cooked quickly in a small amount of oil. Or, something different can be added: tomato wedges, fresh spinach leaves cooked quickly in a little oil, or thinly sliced radishes.

Let color be guide to Vitamin A

Vitamin A is in short supply in at least 50 per cent of U. S. households, according to University of California Home Adviser Sharon Higgins.

Shoppers can let color be their guide to buying foods with vitamin A. Carotenes are used by the body to make vitamin A and carotenes are yellow or yellow-orange in color. Orange foods such as carrots, squash, butter, egg yolks, and cheese are obvious vitamin A rich foods.

The deeper the yellow, the more vitamin A. In some vegetables, like spinach and broccoli, the carotene is masked by green chlorophyll. According to the Los Angeles County Home Advisor, the deeper the green, the more vitamin A. All dark green leafy vegetables are especially rich sources of vitamin A.

Vitamin A helps keep skin clear and smooth, helps prevent night blindness and is required for growth, adds Mrs. Higgins.

For vitamin A, best food sources are carrots, cooked greens, winter squash, sweet potato, and cantaloupe. Also important for vitamin A are broccoli, pumpkin and apricots. For smaller, but important amounts use asparagus, endive, tomatoes, apricots, yellow peaches, and chili peppers.

Since vitamin A is stored by the body, one serving of liver provides enough vitamin A to allow a person to consume only half his daily requirements for two weeks.

Give lift to potato salad

Put a little pizzazz in your favorite cool and creamy potato salad recipe with a flavor lift from nutritious natural cheese. Chunks of cheddar or Swiss, tossed into the salad, add a mild to sharp flavor, or a sweet nut like flavor, besides increasing the nutritional value. Cheese is esnecially rich in protein, calcium, phosphorous and vitamin A. It is one of nature's most versatile foods, nutritious and readily digested.

The cod fish ball eases the budget

It is delightful the way certain foods are described in literature. For example, cod is called "salt-water fish with a very low social rating" in one tome although it is considered one of the most important of commercial fish. Depending upon how it is cooked, cod can be good or gagging. In today's market, its price is right. Try Cod Fish Balls or Cod Fish Cakes with a Spicy Tomato Sauce as a taste change and to ease the budget.

COD FISH BALLS

- 2 ounces salted boneless cod fish
- water
- 2 cups diced potato
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 tablespoon margarine
- Dash pepper
- ¼ cup flour
- 1 tablespoon corn meal
- 1 pint (about) corn oil
- Spicy Tomato Sauce (recipe below)

Cover cod fish with cold water and soak 1 hour; drain. Put soaked cod fish in 2-quart saucepan; cover with water. Bring to boil and boil 15 minutes. Drain and flake, if needed. Cook diced potato in boiling water 10 minutes or until tender; drain well. Mash together cod fish and potato.

Stir in egg, margarine and pepper. Beat until light and fluffy. Shape into 2-inch balls. Mix flour and corn meal. Coat balls with flour mixture. Pour corn oil into heavy flat-bottomed 3-quart saucepan, deep fryer or 10-inch deep skillet, filling utensil no more than one-third full.

Heat over medium heat to 375-degrees or follow manufacturer's directions for electric frypan or deep fryer.

Carefully add cod fish balls, a few at a time. Fry about 5 minutes or until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot with Spicy Tomato Sauce. Makes 9 to 10 balls or 3 to 4 servings.

Cod Fish Cakes

Shape mixture into 2 and one-half-inch cakes. Coat both sides lightly with flour mixture. Heat one-fourth cup (about) corn oil in large 10-inch heavy skillet over medium heat or follow manufacturer's directions for electric frypan. Place fish cakes carefully into hot corn oil and fry about 2 minutes on each side or until golden brown. Add additional corn oil if needed. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 10 to 12 cakes.

SPICY TOMATO SAUCE

- 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
- 2 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon light corn syrup
- 1 tablespoon margarine
- 1 teaspoon basil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 bay leaf

Stir together all ingredients in saucepan. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer, stirring occasionally, until sauce has thickened, about 20 minutes. Makes 2 cups.

Brush flavor on vegetables

Fresh vegetable kabobs cooked on the barbecue grill are flavored when brushed with melted butter. But they're even tastier when the melted butter has other flavors added! So, for a tastier kabob, brush with parmesan-butter baster. Combine ½ cup (1 stick) melted butter with ¼ cup grated parmesan cheese, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and ½ teaspoon leaf oregano. Then cook your favorite vegetable kabob combination, brushing occasionally with the butter taster for a great cookout meat accompaniment.

Dairy foods help dieters

Need to diet to look a little better in that bikini on the beach? If so, remember to reduce sensibly! Adopt a diet of low-cal, high-energy foods packed with nutrients to prevent between-meal hunger and dieter's fatigue. Dairy products can be a dieter's most valuable ally. Milk and other milk products such as yogurt, cottage cheese or cheese are leading sources of body-building calcium and protein, riboflavin and vitamin A. Dairy food dishes will stick to your ribs and help you stick to your diet.

As Selma sees it

Counting calories isn't the only way

DEAR SELMA:
Is it not true that counting calories is the only way to govern one's intake of food values?
Mrs. J. W.

Dear Mrs. J. W.:
Counting calories to control the intake of food values is one way—not the only way—to approach weight control. Calorie counting finds us substituting candy for cottage cheese and vegetables. It does not guarantee a balanced diet and it does not account for the fact that, as fat people, we are lazy and we give up too easily at something requiring constant mathematics. I prefer something easier, where counting of calories and worrying about food values has been done for me to ensure that I will have a balanced program of eating and still lose weight.

DEAR SELMA:
How can I eat in a restaurant or while traveling?
Mrs. B. G.

Dear Mrs. B. G.:
I have found that it is easy to get the foods we need while losing or maintaining our weight. It isn't necessary to be frightened about eating out. Order the food required on your diet. Meats can be broiled and there are many types of vegetables, salads and fresh fruits available. If they bring your steak or fish floating in butter, remember that you are allergic to butter—you break out in fat. Send it back.

Stroganoff combination is appetizing

A different beef stroganoff combines brussels sprouts with sauteed meat and mushrooms, served over hot buttered noodles. The appetizing combination is topped with a sour cream-wine sauce for a special and lower cost midweek family dish.

BEEF AND SPROUT STROGANOFF

- 1½ pounds boneless sirloin steak about ¾ inch thick
- Butter or margarine
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- ¼ cup water
- ¾ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced, or 2 cans (3 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 packages (10 ounces each) frozen brussels sprouts
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon basil leaves
- 8 ounces medium wide noodles (about 4 cups)
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 quarts boiling water
- ¼ cup white wine (optional)
- ½ cup milk
- 1½ cups dairy sour cream

Slice steak diagonally into slices ⅛-inch thick. Place slices between two pieces of waxed paper or foil and pound with rolling pin until very thin. Cut into 3-inch strips. Set aside. Melt two tablespoons butter in large skillet. Saute onion until crisp-tender. Add meat and brown on both sides. Add ¼ cup water, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add mushrooms, brussels sprouts, pepper, salt and basil. Cover and simmer another 15 minutes or until sprouts are tender. Add more water if needed. Meanwhile, add noodles and one tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil.

Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Transfer to serving dish and mix with one tablespoon softened butter. Spoon meat-brussels sprouts mixture around outside edge of serving dish, piling noodles in center. Cover and keep hot. Add wine to drippings in skillet. Bring to boil and simmer about 30 seconds. Add milk and heat almost to boiling. Remove from heat and blend in sour cream. Spoon sauce over meat and noodles. Makes 6 servings.

Try celery for crispest of salads

An all-purpose salad is crackly crisp and sweet with a combination of sliced celery, raisins, chopped walnuts and carrots. Dressing has a sour cream base. Serve it with roast pork, chicken or a cheese main dish or with cold cuts. This salad does not wilt quickly so it is a good choice for a buffet dish.

CELERY SLAW

- 3 cups thinly sliced Florida celery
- ½ cup coarsely shredded carrots
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
- 1-3rd cup salad oil
- 2 tablespoons wine vinegar
- 1¾ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ½ cup dairy sour cream

In a small bowl combine celery with carrots, raisins and walnuts; set aside. Blend together oil, vinegar, salt and black pepper. Slowly stir in sour cream. Pour over celery mixture; toss lightly. Serve with meat, poultry or fish. Makes 6 portions.

Frozen sweet that's chewy

Make a summer's eve supper end sweetly. Dissolve 1 envelope unflavored gelatine in ¾ cup hot juice or sherry. add 1 pint softened vanilla ice cream by spoonfuls and stir to melt. Fold in ½ cup snipped pitted prunes. Spoon into dessert dishes and chill.

Italians have a word for cheesecake—low-calorie

Yes, it is possible to have your cheesecake and eat it too—without the usual zillion calories a slice. This Italian-inspired cheesecake manages the trick nicely, thanks to ricotta cheese and fresh California peaches.

There's no denying that everyone's old standby cream cheese cheesecake recipe is excellent—or that it's loaded with calories. The Italians have a different idea. They prefer their cakes lighter and zestier—and they serve them, typically, as an accompaniment to fresh fruit. (Italians are, of course, among the world's more notable fruit lovers.) Put the lighter-cake concept and fresh fruit together and you have Italian Fresh Peach Cheesecake, capped with ripe summer peaches.

The use of ricotta, the classic Italian low-fat "cottage cheese," in this cheesecake makes it rich-tasting—but lessens the cheese caloric load considerably. (The cheese is readily available in most areas but if you can't find any, just substitute low-fat cottage cheese.) The ripe peaches add their own special—and low-caloric—juiciness and sweetness to the whole affair. It's a rather astonishing fact that, for all their sweetness, a medium-sized fresh peach has only 38 calories, making peaches the darlings of weight-worrying epicures.

And—with the protein and calcium in ricotta and the good quantity of vitamin A provided by the peaches, this cheesecake is not only delectable enough to top off a dinner party, it's nutritious enough for a.m. and p.m. snacks without too many attacks of remorse.

The fresh peaches called for in this recipe come, appropriately, from California, the nation's own "Mediterranean" area, and one of its largest peach-producing states. Californians, like Italians, know their fresh fruit. A tip from California: Home-can or freeze fresh peaches while they're available, from now through September. They're probably the most versatile of all fruits; "put up" in a light syrup, they do have more calories than fresh peaches, but their fresh flavor and their versatility endure.

For more exciting ways to use and serve fresh California fruits this summer, write for your free copy of a colorful new 48-page booklet. Prepared by the growers of California fruits, this beautifully illustrated booklet contains more than 100 tested recipes. Please send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to "Fruits of Summer," P.O. Box 4640, Sacramento, Ca. 95825.

ITALIAN FRESH PEACH CHEESECAKE

Cinnamon Crust Crumbs (recipe follows)
4 eggs
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ pounds (3 cups) ricotta cheese or low-fat cottage cheese, pressed through a fine sieve
1 cup evaporated milk
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated fresh lemon peel
sliced
Powdered sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Press all but ¾ cup of the crumbs firmly over bottom of a 9-inch spring-form pan. Bake 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on a rack. Meanwhile, in a large mixing bowl, beat eggs until light-colored.

Gradually add sugar, beating until mixture is thick and light. Blend in salt and ricotta, then evaporated milk. Add flour, vanilla, lemon juice and lemon peel; mix well. Pour mixture over cooled crust.

Sprinkle reserved crumbs evenly over top. Bake at 350 degrees 1 hour and 10 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Turn off oven and leave oven door ajar; allow cake to cool in oven for about 2 hours. Cover cake and chill.

At serving time, remove sides of pan. Arrange peaches over top of cake and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Makes 10 servings.

CINNAMON CRUST CRUMBS. Whirl in a blender or crush into fine crumbs 1 package (6 ounces) zwieback. Pour crumbs into a mixing bowl and blend in ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon and 1-3rd cup melted butter.

Solon fined, sentenced to day in jail

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Sen. Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., was fined $110 Monday and sentenced to one day in jail on a drunken driving charge.

Superior Judge Williby Case Jr. said the jail sentence was mandatory under state law. He gave Fannin 30 days within which to report for serving his jail time.

Fanning was arrested last Nov. 17 by an officer who later accused the senator being abusive and threatening his job. A breath analyzer test indicated a blood alcohol content of .135 per cent. The legal limit is .10.

But the charge was dismissed after three doctors submitted affidavits stating that Fannin was taking a medicine, zyloprin, which could affect the test.

This was disputed by a police chemist, and the dismissal caused controversy. A grand jury began an investigation of the circumstances, and County Attorney Moise Berger reinstated the charges last week.

An explanation of Sunday's qualifying

The two 100-mile qualifying races for the California 500 will be held this Sunday.

The 500 itself is a week from Sunday. Relatively little publicity has been forthcoming this year. The track, as almost everyone knows, is being run by a new group after the old one was unable to meet its bond obligation payments and had to throw in the towel.

The two 100-mile qualifying races are an entirely new departure from the usual method of qualifying for Indy type races. It's never been done before and the auto racing world will be watching with interest.

Previous procedure has always been to have the drivers with the fastest averages for the four qualifying laps on the first day of qualifications start in that order on race day.

Anyone qualifying on subsequent qualifying days was placed in the starting grid BEHIND all of those who qualified the first day.

Under the new format, the drivers will drive the qualifying laps Saturday. But there ends the similarity. Instead of four laps, they'll drive only two. That way everybody should get ample chance to qualify.

True, the three fastest drivers do clinch the one-two-three (first row) positions Saturday. But wait, we've just begun.

Everybody races Sunday

The three fastest are still expected to race Sunday in the two 100-mile events. The reason being there is considerable money and championship points to be won.

The difference Sunday is that everybody but the three fastest will also be racing to determine their actual starting positions for the California 500 Sept. 2.

Drivers with the fourth through the 18th fastest speeds Saturday are guaranteed places in rows two through six for the 500. But Sunday's two 100-mile events will determine their exact position.

Drivers with the 19th through 27th fastest speeds are guaranteed places in rows seven through nine. But the exact position will be determined in one of the Sunday races.

Makeup of those races will be determined through the speeds at which the drivers qualify Saturday. The odd numbers (fastest, third fastest, fifth fastest, etc.) will be in the first race at 1 p.m.

The even numbers (second fastest, fourth fastest, sixth fastest, etc.) will be in the second race which will start at 3 p.m.

A driver who, for example, had the fourth fastest time Saturday might place poorly or even be forced to drop out of this race Sunday. As a result he would be placed lower (depending on his finish), but no lower than 18th (outside, sixth row) for the start of the 500.

A driver who qualified at the 19th to 27th fastest speed Saturday can move up no higher than 19th position (inside, seventh row) no matter what he does Sunday. By the same token, he can wind up no farther back than 27th (outside, ninth row) for the 500.

Room for more

The last six starting positions will be determined entirely from results of the two 100-mile qualifying races Sunday of cars who qualified at speeds below the fastest 27 Saturday or qualified during the final qualifications Sunday morning.

But that's still not all!

It's no wonder the final format of the qualifications was not agreed upon (between drivers and USAC) until Tuesday morning.

And in spite of the paucity of publicity, it should make for the most exciting qualifications ever for an Indy type car.

The two 100-mile events Sunday both count toward the National Driving Championship and points will be given.

Purse for each 100-mile race is $25,000 with the winner getting 26½ percent or $6,875. The leader, or leaders in each race will earn $125.00 for each lap they lead the race.

So the pole winner or either of the other two front-row qualifyers Saturday can pick up some pretty good money plus championship points Sunday.

The pole winner, whoever he may be, and the driver who earns the outside position on the first row Saturday will be in the 1 p.m. race. The number two qualifier, who earns the middle position in the first row Saturday, will be in the 3 p.m. event.

OMS drivers clear 190 m.p.h.

ONTARIO — Speeds over 190 miles an hour, the first accident of the year, and the absence of the "Super Team" marked the second day of practice at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Lee Kunzman, who held the fastest time of the day of 178.214 miles per hour on the opening day Monday, came out in the late afternoon Tuesday to claim the top speed again.

Driving the No. 55 Cobre Firestone Offy, Kunsman took to the track just before it was closed for the day and grabbed the speed lead from Lloyd Ruby with a 190.904 clocking.

Prior to Lee's final run of the day, Ruby had toured the 2.5-mile course at 190.856 miles per hour. But they were the only two drivers to top the 190 barrier.

Other top times went to Mark Donohue (188.466), Gordon Johncock (186.540), Bobby Unser (186.428) and Sam Posey (184.729).

But as Johnny Parsons was climbing toward the leaders in his Lodestar Offy just a half hour before the closing of the track, he hit the wall between turns one and two. He walked away uninjured, but his car was towed to the garages for repair on the right rear area.

"The back end got away from me," Parsons said. "I don't know if something broke or if I just lost it."

Previous to hitting the wall, Parsons had been clocked at 183.460 miles per hour.

The yellow light that went out for Parsons crash was the sixth of the day, but it only lasted nine minutes.

That gave Kunzman the chance to take the lead in speed again.

Altogether there were seven yellow lights which interrupted the day's session, four for track inspection and two for Mike Hiss and Roger McCluskey, both of whom stalled on the backstretch. McCluskey's yellow ended the day of practice.

There was a total of 34 cars on the track for the day, 20 of which made their first appearances.

But one of the big teams was missing—the Vel's Parnelli Jones threesome of Joe Leonard, Al Unser and Mario Andretti.

Their cars were reportedly undergoing major suspension modifications.

PRACTICE NOTES: The speed limit was lifted afternoon the lunch break Tuesday, but not before four more drivers went over the 175 mile per hour ceiling. A total of nine drivers were flagged off the course for going over the limit. . .

Coming to Ontario, the top five drivers in the USAC Championship Money standings include Gordon Johncock ($224,658), Roger McCluskey ($145,318) A.J. Foyt ($123,133), Billy Vukovich ($118,979) and Johnny Rutherford ($62,369) . . .

One more spot was filled on the entry field Tuesday when Bill Simpson hooped in the No. 99 Joe Hunt Magneto Offy and cruised the track at 181.320 miles per hour. . . .

The sand which had plagued the first day of practice didn't seem to bother the drivers in the afternoon Tuesday. That was one reason the USAC officials didn't lift the speed limit until after the afternoon break, hoping the sand would be cleared out by the morning practice. . .

The popular consensus around the track was that the 200 mile per hour mark should be reached by Thursday or Friday. . .

Mark Donohue and Indy Rookie of the Year Graham MacRae were given permission Tuesday to qualify late Friday afternoon. Both have a Can-Am race this weekend at Elkhart Lake, Wisc.

L.A.'s lead still intact after loss

NEW YORK (UPI)—On the strength of Bill Russell's third homer of the season, Don Sutton and the Los Angeles Dodgers had a 1-0 lead over the New York Mets after seven and a half innings.

Sutton walked John Milner in the eighth inning Tuesday night and Ed Kranepool beat out a bunt. Milner advanced to third on a sacrifice and scored on Don Hahn's sacrifice fly to tie the game.

In the ninth, Sutton walked Wayne Garrett with one out and he too second on an infield out. Manager Walter Alston conferred with Sutton and they gave an intentional pass to Rusty Staub, choosing to pitch to Milner, the next man up.

Milner singled in Garrett with the winning run in a 2-1 victory and the Dodgers now nurse a two-game lead over Cincinnati, which lost Tuesday to Chicago.

The Mets got only three hits off Sutton in the first seven innings and five in all. He took his eighth loss against 15 wins.

Ray Sadecki went the distance for the Mets, running his record to 3-2. It was the first complete game for the veteran southpaw since Sept. 13, 1971. He allowed only four hits.

The walks to Milner and Garrett hurt the Dodgers badly but the decision to walk Staub in the ninth was the strategy that killed them. Milner seemed amused when Sutton walked Staub to get at him—the cleanup batter.

"At that," he said, "I guess if I was pitching I would do the same thing. Staub hits for better average and he doesn't strike out as much. They tried to jam me with breaking stuff but I've been backing up a little and getting my hits. I'm pretty satisfied with the way I've been going lately. I was out for five weeks with a pulled hamstring early in the season and that hurt me."

Milner got two singles, scored a run and drove in another in three at-bats against Sutton.

Andy Messersmith, 11-8, goes against the Mets' George Stone, 7-3, tonight in the second game of the three-game series.

Angels listless in defeat

Singer looks for support

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — If the Angel team that showed up Tuesday night at Anaheim Stadium shows up tonight, Bill Singer doesn't have a chance in a thousand of winning.

Singer (16-10) opposes Milwaukee's Jim Slaton (8-11) in the second game of the three game set. The Angels have not beaten the Brewers at the Big A this year. If they played them all as they did Tuesday, they wouldn't beat anybody.

In Tuesday night's encounter, three things were lacking . . . enthusiasm, timely hitting, and throwing, not necessarily in that order.

The Halos' powderpuff attack netted two unearned runs in the seventh inning . . . on two Milwaukee errors, a double, and a single. But this was only after the Brewers had built up a 6-0 lead.

Otherwise the batters main activity was producing infield outs. There were ten of them in the first six innings off Jim Colborn (16-8).

In the meantime Nolan Ryan (14-15) was getting killed by Jeff Torborg's continued inability to throw out runners attempting to steal.

Milwaukee runners beat Torborg's throws to second base no less than four times in the first 5 1-3 innings. Two of them were by none other than George Scott, the 6-2, 210 pound first baseman.

Scott had stolen six bases and been thrown out four times prior to Tuesday's game. Tony Oliva, the gimpy kneed designated hitter of the Minnesota Twins stole his only base this year off Torborg.

Jeff, a fine defensive catcher and once a rifle-armed receiver, simply does not get the ball to second base very quick since his shoulder problems. One of his throws was absolutely letter perfect except that it took an awful long time to get to second base.

As a result, the Brewers scored once in the fourth on a bunt hit and stolen base by Bob Coluccio and two infield outs. They added another in the fifth on a walk, a hit, stolen base, and a wild pitch.

Torborg was sure batter Don Money had foul-tipped the ball and at first did not go after it. When he began his belated charge, it was too late.

In the sixth, Ryan's ancient enemy, lack of control plus some unusual umpiring did him in.

Ryan easily retired the first two batters and thought he struck out the third, Scott, twice. But home plate umpire Jim Honochick and first base umpire Larry McCoy did not agree and Scott eventually walked.

Naturally he stole second, but this time not so naturally. Torborg's throw was there ahead of Scott and Shortstop Rudy Meoli made a sweeping tab with his glove. But everybody in the ball park saw the ball drop out of Meoli's glove except second base umpire Jim Odom.

Odom called Scott out and while the big first baseman was arguing heatedly, the Angels trotted off the field. But third base umpire Lou DiMuro ran over and reversed the call and the Angels and Ryan had to come back out.

That made three times Ryan thought he had Scott retired in the same inning. It was too much for his control, always shaky, to overcome.

The slightly-built fireballer walked Darrell Porter. John Briggs doubled. Bobby Mitchell belted his third home run and Ryan walked slowly off the field.

He struck out eight and walked four in his 5 2-3 innings. He has 296 strikeouts in 252 1-3 innings. He needs 87 strikeouts in his remaining 10 starts to break the single season record of 382 held by Sandy Koufax.

For an American League mark, he needs but 53 to break Bob Feller's record 348.

Manager Bobby Winkles was furious after the loss and blamed the men in blue. "That game was turned around by the umpires," he muttered.

"It's the first time I've ever seen a man (DiMuro) run all the way across the field and change another man's decision, he continued. It was also clear that earlier Scott had struck out and Honochick missed that one."

Winkles also expressed a disenchantment with the work of Odom. "If the second base umpire hustles a little bit and gets into position, he can see the ball if it is dropped by any player," the Angel manager said as he fired his last salvo.

Through it all general manager Harry Dalton stood behind a chair in the corner looking like the fans had looked most of the game, grimfaced.

ANGEL NOTES — Colborn is 4-0 against the Halos this year and 5-1 lifetime. The Brewers are 7-3 against the Angels this year.

After a fine 39-32 record in their first 71 games, the Halos have slipped to 17-33 in their last 50. In the meantime, Oakland won 32 while losing 18.

Ontario's Del Crandall, the Brewers' manager, will be one of the featured guests Thursday at the weekly public sports luncheon in the Stadium Club. He'll be joined by Mike Epstein and pitcher Dave Sells of the Angels.

Yanks try to catch up to runaway Russians in vain

MOSCOW (UPI) —The embarrassment of track and field behind them, U.S. athletes were in the gold medals race at the seventh World University Games today after a trio of firsts by the swimmers and another victory by the men's basketball team.

Russia's Olga Morozova won the women's singles tennis title, 6-3, 7-5, over Kazuko Sawanatsu of Japan. Earlier Miss Morozva, one of the top world players, had defeated Claremont's Janice Metcalf, 7-5, 8-6 in the semifinals. Miss Metcalf had won her first four matches.

But, however hard they try, they can hope for no better than second place behind the runaway Russians.

Following gold medals by Cathy Carr of Albuquerque, N.M., in the women's 200-meter breaststroke, Sally Tuttle of Ventura, Calif., in the women's 100-meter freestyle and Allen Poucher of Jacksonville, Fla., in the men's 100-meter butterfly, the U.S. cagers routed a taller Czechoslovakia team by 110-59 to move closer to the almost inevitable final matchup with the Soviet Union.

The Russians, meanwhile, ignoring the first decisive U.S. breakthrough in the gold medal rush, added five more in assorted sports to boost their overall total to an unreachable 48. The United States, with five golds now, moved into second place and Romania dropped back a notch to third with three.

"We had a day off on Monday and it hurt us," said U.S. basketball coach Ed Badger, whose all-winning team plays Cuba today. "It was a bit of a letdown."

The "letdown" was that the Americans did not maintain their 80-plus winning average margin, but the Czechs were never in the game after an opening 20-2 U.S. surge.

Cal Poly's Anderson still ponders last year

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Roy Anderson has had nine months to ponder Cal Poly Pomona's 1972 football season, and all that time hasn't made it any easier for the Bronco head coach to mask the disappointment.

"Last year's team should have been the best ever at Cal Poly," Anderson said while catching a breather from Tuesday's practice session. "We had a winning season the year before, and I expected even more last year. When we won four out of our first five games, I was sure that there was no way anybody was going to keep us out of the race."

But the Broncos weren't destined to achieve success in even the most modest terms when the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) chase began. Poly was beaten four times in as many conference games, and limped off with a 4-6 showing overall.

"The team came apart mentally," Anderson said in the kind of confession a coach rarely makes to the press. "It just wasn't together as a group. The team didn't go into a game as well as it should have."

Graduation probably solved the dissension problem, but it also deprived Anderson of some top-notch individuals which he and his new staff will have to replace during the Broncos' pre-season practice.

The new squad started practice in earnest Monday with two-a-days without pads. The pads will be donned Thursday.

"This is a rebuilding year," Anderson declared. "We have a good crop of freshmen. Basically, we can win, but each player will have to put out stronger than he has ever put out for a football team before."

A check of the Bronco roster finds 10 seniors listed, with 18 lettermen returning.

The biggest gap Anderson has to fill was created by the graduation of Jack Surina, one of the better quarterbacks in the school's history.

Dave Erickson, a transfer from Santa Barbara City College, figured to be the heir apparent to Surina's job, but a case of asthma hasn't improved and Erickson isn't expected to see any action until his senior year.

The QB job market, then, is open to three applicants, Steve Rothblum, Surina's backup man last season, Jim Zorn, a transfer from Cerritos, and Randy Brown, a freshman from Norco.

The second biggest worry for Poly is in the middle of the defensive line. "We need bigger, heavier, and stronger defensive linemen," Anderson complained. "Our size doesn't match up to our schedule."

Over on the other side, though, Anderson is pleased with his offensive linemen. Though the Broncos lack depth there, the personnel they do have are high-caliber.

Center Steve Weiss, who took the job over as a freshman, rates highly among CCAA snappers going into his sophomore season. Guard Randy Daniel and tackle Steve Celotto, both junior transfers from El Camino, also rank in the class of the conference at their positions.

Both the secondary and the linebacking chores need to be assigned with greater clarity, but Anderson has found some impressive candidates.

Mark Mahan, another El Camino convert, is discussed often in connection with linebacking, while Sam Hairston, a junior from Santa Monica, and Paul Russell look good in the secondary.

But the factor that Cal Poly is really banking on—the point which could resurrect last year's title hopes—has to be the ground game.

"We have some good backs," Anderson pointed out, "three of whom should be among the tops in the conference."

The titanic trio includes Greg Cruz and Rudy Murray, seniors, and Rick Robinson, a junior halfback.

If the Broncos could press their opponents with a strong running attack, a number of the aforementioned deficiencies could be overcome.

But Anderson can't count on potential to correct the weaknesses. He and staff have to counter them during the drills leading up to the Broncos' Sept. 8 opener with Fresno State at Fresno.

"The key to this team," Anderson cautioned with an eye to the problem-plagued days of '72, "is whether or not they all like each other."

And if Anderson gets the big, happy family he hopes for, things could be improving at Kellogg Field this year.

Ganesha football signups Monday

POMONA — Sophomore football signups for Ganesha High will be held Monday at 5 p.m. in the Ganesha High Boy's locker room.

Boys intending to sign up that day must bring football or tennis shoes, shorts, T-snirt and socks in order to participate in the conditioning program for the first four days of that week.

86 PROOF KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY DISTILLED AND BOTTLED BY THE JAMES B. BEAM DISTILLING CO., CLERMONT, BEAM, KENTUCKY

Foster 'punishes' Fourie

ALBUQUERQUE N. Mexico (UPI)—Bob Foster said he wanted South African Pierre Fourie to suffer 15 rounds of punishment for what he interpreted as a racial slur.

So, using his seven-inch reach advantage to its fullest extent, Foster jabbed away at Fourie for the full 15 rounds before a delighted hometown crowd Tuesday night and successfully defended his light-heavyweight title for a record 12th time. The decision was unanimous and all three cards were lopsided.

During the weigh-in Tuesday the fighters had flared at each other and Fourie had told Foster, "tonight's the night, boy."

Foster was immediately upset at Fourie's use of the word "boy."

"I'm going to knock him out tonight for calling me boy," Foster said.

But once the fight began the 34-year-old Foster did not press for a knockout. He was content to stick his left jab in the face of the challenger time after time and use his reach to ward off what Fourie had said would be "his "secret plan of attack."

"I wanted it to go the whole 15," said Foster, who won the title in 1968 from Dick Tiger and has now defended it more times than any other boxer in history. "I had him four or five times. He called me 'boy,' and I don't like anybody to call me a 'boy.' "Every time I hit him he was hurt."

After the fight, according to Foster, Fourie came to the champion's corner and apologized for the remark.

"I accepted the apology," said Foster, who was making his first title defense before his home town fans.

Fourie indicated he thought Foster was using the weigh-in incident as an excuse for not being able to score a knockout. It was only the second time since Foster has won the crown that he didn't knock out a challenger.

"He didn't hurt me," said Fourie, who had a string of 29 wins in a row broken with the loss. "If you have got the reach and you know how to use it, then you do have an advantage. But an old man never likes to go 15 rounds. He likes to put them away if he can." Fourie is 30.

Alan Toweel, Fourie's manager, wanted it made clear his fighter did not intend his comment to Foster during the weigh-in as an insult.

"You Yankees call each other boy all the time," he said. "So what's wrong with somebody else doing it."

Both Fourie and his manager said they wanted a rematch.

"I would like to fight him again," Fourie said. "I don't think it is a disgrace losing to the champ. He s the best light heavyweight champ of all time."

Foster, who won his 50th fight against six losses—all against heavyweights —was guaranteed $75,000 for the fight, which was watched by 11,000 persons in the University of New Mexico Auditorium. Fourie, now 46-3, was guaranteed $10,000.

Foster, who came in one pound under the limit at 173 pounds, was awarded the fight on the judges cards, 149-138 and 149-130. Referee Jim Cleary had Foster the winner, 148-128. Foster not only had a reach advantage, but he outweighed Fourie by five pounds.

The champion's jab opened a cut in the challenger's nose during the second round and Fourie also suffered a cut over the left eye in the third round.

Only once—in the 13th round—did Fourie display the kind of aggressiveness he needed to win the fight.

"He just smothered my attack," Fourie said. "I couldn't get inside."

Trojans chosen again in ratings

NEW YORK (UPI)—The University of Southern California, a unanimous choice as the No. 1 team in college football last year, is expected to capture that honor again this season, according to the United Press International's Board of Coaches.

The UPI coaches board didn't make the Trojans a unanimous pick in the preseason ratings, but of the 29 coaches who participated in the voting, 25 selected USC as their No. 1 pick. The four other first place votes went to Michigan, Ohio State, Texas and Auburn.

Runnerup to the Trojans in the balloting was perennial Big Eight power Nebraska, the 1971 national champion. The Cornhuskers received 175 points, which was nine more than the third place finisher, Ohio State, received.

Texas, defending Southwest Conference champion, finished fourth in the voting followed by Alabama and Michigan. Then comes Penn State, UCLA, Tennessee and Colorado to round out the top 10.

Oklahoma, which will be trying to regroup after its scandal-ridden 1972 season, heads the second 10 followed by Notre Dame, Auburn and Arizona State. Louisiana State is in the 15th position, Houston ranks No. 16 and Florida the fifth member of the Southeastern Conference to be named in the top 20, is ranked 17th.

Rounding out the top 20 are Texas Tech in the 18th spot and Georgia Tech and North Carolina in a tie for 19th.

Southern California, which went undefeated last year, has enough material returning to make a strong run at another unbeaten campaign, yet Coach John McKay remains cautious.

"This team is capable of winning every game again," he says, "but if we're better than last year's club, we've got a helluva team."

The Trojans have lost seven starters from the offensive unit and four from the defensive team, but among the returnees are running back Anthony Davis and linebacker Richard Wood, both second team All-America selections a year ago. Also back are two outstanding pass receivers Lynn Swann and J.D. McKay and quarterback Pat Haden, whom coach McKay believes could be the best ever to wear a Trojan jersey.

"He's as good a dropback and rollout passer as I've ever seen," McKay says of Haden. "Even when he scrambles, he'll find a way to throw a 50-yard touchdown pass."

Gavelman on spot at Los Alamitos

LOS ALAMITOS — Gavelman, who owns one of the fastest 870 clockings this season, takes on recent winners Chili Bar and Texas Tracer while winless Un Charge takes on double winners Dorthy's Palleo and Tee Cee's Choice in tonight's double-barreled distance feature at Los Alamitos Race Course.

The seventh race lineup has John Ward on Savannah's Boy, Dan Cardoza on Gavelman, Don Knight on Texas Tracer, Steve Treasure on Spotted Bar Bull, Charles Smith on Chili Bar and Eddie Garza on Three Stripes.

The fifth race early feature lists Garza on Dorthy's Palleo, Luke Myles on Un Charge, Treasure on Tee Cee's Choice, Smith on Olde Smoothie, James Dreyer on Royal Pass and Dale Holbrook on Red Robbie.

Post-time for the $2 exacta first race is 7:45 p.m.

Tonight's twin-bill distance feature is a prelim to Friday's night's fifth running of the Pap Stakes, which figures to draw such seasonal stakes victors as Hy Divy, Bar Fame and Little Lady Roar.

Gavelman, despite running the distance only four times in his career, owns the third best clocking at the distance, a 45.73 win registered July 25. The only horse to have run a faster winning 870 at Los Alamitos this season has been Hy Divy, with times of 45.55 and 45.58.

Savannah's Boy has raced only three times this summer but last year won in 45.60 and figures to be a strong contender, as does Chili Bar, who enters tonight's race with two victories and a second in his last three outings.

Sports news in brief

NATIONAL FOOTBALL League teams are rich enough today they no longer need the protection of television blackouts of home games. That was the conclusion of a House committee Tuesday. It recommended Congress ban the blackouts when tickets for regular home season games are sold out before the season opens and Congress limit the area of any blackouts allowed. NFL contracts with the networks prohibit a television station from broadcasting a game within the team's home territory when the team is playing on its home grounds. The area is any radius including potential fans, but usually is considered to be about 75 miles.

The 1975 SUPER BOWL could be moved out of New Orleans if the Louisiana Superdome is not completed, according to National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle. Rozelle toured the downtown stadium Tuesday and said an NFL committee would return later this year to determine if the Dome will be ready for the 1975 Super Bowl.

SANDY BLUE, the recent Hollywood Oaks winner, runs for the title of best filly in the West today when she faces 11 other distaff speedsters in the $30,000-added Del Mar Oaks at a mile-and-one-eighth on the turf course at Del Mar.

MARTY RIESSEN and Stan Smith, who Monday night put the United States into the Davis Cup challenge round, were eliminated from the $100,000 Canadian Open Tennis Championships Tuesday. Smith, who reestablished himself as Tennis' No. 1 player with his fourth Davis Cup victory over Romanian's Ilie Nastase Monday, was defeated 7-6, 7-5 by Miami's Eddie Dibbs. Riessen, who dropped Tom Ovici in four sets at Alamo, Calif., Monday, was eliminated from the Canadian Open by American Charlie Pasarell, who downed him, 6-3, 6-2.

TOP SEEDED Margaret Court of Australia led all seeded entries Tuesday into the second round of the $30,000 Virginia Slims Women's Grass Court Championships by beating Cynthia Doerner also of Australia, 0-6, 6-3, 6-4.

CHRIS EVERT of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. strengthened her lead over Australia's Evonne Goolagong this week in the women's division of the $425,000 commercial union Grand Prix of Tennis.

Rams practice in Orange Bowl

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams will fly to Miami Wednesday to get in some on-the-scene practice at the Orange Bowl for their Friday night exhibition game against the Dolphins.

The Rams seek their first win of the preseason against the Super Bowl champions. Los Angeles has lost to Dallas and Oakland and tied Cleveland.

Guard Tom Mack and tight end Bob Klein, who were held out of the last game because of injuries, worked with the first string offensive unit Tuesday.

Offensive tackle Charlie Cowan took things easy because of a sprained ankle. Merlin Olsen, bulwark of the defensive line, limited his activity because of a bad knee.

Ontario bowler has 300 game .

POMONA — Jerry Fagan, Jr. bowled a 300 game Monday night at the Bowlium in Montclair.

The 23-year-old Ontarian carried a 169 average. But the righthander was hot Monday night. He had games of 189, 197, 182, and then, bingo, 300!

Fagan's wife, La Verna, witnessed the feat. The couple have a boy, eight, and expect another child shortly.

The perfect game, lanes five and six, was the first 300 game at the establishment in two years. Fagan's previous high was 279.

Aaron desire: to play in Series

By United Press International

Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron's long-time friend and current manager, has been saying all season that the Atlanta Braves slugger's No. 1 goal is not surpassing Babe Ruth's all-time career home run record.

"Sure, Hank wants to break the record," Mathews has been telling anyone who would listen. "But he won't sacrifice his value to the team by swinging for homers in any situation. He wants more than anything else to play in one more World Series. And that means hitting to win games."

With 704 homers and the Braves out of the National League's Western Division race, Aaron is at a stage in his assault on Ruth's mark of 714 career homers where he could be excused if he swung for the horizon every time he went to the plate.

But true to Mathews' prediction, Aaron is "swinging for the team"—as he did Tuesday night when he had a double and two singles and drove in three runs as the Braves rallied from a 7-0 deficit in the third inning to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 11-7. The homerless game, Atlanta's 128th game of the season, left Aaron with a projection of eight more homers this season and a total of 712.

Pittsburgh defeated Houston 6-3, New York nipped Los Angeles 2-1, San Francisco beat Montreal 3-1, Chicago topped Cincinnati 6-4 and Philadelphia rallied for a 9-8 triumph over San Diego in other NL games.

Pitcher Rick Wise's grand slam homer was the big blow of the Cardinals' seven-run third inning outburst but the Braves rallied for six runs in their half of the frame on Aaron's two-run single, Dusty Baker's two-run double and Dave Johnson's two-run homer.

The Pirates crept to within 1½ games of the Cardinals in the NL East when rookie John Morlan scattered nine hits and Gene Clines scored the decisive run on Don Wilson's third wild pitch. Willie Stargell drove in two runs for the Pirates while John Edwards homered for Houston.

Rico Carty singled home the tie-breaking run for the Cubs in the seventh inning and Ferguson Jenkins went the distance with a 10-hitter for his 11th win against 12 defeats. Carty and Don Kessinger had three hits each for the Cubs while Joe Morgan had three hits, including his 19th homer, for the Reds.

Del Unser's three-run double with two out in the ninth lifted the Phils over the Padres, who carried an 8-5 lead into the ninth. Greg Luzinski hit his 22nd homer for the Phillies while Nate Colbert and Clarence Gaston homered for San Diego.

Pro football roundup

No reprimand for Thomas

By United Press International

Duane Thomas won't get any reprimands from the National Football League for his alleged refusal to heed the National Anthem at pre-game ceremonies.

Thomas, the controversial Washington Redskin running back, touched off a controversy last Friday night when he supposedly walked around and turned his back on the flag during pre-game ceremonies at Buffalo's Rich Stadium.

Buffalo fans began shouting at Thomas and after a thermos bottle was thrown at him, he charged the stands and had to be restrained by teammates.

Thomas' pre-game action won't be chastised, however, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Tuesday.

Addressing a meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in New Orleans, Rozelle said that conduct during the playing of the anthem was up to the individual club to police.

"I think it was an isolated incident," Rozelle said. "In most stadiums in the country, the stands are more removed from the field. Thomas' behavior is the sort of thing for the club to police. We give them guidelines about the National Anthem, behavior by players and coaches and such, but these are policy recommendations and are not mandatroy."

Rozelle also said the 1975 Super Bowl might be moved from its scheduled site, the Louisiana Superdome, if the new stadium is not completed. He said it probably would not be transferred to the Tulane University Sugar Bowl Stadium.

"We would like to get into the Superdome as soon as possible and with the rotation system, if New Orleans had the game in 1975, in Tulane Stadium, it would be several years before it could return," he said.

In news from the camps Tuesday, the New Orleans Saints put starting safety Hugo Hollas on the injured reserve list and he'll be out all season and Cincinnati cut punter Ken Duncan and wide receiver Steve Kingman. Houston dropped four players—kicker Mark Williams, linebacker Jim Bishop, offensive lineman Sam Holden and running back Eddie Richardson.

New York Giant Coach Alex Webster and reserve quarterback Randy Johnson jointly announced that Johnson had not asked to be traded after apparently losing his battle to unseat Norm Snead as No. 1 signal caller. Johnson said he and the club had reached an agreement on his status and that he would remain the rest of the season.

Miami Coach Don Shula announced that fullback Larry Csonka, who has missed all three-pre-season games since the Dolphins' opening victory against the College All-Stars, will play against the Los Angeles Rams Friday night.

In other action scheduled for this week, Dallas is at Houston Thursday night and Cincinnati is at Detroit on Friday night. Atlanta takes on Cleveland at Knoxville, Tenn., Oakland plays Minnesota at Berkeley, Calif., Baltimore is at Washington, New England at New Orleans, Philadephia at San Diego and the New York Jets at St. Louis on Saturday.

On Sunday, the New York Giants entertain Pittsburgh, Green Bay is at Kansas City, Chicago at Buffalo and Denver at San Francisco.

American League roundup

Stan settles for one-hitter

By United Press International

Stan Bahnsen's near no-hitter last night for the Chicago White Sox was almost as poetic his expression of how he felt after he gave up his only hit, a single to Walt Williams, with two out in the ninth inning.

"It felt like the bottom fell out of the balloon I was riding," Bahnsen said after settling for a 4-0, one-hit victory over the Cleveland Indians and just missing the American League's fifth no-hitter this year. "It was such an emotional thing 'til then, I just wanted Williams to hit the ball on the ground and he did."

Williams, who takes a short stroke, rapped a ground ball on a 2-1 pitch too hard and too far to the left for third baseman Bill Melton to nab. Bahnsen, who had pitched a pair of nohitters in the minors in 1966 and 1967, stood gazing into centerfield for a few moments before retiring the last hitter.

"I always wanted to pitch a no-hitter in the big leagues," said Bahnsen who won 21 games last year after being traded to the White Sox from the Yankees. "I wish Williams would have pulled the ball a little. He's a tough hitter."

"I really don't feel anything about breaking up the no-hitter," Williams said. "I was nervous when I came up to the plate. After fouling off the third pitch, I cleaned my spikes. I never clean my spikes when I'm batting. I was trying to hit the ball as hard as I could and when it hit the grass, I think it helped in getting past Melton."

Williams was Bahnsen's teammate on the White Sox last year and said of him, "I really like Stan Bahnsen. He's a super guy to me, but..." But, Williams didn't have to add, they're wearing different uniforms now.

Bahnsen, who gave up a walk to Dave Duncan with two out in the second inning and then retired 17 batters in order before walking Duncan again in the eighth, picked up his 16th victory against 14 defeats. Second baseman Jorge Orta drove in two runs for Chicago on three hits, including his third homer, and also saved the no-hitter temporarily when he went behind second base to make a tremendous stop and throw out Buddy Bell in the third.

In other American League games, Baltimore nipped Minnesota 2-1, Boston outslugged Texas 15-9, Kansas City clipped New York 5-4, Detroit tripped Oakland 6-4 and Milwaukee downed California 6-2.

Al Bumbry's ninth inning sacrifice fly scored Bobby Grich, who had doubled and moved to third on a single by Mark Belanger, with the winning run as the Orioles extended their winning streak to nine games by beating Minnesota.

Grant Jackson, 7-0, earned the victory in relief of Jim Palmer. Twins' starter Bert Blyleven, 15-13, absorbed the defeat although he went the distance for the 19th time.

Dwight Evans powered a 450-foot two-run homer in the second inning and started a five-run third inning and Reggie Smith drove in five runs to pace Boston over the Rangers and give Roger Moret his eighth victory without a defeat.

Lou Piniella's third single of the game drove in Amos Otis, who had doubled, with the tiebreaking run in the fifth inning and lifted Kansas City past the Yankees behind the excellent relief pitching of Joe Hoerner.

Mickey Stanley hit two triples and a single and drove in two runs and John Hiller pitched five innings of two-hit relief in leading the Tigers over Oakland and snapping a nine-game A's winning streak.

Preliminaries, finals held in NAAU swim competition

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)— The pace quickens today in the National AAU competition here, featuring preliminaries and finals in swimming following two days of diving.

Fifty-three swimmers will be chosen today through Saturday for a spot on the U.S. team that will compete in the first annual World Swimming and Diving Championships at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, next month.

The first two days of the meet at the Plantation Swim Club were devoted strictly to diving. Starting today, swimmers undergo a daily schedule of heats during the day and finals starting at 7 p.m. through Saturday.

Scheduled are finals in the men's and women's 200-meter backstroke, 100-meter breaststroke, 400-meter freestyle and 100-meter butterfly. Forty-five swimmers, 24 men and 21 women, and four men and four women divers, will be selected for the trip to Belgrade, Sept. 19, representing the U.S.

Michael Finneran, 24, of Columbus, Ohio, Tuesday won the AAU National Championship in the one-meter dive after performing a tough reverse 1 ½ somersault layout.

Finneran, who performed a "perfect dive" last year in the Olympic trials, led a field of 12 finalists and finished with 498.96 points. Close behind was Richard McAlister of the Air Force Academy with 491.85. Tim Moore, Columbus, Ohio, who finished with 470.40 points, was third, while Julian Krug of San Jose, Calif., fourth with 464.26.

Finneran, whose perfect dive came at last year's Olympic trials when all seven judges gave him the top score of 10 points, received mostly eight points from each judge in his fourth national title Tuesday. Two of his previous AAU titles were in the three-meter event.

New OMS facilities convenient

Deke Houlgate

Motor sport today

While the original operators of Ontario Motor Speedway were losing $9.6 million in three years, they were not letting people drive their cars into the infield because they didn't want fans to harm their $200,000 sprinkler system.

Consequently, infield customers quickly learned they had to park their cars outside the speedway and walk around to where tunnels led to the infield — distances from one to four miles. In the hot sun that's a long walk. Families who do it once usually don't again.

As a result, the cheap infield tickets didn't sell, a fact which may have cost former operators more than $1 million in ticket sales and deprived a lot of spectators of the opportunity to attend good racing shows.

This has changed under new management, which is partly made up of Indianapolis Motor Speedway personnel. Fans cannot only drive into the infield, they can park there overnight before the race, if they are willing to pay a small extra fee.

Clarence Cagle, superintendent of both Indy and Ontario tracks, figured out how to protect the sprinklers. His crews simply have unscrewed the heads and capped them so that nothing can hurt them.

Cagle's simplistic approach to accommodating fans by eliminating needless problems may result in making OMS a more friendly, pleasnt place to watch a race when the California 500 is held Sept. 2.

For instance, he has moved the "lost children" area away from speedway first aid stations, relieving medical personnel from their annual baby-sitting chores.

Two of the most serious medical problems on race day have been exposure (heat and sun) and drunkenness, often combined. To relieve congestion at first aid stations — as many as 700 patients being treated at one time — he has ordered extra air-conditioned trailers placed around the speedway. This will create more medical facilities and more shade for heat victims.

There have been many complaints that traffic jams to and from the speedway on race day have worsened each year. Cagle, the mastermind of Indianapolis' amazingly efficient traffic plan, has already taken that up with police in Ontario and the California Highway Patrol.

"I (particularly) brought the getaway traffic situation up in a traffic meeting. We've been assured that officers will be on duty after the race. I have every reason to believe it will operate efficiently. Everybody involved wants this place to be a success."

The first thing Cagle did when he took charge about June 1 was to order a major weed abatement program, which is still going on. He was fearful of fire, because everything — landscaping as well as weeds — was so dry. His crews have pumped as much water as speedway wells can take out of the ground onto the infield grass. The place is starting to turn green again.

The 86,000 permanent grandstand seats have been thoroughly washed down, cleanup crews have picked up all the litter and most other problems of neglect due to the six-month speedway shutdown are under control.

Juan Manuel Fangio, the five-time world driving champion, is so tightfisted with a peso that he saves his used gum to chew later and bums cigarettes rather than buying them, despite his enormous wealth.

Mike Hawthorn and Peter Collins used to flip cigarette butts at the ceiling of a hotel in Modena, Italy, to try to make them stick, but the Marquis de Portago outdid them. He made a sling out of his napkin and hurled pats of butter at the ceiling.

Once on the East African Rally while repairs were being made on his car, Stirling Moss heard heavy breathing and looked up, face to face with a full-grown lion. He immediately went for his camera, to take a picture of the beast.

These and many other illuminating anecdotes are contained in the latest book on worldroad racing stars of the last two decades, Grand Prix Champions by Mary Schnall Heglar (Bond-Parkhurst Books, Newport Beach, Cal., $7.95).

It is a series of sketches on world champions from Alberto Ascari (1950) to Emerson Fittipaldi (1972) with a very keenly defined analysis of racing drivers in general in the foreward and a statistical section in the back for settling arguments.

Like most books of this type it is basically biographical, filled with the sort of hero worship quotations that only a died-in-the-wool fan would prize. But there are enough bright and informative passages to make it worthwhile.

"Motor racing is impossible to be safe," Moss told the author, "and I think that because it is dangerous is one of the reasons that people come to it. Not hoping to see anybody hurt, but — I think it's rather like if I go to a circus and I see a man on a high wire watching him. I don't want to see him fall — but I want to see him sort of shake a bit."

The life of the party title must go to Graham Hill, who is a well known raconteur, after-dinner speaker, talk show guest and teller of all shades of jokes. Hill's greatest act, however, is a strip tease, complete with bumps, grinds "and a Mt. Rushmore expression worthy of the toughest cookie in San Francisco's tenderloin," says the author.

Emerson Fittipaldi and the soccer super-star Pele are great frinds and admirers of each other. In mid-1972, when the Brazilian driver was racing toward the world title, Pele sent him his soccer shirt for good luck. When Fittipaldi won the next race, he sent his victory trophy to Pele.

Jimmy Clark away from the track delighted in donning kilts and dancing Scottish jigs, often with other Scottish drivers as partners. Once he and Jackie Stewart got carried away with their twirling and fell into the shrubbery. Another time his partner Innes Ireland ended the dance when a prankster slipped a cactus paint up under Ireland's kilt.

Jochen Rindt crashed at Monza 20 feet from the mobile hospital. Instead of taking him there, medics put him in an ambulance for a 45-minute ride to Milan, during which their police escort got lost. When they arrived, Rindt was dead.

Phil Hill's parents died within weeks of each other in 1951. They had nver approved of his racing, but with his small inheritance and a loan from his brother Jerry he bouth a Ferrari race car.

"How do you tell that to a reporter?" he asked. "My parents died so I bought a Ferrari!"

Southland racing

CORONA — The West Coast "Race of Champions" to be held Saturday at 8 p.m. is rapidly becoming the Midget racing event of the year.

USRC President Lou Stoltz has received entries from most of the midget associations this side of the Rockies. Some of the drivers who will be competing for the share of the $3500 purse include the champion from Arizona Wayne Wyler and Eddie Jackson out of mile high Denver, Colorado.

VALENCIA — A grand prix race for dirt-track motorcycles will be presented by the Hilltoppers' Club on Labor Day, Sept. 3, on a new 3-mile all-terrain course at Indian Dunes Park near Saugus.

The program, to be run under A.M.A. District 37 sanction, is expected to attract upwards of 600 entries, including many top competitors of both desert and motorcross racing.

As an added feature, a twilight motocross show has also been scheduled for the same day at the Valencia-based speed complex.

IRWINDALE — During the last seven weeks of rugged CMC Motocross action at Irwindale Raceway, only two riders have been able to win the competitive 500cc professional class: Jim West of Pasadena and Luke Messer of Los Angeles. Two weeks ago this pair went down to the last few inches before Messer finally got the win.

This Friday night beginning at 7:30 their two-month battle continues.

Another confrontation to expect comes in the 125cc Expert class between Metro Penton teammates Chuck Bower of Anaheim and Bruce McDougal of Orange. Last Friday night Bower stopped his good friend in his attempt at a fifth consecutive night 125cc overall win.

EAST IRVINE — International 125cc Motorcross stare Bruce McDougal of Orange returns to Orange County International Raceway this Thursday night in hopes of continuing his fantastic win record.

The young Penton rider won the 125cc professional class last week and then collected third place cash the same night in the 250cc class. The victory was his fourth in a row at night CMC sanctioned events, and it marked his 21st win of the season.

EAST IRVINE — Much has been said about today's generation gap and now it has hit speedway motorcyle racing. Thirty-three year old John "Handlebar" Flanders and thirteen year old Dennis "The Kid" Sinalos have challenged each other to a match race tonight at Orange County International Raceway.

Flanders, who earned the nickname of "Handlebar" for skills at his profession of manufacturing and selling motorcycle handlebars, feels experience, strength and knowledge of the sport will carry him to an easy victory. On the other hand, Sinalos feels his youthful reflexes, lack of fear and light weight make him the one to beat.

CORONA — The super fast modified stock cars return for another exciting round on Corona Raceway's tricky two groove half mile Sunday at 7 p.m.

The modifieds, under the able direction of Ed Hudson, are starting to change their appearance and are beginning to look like the modfieds that run the eastern circuits. The first driver to "modify" his modified is Ron Arev of Costa Mesa.

GARDENA — A match race involving two of California's top young motorcycle riders will cap the second American Motorcycle Association short-track program on the quarter-mile at J. C. Agajanian's Ascot this Friday night.

Danny Hockie of Habor City will challenge Rock Hocking of Fremont, the AMA's national indoor winner on the lightweight bikes, in a special event. Both, of course are entered in the entire series of races and could meet twice.

The idea of the match occurred after Hockie won qualifying honors last Friday and then had to sit on the sidelines with mechanical problems as the Fremont junior went on to win his heat, the semi-main and main event easily.

IRWINDALE — The stars of NASCAR sportsman stock car racing will share their Friday night racing program with the West Coast Modified Association hardtop coupes and modified compacts at San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale this weekend.

Ten events of high speed racing competition on the ultra-fast half-mile speedway will be topped off by a 25 lap coupe main event and a 30 lap sportsman feature race. Trophy dashs send off the competition by 7:30 p.m.

Yesterday versus today is the theme in the coupe competition with 1973, '38 and '39 Chevy coupes with powerful V8 racing engines installed challenging Camaros, Mustangs, Corvairs and Falcons on the high banked speedway.

Maine picks Carlton Fisk

BOSTON (UPI) —Catcher Carlton Fisk recently was presented the first Turk Gilbert Memorial Award as Maine's favorite member of the Boston Red Sox.

Fisk won the honor in a close contest over Tommy Harper and Orlando Cepeda. The selection came in a poll of Maine's sportwriters and broadcasters.

Gov. Kenneth Curtis threw out the first ball for Sunday's Red Sox-Kansas City Royals game which was designated State of Maine Day.

Can-Am at Elkhart Lake

It's Follmer against Oliver

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. — Teammates who aren't teammates could provide a furious duel for prize money and championship points here on Sunday when the fifth race of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series comes to twisting Road America.

They are England's Jackie Oliver and American ace George Follmer. Oliver, 30, from Walton-on-Thames in Surrey, England, has won fame as a long-distance driver with victories at Sebring and LeMans in 1969 and at Daytona in 1970. Follmer, a former U.S. Road Racing champion, is defending Can-Am champion.

In International Formula 1 competition they are teammates on the world-title-seeking UOP Shadow team. But for the Can-Am—with its million dollars-plus prize package, richer even than Formula 1—they are opponents in the keenest kind of auto-racing rivalry. Follmer drives an RC Cola Porsche 917 in the Can-Am while Oliver has a UOP Shadow.

Montagnana Trio to play at Barnsdall

LOS ANGELES — The Montagnana Trio of London will present a free concert in the Concerts on the Green series at Barnsdall Park at 4:30 p.m. Sept. 9.

Trio members are Delores Stevens, piano; John Gates, clarinet, and Caroline Worthington, cello.

The concert is sponsord by the Bureau of Music of the Los Angeles Municipal Arts Department in cooperation with Musicians Union Local 47.

SINGING STARS — The Classic Edition, a San Diego barbershop quartet, is one of more than 25 groups which will compete Saturday in the Far Western District Southern Division contest of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America at Ontario High School. Preliminaries will start at noon; finals and a Barbershop Jamboree will be staged at 8 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the door.

Cal Poly stages two short comedies

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

POMONA — Cal Poly's summer drama students staged two miniplays on marriage (and other things) Friday and Saturday, a well-performed couple that makes a pleasant evening of theater.

Edward Albee's "The American Dream" and "The Golden Fleece" by A. R. Gurney Jr. will be repeated in the university theater at 8:30 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

The curtain-raiser, "Fleece," is a rather stodgy playlet with a faintly allegorical cast back to Jason and Medea. (Jason ends up in a motel with a cute broad.) I was not smitten with the play when it was at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center a few seasons back, and the Cal Poly presentation did not alter my opinion. Elissa Napolin and Steve Morris are convincing and amiable in the roles of Betty and Bill, but they could use better material.

The star of "Dream" is a wonderfully kooky girl named Robin La Valley, who, as Grandma, puts on a hilarious characterization of a sassy, spirited little old lady in tennis shoes. Miss La Valley's voice, gestures, mannerisms and movements turn the young lady into an authentic old bat, and her performance brings out all the rich, wry humor Albee aimed for.

Barbara Edivan's Mommy is a delightful caricature of the sophisticated married woman of today, bored, devious, and waspish, endlessly smoking and babbling cliches—as all of the characters do.

Daddy is played by Paul Oakes with an amusingly low-key performance, expressionless and calm. The vapid character emerges with consistency — Oakes draws a barrage of laughter from the simple procedure of opening the front door.

Jeannine Lambeth, the familiar busy clubwoman, contrives an amusingly befuddled portrayal, and Brian Gale as America's beautiful, empty dream is blandly persuasive.

Director Ralph McCormic, drama department chairman, gives the two plays his customary insight and discipline.

Shatner to star

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — William Shatner, onetime star of television's "Star Trek," will appear in summer stock in "Arsenic and Old Lace" in the Midwest.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor-folk singer Burl Ives will make a guest appearance next season on "The Oral Roberts Show."

Television star an ecology freak

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Randy Mantooth, the razor sharp paramedic of "Emergency," is attuned to nature and the ecology. He lives a unique life for a television star.

A 28-year-old bachelor, Mantooth-whose father is a full-blooded Seminole Indian-lives alone in a remote section of Topanga Canyon, midway between the San Fernando Valley and Malibu Beach.

He rents a small, unpretentious house on an acre of land. A creek runs through the property in the springtime.

The setting is rustic. The aroma of chapparal, greasewood and sage assail the visitor in a pungent and heady mixture. Mountains plunge down to ravines all around the area. Smog is rare.

The old house, consisting of four rooms-living room, bedroom, kitchen and bath-is furnished with odds and ends, about what you'd expect of a young man on his own. Nothing fancy.

There are no gas lines to the house. Everything runs on electricty. There is insufficient power for an electric range, however, so Randy must rely on hot plates to cook his meals. He also has a portable oven.

Even with a star spangled modern gas range Randy would be lost. He's a terrible cook and cheerfully admits it. "I'd starve to death if I didn't have a girl friend who likes to cook," he says.

But starvation is not threat enough to rush the dark-hair actor into matrimony. He is the product of a broken home and doesn't want to marry or have children until he feels such a union would be lasting.

Randy is essentially a loner. When the NBC series is not in production he spends hours walking the trails into the mountians just outside his front door. A mile from his house there is no sign of civilization except an occasional jet vapor trail.

On weekends he vists his mother in Santa Barbara, but more often he jumps into his Land Rover and heads for the desert, or "anywhere there aren't people."

He camps out under the stars, fixes a few spare meals and simply sits and contemplates the beauties of surroundings.

If he feels the need for company Randy will invite a girl friend to accompany him on one of his treks to the desert or mountians, but she must enjoy isolation and cooking over a campfire.

There is no set pattern to Randy's life except when he is working. Then he is required to report to Universal Studios at 6:30 a.m. It is a 28-mile drive from his hideout, but he thinks it's worthwhile.

Mantooth is pleased with the success of the series, but the show is a mixed blessing to him.

PRETTY MERMAID Cindy Gardner, a University of Michigan coed, is one of two mermaids at Marineland in Palos Verdes this summer. She is shown frolicking with fish and bat rays in the park's oval tank, "the world's largest fishbowl." Miss Gardner is majoring in biological oceanography at Michigan.

Brown urges that all reveal contributions

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., said that he would voluntarily disclose all campaign contributions he has received and urged other gubernatorial candidates to do the same to avoid a Watergate-type scandal in California.

"Watergate could not have happened if all campaign funds had been fully reported to the public," Brown told a luncheon of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"It is imperative that we act now to prevent Watergate scandals in next year's California campaign and only full reporting of contributions will assure a fair and honest election."

Brown, a Democrat, said he will voluntarily disclose within the next week al contributions he has received in his current race for the governor's office and he will issue a statement disclosing his personal assets and income.

He said some potential gubernatorial candidates already have raised "hundreds of thousands of dollars in campaign funds and are refusing to disclose the source of their money." He did not name anyone in particular.

"The voters are demanding an end to secret fund raising and backroom politics," Brown said.

There is no legal requirement that candidates reveal their assets and income.

Brown said disclosure of campaign contributions would not be required by California law until May, 1974.

Betsy Ross ICE CREAM & COFFEE SHOPPE

MEETIN' & EATIN' AT BETSY ROSS

By Gene Neighbors

Hi, Neighbors,
Y'know, if you can't have fun in your business, it's sorta sad . . . Well, we at Betsy Ross do get a real kick out of bein' in the ice cream parlor and coffee shoppe business. Those of you who have used our very popular Party Plans know how much fun you can have in our places for birthday parties, anniversaries, and other special events with no fuss nor muss —just fun and the time to enjoy your own party with friends and families.
We hadn't heard much from the Betsy Ross bunch at Mountain and Foothill in Upland, so I stopped in t'other day to learn the reason for all this shush. Turned out they had a lot to talk about, but just didn't know we'd be interested. I missed the manager, JOE HURTON, but did meet MARY COBB. She was in Las Vegas recently and pulled out her matches from Betsy Ross. Standin' beside her was a couple from Wisconsin who saw 'em and said they'd eaten in a place like that the day before. Seemed they described the one in Upland, where Mary decorates the cash register.
She also told us about the day BOB CRANE ("Hogan's Heroes") and his family dropped into the Upland Coffee Shoppe. Said he and his family like to eat at Betsy Ross, and remarked what a beautiful setting that one enjoys with its view of the mountains.
Want to give the kids (old and young) a treat? Let 'em order our foot long hot dogs with all the trimmins, and an ice cream specialty of their choice. We serve almonds with most of our ice cream fountain specialties, and shall continue to do so for as long as we can, in spite of the rise in the price of almonds. Those darn things are like gold, but we need 'em to top off our sundaes like we have for the past 47 years.
Didja know that generations of people consider Betsy Ross a family thing? 7-year-old BETSY ROSS of Alhambra brought her mother, MARY ROSS, and grandmother into Betsy Ross in Claremont. All three ladies were dressed in red, white, and blue, as BETSY considered it Her Place. Gets ya, right here!

At Disneyland

Buddy Rich, Ray Stevens slated

ANAHEIM — Drummer uddy Rich and his band and singer Ray Stevens will perform at Disneyland starting Sunday.

The Electrical Parade which tells its story with a quarter million twinkling lights, will wind its way down a darkened Main Street nightly at 9 and 11:30.

Stevens, whose hits include love songs, tunes with a message and comical ditties, will be spotlighted Sunday through Aug. 31 on the Tomorrowland Stage at 10 p.m. and midnight.

Rich will bring his ensemble of musicians, who present big band, jazz and modern sounds, to the Plaza Gardens nightly through Sept. 8.

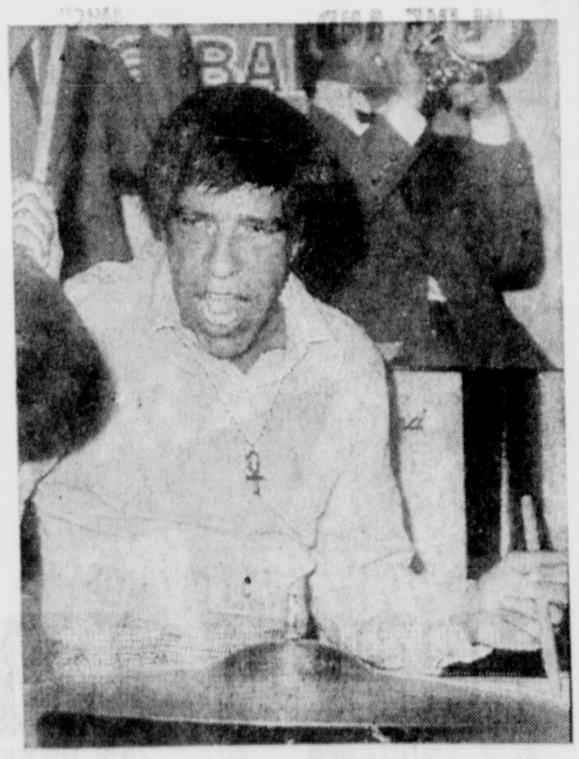
Writer, performer, arranger Stevens is currently on the charts with is latest release, "Nashville." He has been producing a decade of hit including Grammy winner "Everything Is Beautiful," the sardonic "Mr. Businessman," modern love song "Unwind," and novelty recordings "Ahab The Arab" and "Guitarzan."

Billed at "The World's Greatest Drummer," Rich has been drumming since he was a child. His credentials include years with the big bands of Artie Shaw and Tommy Dorsey and recordings with such greats as Dizzy Gillespie, Count Basie and Charlie Parker.

Every night at 9:20 Tinker Bell makes her flight above Fantasyland igniting the "Fantasy in the Sky" fireworks display.

Tiny feet wear the rocks away

Jackass penguins have nested so many centuries on Dasen Island at the tip of South Africa that millions upon millions of their feet have worn away rocks. The penguins keep to paths that run nearly arrow-straight from nesting ground to sea.



DRUMMING UP TRADE — Buddy Rich, billed as "the world's greatest drummer," will perform with his band in the Plaza Gardens of Disneyland Sunday through Sept. 8. Rich has played with the bands of Artie Shaw and Tommy Dorsey, and made records with Dizzy Gillespie, Count Basie and Charlie Parker.

Step right up, folks

Buy yourself a railroad car

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thinking of opening a restaurant, a motel, a dance floor, a shopping center, a new office, a warehouse, or buying a new home?

Then hurry on down to Flemington, N..J, on Sept. 4 and get in on the bidding at the third auction in history—and the biggest—of antique railroad passenger cars. The foregoing are some of the remarkable things that have been done with cars that galumphed the continent by rail from the turn of the century through the 1920's.

Nine cars are to be auctioned, the cheapest at a minimum bid of $2,800, the most expensive to start at $28,500. Jackie Gleason is expected to be present and maybe Johnny Cash, both railroad buffs, plus a sprinkling of corporation heads with eyes alight.

This is a private auction, with advance registration required, plus $6 for a kit of photos, floor plans, and details, according to the boss seller, Alfred M. Coleman of (Box 123) Bethpage, N.Y.

Five of the cars are Coleman's. He has the other four under contract to sell. He's only 25, but he's been a rail buff since age 16, when he bought his first car.

Restaurant Cars

Why the sale? "I can't find a place to pull all my cars. They're not bringing in any money now. And window breaking by kids is a big problem. Besides I'm in another business. I tried to make trading in old railroad cars a business, but it's too hard to get customers—you can spend $1,000 advertising and still get only one customer. But I may stay in it as a hobby. This sale is my entire stock now."

The main user of old passenger cars—and No. 1 prospect for Coleman—is the man who converts one into a fairly expensive restaurant.

There are at least 50 such restaurants around the country. All you need to do is build a bit of track on your property for the restaurant to sit on, hire a house mover, and move it down the highway. The interior is up to you—maybe invoke the past, the 1890s.

There are many other uses underway:

—Product exploitation. One manufacturer restored three cars and took them all over the country ... People take a baggage car and make it into a dance floor to add to their restaurant . . . A Pennsylvania man used 22 cabooses for a motel ... A man in Texas turned the whole Denver Zephyr into a motel. This was a famous Chicago-Denver train that was discontinued in the 1960s.

RR mismanagement

Coleman is a former railroad man: "I started at 18 with the Penn Central, beginning in a tower and becoming a general yard master—I went up fast but I saw what was happening in railroads. I made my exit at 21. I found the Penn Central to be 100 per cent mismanaged."

The queen of Coleman's auction fleet is old No. 1158, a coachparlor that he and seven other people spent two years restoring. They used paint remover, steel wool and toothbrushes to remove eight coats of varnish and paint from beautiful African solid mahogany wood inlaid with striping to make designs—work that is more or less a lost art. It has the original crushed blue velvet seats.

"That is one job I never want to do again, as long as I live," he said. "We sweated in hot summer and froze in winter."

No. 1158 made two famed runs, at speeds up to 100 miles per hour. One was when Arthur Brisbane, the journalist who was rich in real estate as well as word peddling, decided he had to get from Philadelphia to New York immediately to cover a Dempsey-Tunney fight in the 1920s.

The other was when Enrico Caruso got an emergeny call to sing at the Metropolitan Opera one night. He also made a breakneck run in No. 1158 behind No. 592.

Vintage cars

The cheapest car at the auction, starting at $2,800, is a former business car that served railroad presidents. Observation platform on rear, it's the only one in poor condition.

Three early 1900 vintage coaches, like No. 1158 but with mahogany still covered with paint, will start for $8,500 each. Two "Stillwell" type cars from the 1930's, famed on the Erie Railroad, for which they were specially built, will start at $4,700 to $4,800 each.

"The Oasis," a 1900 former baggage car that Coleman bought at age 16 and turned into a concession car for food, candy and ice cream, and which served on the renowned "High Iron Steam" excursions, will start at $8,500. In good condition, it's one of three still preserved.

No. 1158 will start at $23,000.

The final car, built about 1924, was converted into a restaurant in 1970 and is ready to open as such. Rebuilt, air conditioned, tables all installed. Start at no less than $28,500.

The sale will be at Turntable Junction in Flemington. The auctioneer: Elwood Heller. All right, folks, step right over here and take a look at the grill work on that rear platform.

Postal service hearing starts

5 per cent of mail wrongly handled

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —If the law of averages was with a person who mailed 20 letters here last year, one of them got lost.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif., opened a hearing into the postal service Monday by saying that 61 million pieces of mail— nearly five per cent of the total —were missorted or otherwise wrongly handled in the metropolitan area last year.

"All the equipment they've been counting on has not been working properly," Wilson said.

"The biggest problem we seem to have has to do with labor-management communications, lack of adequate working facilities, and this reflects on the type of service the public gets."

Los Angeles Postmaster James Symbol said the Post Office needs more time to make its new systems work, and that an accuracy rate of more than 95 per cent is "pretty good."

State Assemblyman Walter Karabian said "the basic problem is that the Postal Service is trying to run, not as a service, but at a profit. Now the hallmark is economy, not service. The men just don't have it in their hearts anymore."

In an attempt to reduce the cost to the federal government, Karabian said, the service has reduced the number of letter carriers by about 40,000.

"The remaining staff must handle an increasing volume of mail, and it is demoralized and overburdened with long overtime hours and inadequate service," he said.

He said the service should make this area an experimental zone, hire more men, increase services and make use of the many systems analysts in the Los Angeles area.

Symbol replied that the Postal Service would be reluctant to have "outsiders" giving advice. "Let us sort out our own problems. What can an outsider know about how we operate?"

Science attaches are diplomats, too

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — For an electrical engineer, Donald K. Reynolds has an unusual working day.

In his office overlooking Guanabara Bay, he may spend the morning studying the major stories in the Brazilian press. Then, in fluent Portuguese, he's likely to speak by telephone to carefully cultivated Brazilian contacts for more information for his own report to Washington.

At lunch, he might talk—as he did to UPI the other day—about Brazil's role, now and in the future, in the solution of "the greatest diplomatic problem the world has ever faced," control of nuclear power.

In the afternoon, he's apt to be busy making notes for the U.S. ambassador on U.S. Brazilian affairs.

If the unusual day for an engineer sounds like a typical day for a diplomat, that's because Dr. Reynolds is both.

Science attache

A full professor of engineering on leave from the University of Washington in Seattle, he has a two-year assignment as science attache in the U.S Consulate here.

In the age of the atom, of space satellites, the energy crisis and world food shortages, the State Department employs 20 scientists as attaches in major embassies and consulates.

Reynolds, 53, says his job, like that of the science attaches in Moscow, Bonn, Tokyo or Buenos Aires, has three main functions; reporting, advising and promoting exchanges of information and ideas between Brazilian and American scientists.

A short, peppery man who walks nimbly on a game leg and talks volubly about Brazil and science, he is especially interested in nuclear development. Neither Brazil nor Argentina, both constructing nuclear reactors, has signed the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty.

First reactor

"The greatest diplomatic problem the world has ever faced is the control of the awesome nuclear stockpile we've brought into being," he said.

"The first Brazilian nuclear power reactor is now under construction 70 miles down the coast toward Santos from Rio," he said. "It is a Westinghouse design—the most recent type.

"This is the first of what will undoubtedly be a long series of reactors, because Brazil expects to reach the end of its economically developable hydro-electric power by the mid-80s, and will then increasingly turn to nuclear energy for its electrical power needs.

"Brazil is anxious to start developing an entire nuclear industry so that future reactors can be more and more constructed with local firms."

These reactors will generate a great deal of plutonium, "the prime ingredient in a nuclear weapon," Reynolds said. But Brazil is many years from developing the specialized manufacturing skills needed to construct such weapons, he said. Besides, Brazil shows no signs of starting and takes part in international organizations on peaceful uses of the atom.

Reynolds also "keeps an eye on" existing scientific agreements. Under one of them, Brazil receives data from the Earth Resources Technology Satellite.

WARNING
ASSEMBLY BILL 2112
Adds Sec. 976 and 977 to the
1964 Civil Rights Law
prohibits with certain exceptions, discrimination because of sex. Since some occupations are considered more attractive to persons of one sex or the other advertisements are placed under the Male or Female columns for the convenience of readers. Such listings are not intended to exclude persons of either sex.
This newspaper strives to protect its readers against fraud, deception or injustices. Advertisements which require cash bonds or investments in stocks, samples, equipment should be investigated thoroughly. All advertising statements must be accurate. All ads pertaining to sales must carry the word sales and must relate some nature of work involved and not designed to mislead the reader. Any ad requiring a tuition for study courses is not considered a help wanted ad and should be in classification 6 "Educational."

NO HELP WANTED AD CAN STIPULATE OR INFER A DEFINITE AMOUNT WHEN starting pay is commission basis. Report any exception to this rule to Classified Advertising Manager. NA 2-1201

Central Valley-- Cal. 'Rice Bowl'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Dropping down to 20,000 feet in preparation for his first landing at Sacramento Metropolitan Airport, commercial airline pilot Ken Drake thought he had misplaced the whole state of California.

Stretched out below him on his approach to the airport on the outskirts of the state capital were acre after acre of shimmering patches of water, carved into every conceivable design by snake-like levees.

"I didn't think it was California," said Drake, a 23-year veteran with United Air Lines. "It was strange, it looked just like a formal garden in England."

The things Drake described as "geometric patterns" were thousands of acres of rice —one of California's least noticed and publicized farm products.

High daytime temperatures and warm summer nights make rice an ideal crop for the central part of Northern California. This year, Golden State farmers, using airplanes, seeded more than 400,000 acres in Colusa, Butte, Sutter, Glenn, Yolo, Yuba, Sacramento, Placer, Fresno, San Joaquin, Merced, Stanislaus, Kern, Tulare, Madera and Kings counties.

Ranked in the top 15 of California crops in the past few years along with the state's famous citrus and fruit products, rice has come a long way since 1852.

It was that year the Legislature, noting all of California's rice had to be imported, offered $250 for the first 1,000 pounds of rice produced in the state.

But the reward went uncollected and the offer was repealed in 1870. Many persons tried to collect, notably the state's growing Chinese population, but they all failed because they limited themselves to long grain rice, which is not hardy enough for the short California growing season.

Although a short grain rice plot was planted in 1907 at the State Insane Asylum in Stockton, it was not until the next year that what is considered the first successful experiment for short grain was conducted.

W. W. Mackie, who was in charge of alkali reclamation work for the U.S. Bureau of Soils, secured 40 acres of black adobe wheat land that year, with the help of the Biggs Chamber of Commerce.

The land was southwest of Biggs and the financially plagued Sutter-Butte Canal Co., which was seeking new revenue, agreed to furnish the water.

The plot was divided between Honduras, or long grain, and Kiushu, or short grain rice. The Honduras failed to mature. But the Kiushu produced a crop of about 3,000 pounds of rough rice an acre.

California's rice growing season starts in mid-April and the seeding is done by small aircraft. During the up to 165-day growing season, the fields are submerged continuously with water up to a depth of eight inches.

During September, from two to three weeks before the rice is mature, the fields are drained so the ground will be dry enough to support heavy harvesting machinery. Harvesting continues into November.

Last year California farmers produced 19,583,000 hundredweight bags of rough rice —25 per cent of the nation's total.

Milled down to 13,211,537, it represented a $120.7 million crop.

But hardly any of the California crop ends up on the American dinner table. Americans prefer the long grain, white rice —and not the Golden State's medium and short grain.

But its popularity in other countries is quite evident —75 per cent of the California crop is exported overseas to such places as Puerto Rico, Guam, and South Korea and other Asian countries. And there is hardly any waste in the California crop. The milling produces 10 primary byproducts, ranging from rice hulls used for polishing compounds to broken rice for brewing beer.

Most of the state's rice farmers belong to three major cooperatives: Rice Growers Association of California and Farmers' Rice Cooperative, both headquartered in Sacramento, and the Butte County Rice Growers Association in Richvale. Together, it is estimated they produce about 80 per cent of the state's crop, with 20 per cent coming from independents.

The Rice Growers Association, with 2,000 members, is the world's largest rice producing, harvesting, milling and marketing cooperative.

The group owns and operates mills and warehouses in five locations in California and one in San Juan, Puerto Rico. It also operates the S.S. Rice Queen, the world's largest bulk rice carrier, for its shipments to Puerto Rico.

Robert W. Freeland, executive vice president of the group, calls the California rice grower the "most sophisticated in the world."

"Everything is mechanical," Freeland said.

"All the planting is done by airplane. Most of the fertilization, most of the spraying is all done by air."

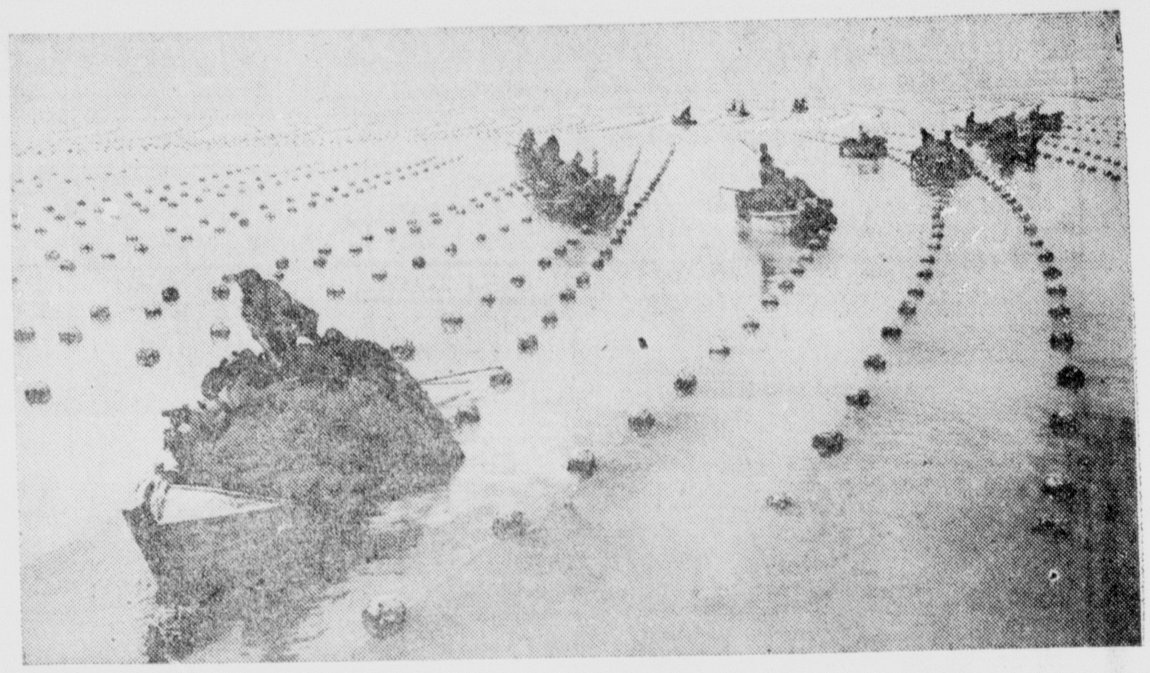
Freeland also said the California farmer spends eight man hours per acre to bring in his crop, compared to hundreds of hours in some Asian countries.

"The eight hours per acre includes all the land preparation, your taking care of the water and all your harvest time," he said.

But the California rice grower has to maintain a large investment in equipment.

"None of the rice is contract harvested, it's done by harvesters. When the rice is ready they have to get it that particular day, because the moisture is at the proper stage to get the best quality out of it."

Adv for week beginning Aug.



BUMPER HARVEST — Wheat may be in short supply in China, but the kelp harvest is of bumper proportions. This is the Tunshan Kelp Farm at the port of Lienyun in Kiangsu province.

Duke misquoted by President

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — President Nixon misquoted the Duke of Wellington during his speech before the Veterans of Foreign Wars in an effort to emphasize the horror of war.

"There is only one thing worse than losing a battle," Nixon said in quoting the "immortal words" of Wellington. "That is winning a battle."

What Wellington said following his victory over Napoleon was: "Nothing except a battle lost can be half so melancholy as a battle won."

Here's what you wanted — an easy-to-understand Highway Tire Guarantee with all these great features-

- FREE Replacement During First 10% of Guaranteed Mileage
- Guaranteed in case of Premature Tread Wear-Out
- FREE Nail Puncture Repairs During the Life of the Tire Guarantee
- Guaranteed in case of Failure because of Road Hazards

Sears Highway Passenger Tire Guarantee

If you do not receive the number of miles specified because of your tire becoming unserviceable due to (1) defects, (2) normal road hazards, or (3) tread wear-out.

We will: At our option, exchange it for a new tire or give you a refund charging in either case only the proportion of the then current selling price plus Federal Excise tax that represents mileage used. If the tire is unserviceable due to any of the above causes before 10% of the guaranteed mileage is received, the replacement or refund will be made with no charge for mileage received.

Nail punctures will be repaired at no charge. Guarantee applies to tires on vehicles used for private family purposes.

High Voltage means straight-through-the-partition cell connectors deliver more initial starting power than an otherwise identical battery with up-and-over celcell connectors.

STOP at Sears for Brakes

DRUM TYPE 39.88

DISC TYPE 69.88

Here's What Sears Brake Experts Do:

- Fit brand new brake shoes or disc pads
- Carefully rebuild hydraulic wheel cylinders or front calipers
- Resurface brake drums or reface rotors
- Arc grind all brake shoes
- Bleed all lines and add fluid
- Repack front wheel bearings
- Inspect master cylinder, grease seals, hoses and all brake hardware
- Disc brakes for front wheel drive, trucks and some foreign and sports cars excepted
- Under no circumstances will Sears do less than a "First Quality Brake Job"

Automatic Transmission Tune-up

12.88

Here's what we do:

- Remove Pan and Inspect
- Clean screen or replace filter (filter extra is needed)
- Install new pan gasket
- Change transmission oil
- Set transmission linkage and road test

Nothing to lose — if this tune-up service doesn't correct your transmission troubles, we will credit its cost toward the regular price of a replacement transmission.

Auto Air Conditioner 5-Point Check-Up

8.88

1. Check and tighten your belts
2. Add freon if needed
3. Check compressor seals
4. Check system for leaks
5. Clean your condenser
